
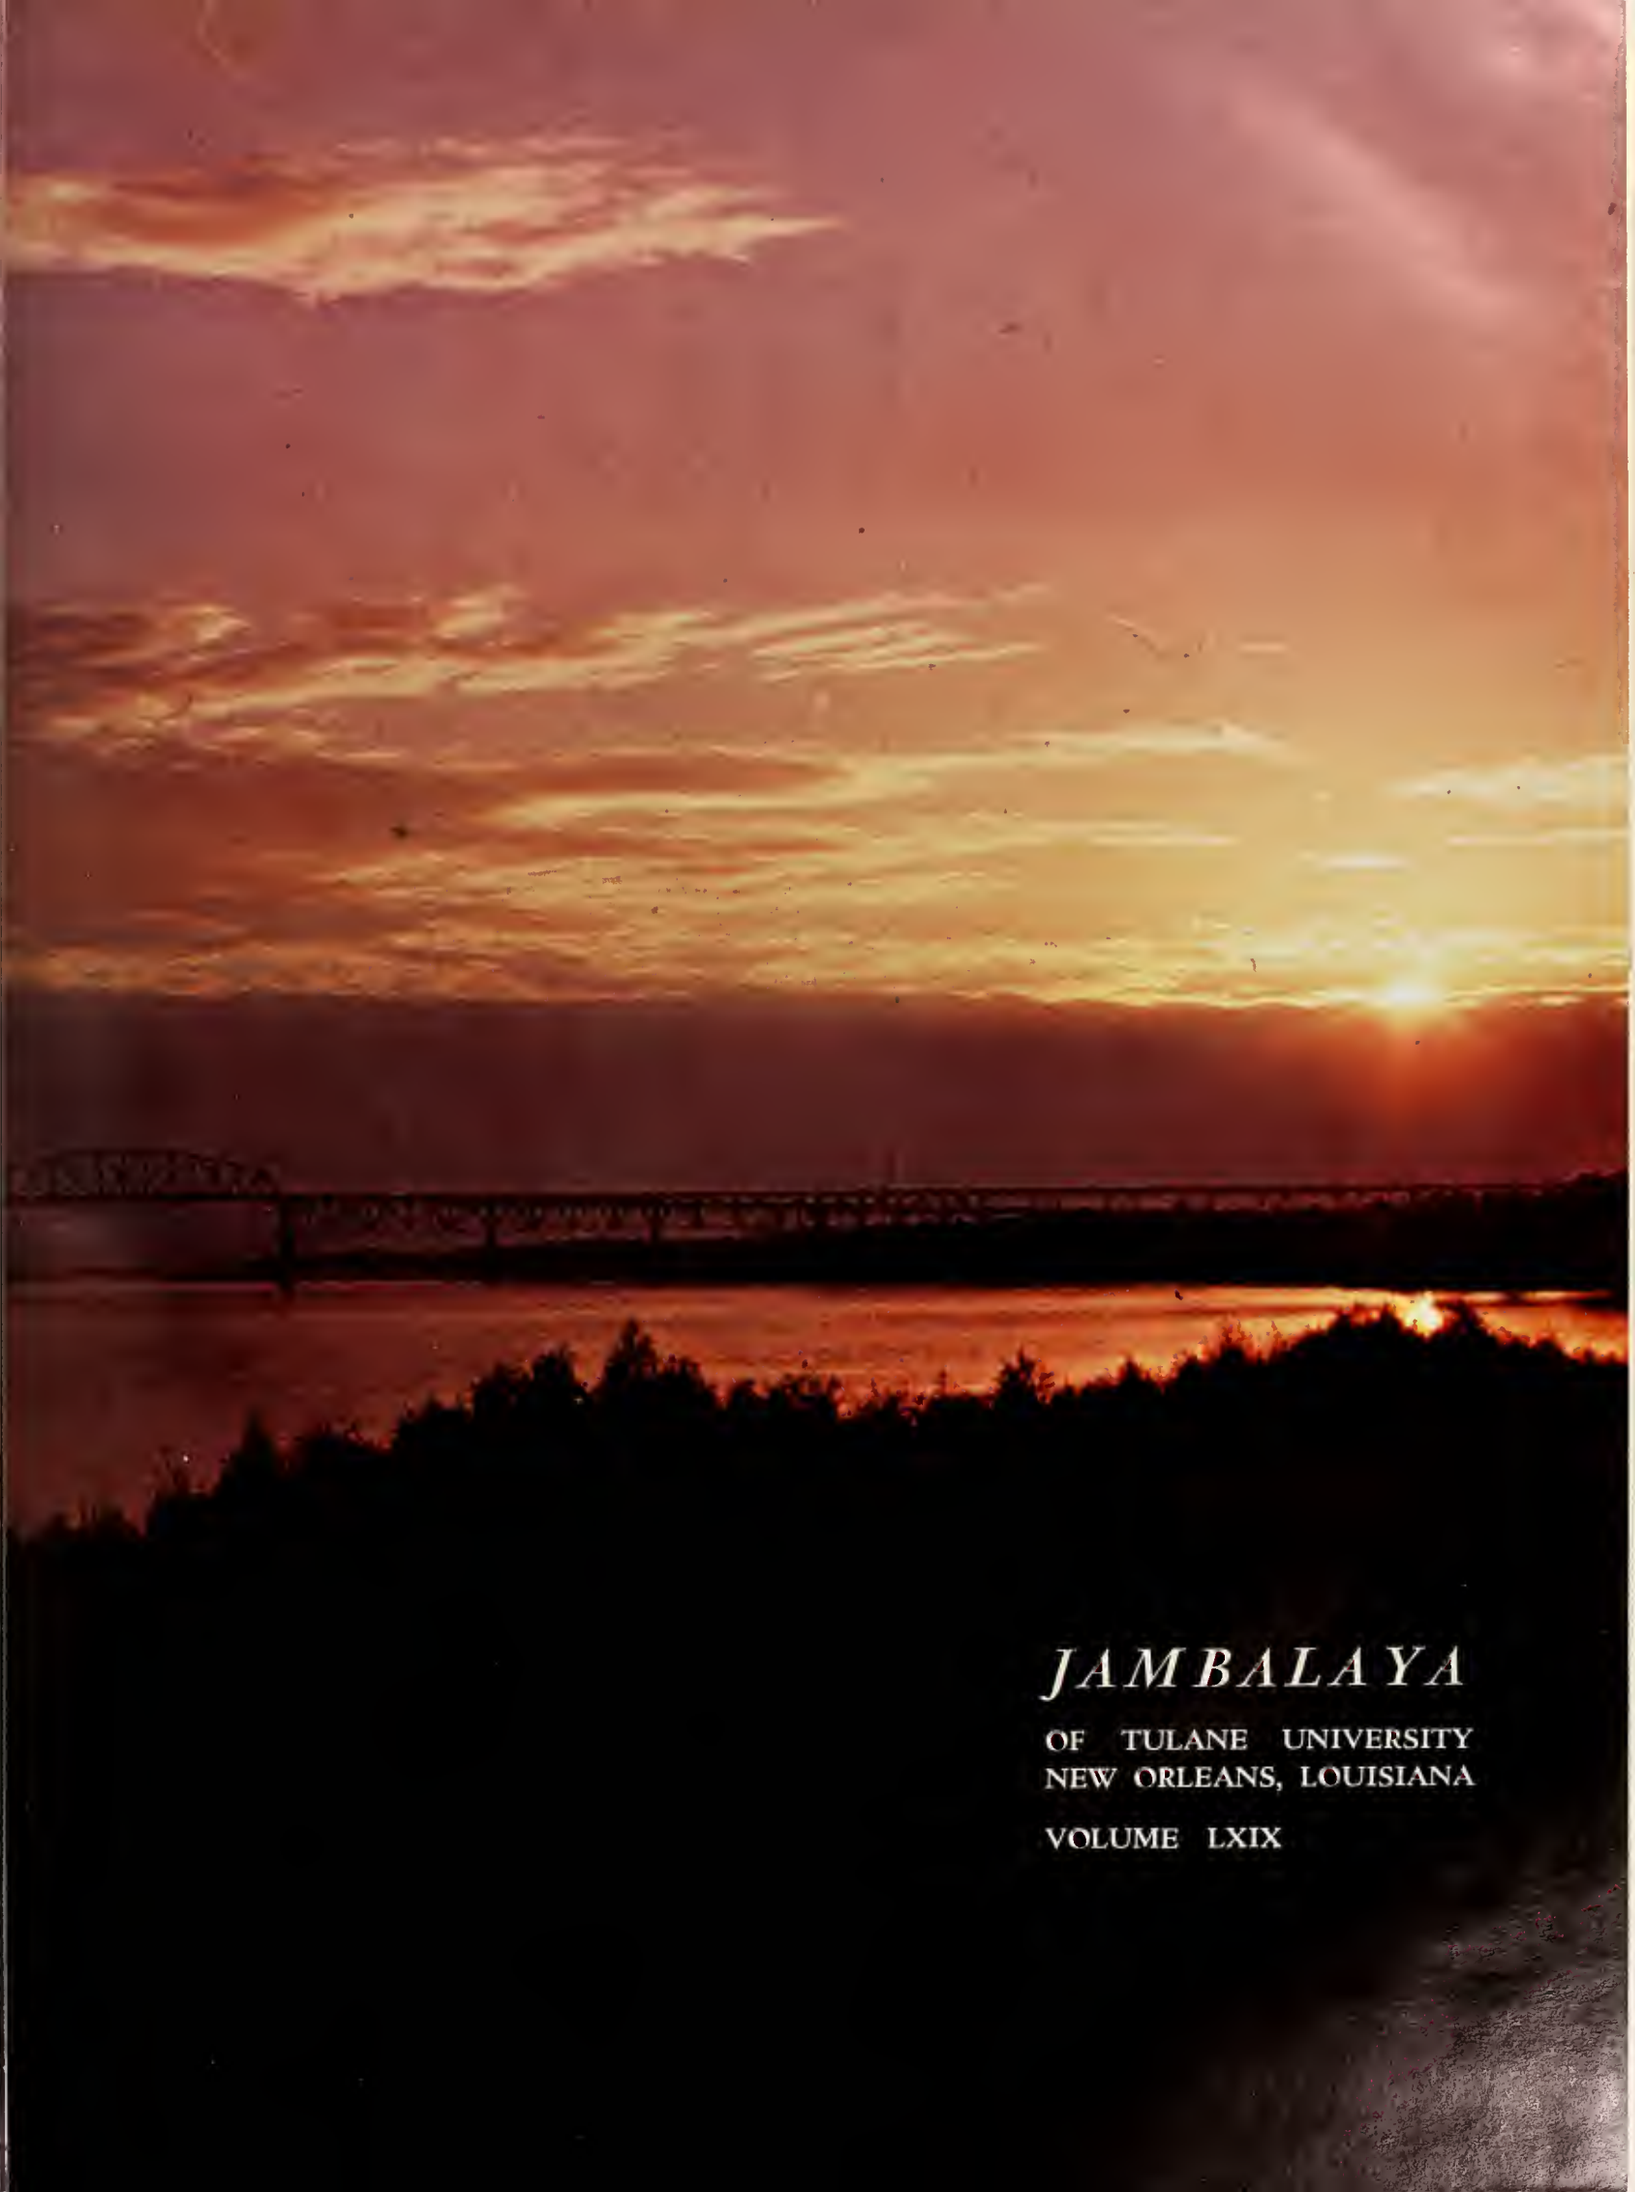
1964 JAMBALAYA

No man is an island entire of itself; every man is a piece of the continent, a part of the main. Every man's death diminishes me because I am involved in mankind . . . Therefore, never send to know for whom the bell tolls; it tolls for thee.

John Donne



JAMBALAYA

OF TULANE UNIVERSITY
NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA

VOLUME LXIX

". . . Your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions." Joel 2:28. The streets were lined with the youth of America, filled with grief and torn by tragedy. The very youth that he represented mourned his death with shock and disbelief. Shouldering very young children, solemn, quiet, respectful, the youthful crowd moved in rhythm with the dull beat of the muffled drums. The riderless horse–so very symbolic of a fallen leader--moved steadily forward, bearing a saddle which yesterday was filled by John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

He was the vision we saw when we said the word, "America." He was the embodiment of the essence of youth, the very youth with which we identify ourselves. He was the defender of equality and justice and the epitome of world understanding. His was a life dedicated to the principles of peace and understanding. It was through his very efforts that the youth of America and of the world were encouraged to seek and to know and, finally, to understand one another.

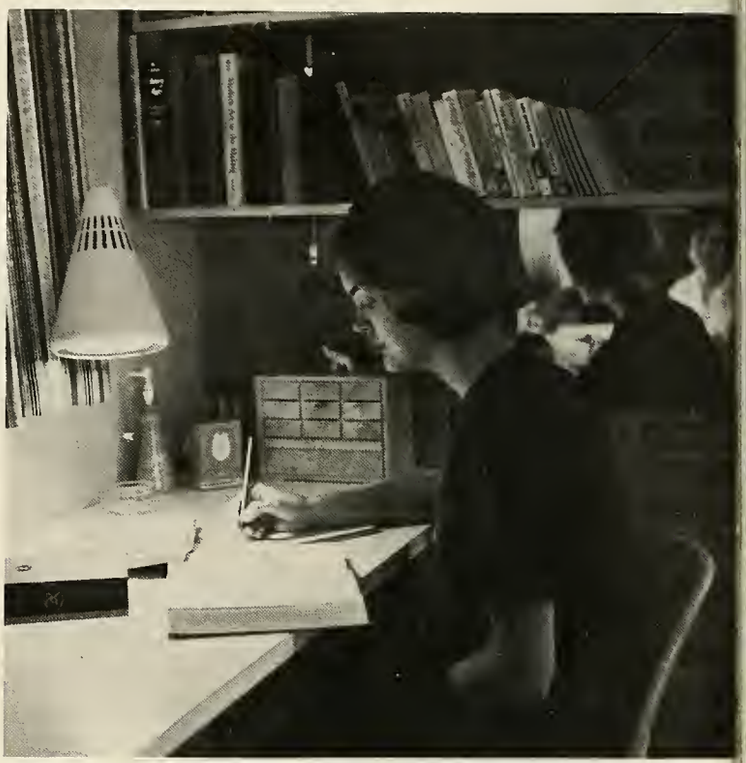
Two peoples, two countries watch each other from either side of the globe. They stand facing one another, alike in brotherhood, yet separated by an ocean, an ocean vast and deep and boundless, an ocean there because there is no understanding. The ocean races forward, covering the similarities, destroying the brotherhood, emphasizing the differences. John Fitzgerald Kennedy sought in his every endeavor to fill this ocean with knowledge. It was to the youth of the world that he made his appeal, for it is to the youth of our generation that this world of understanding, if created, will finally belong.

He spoke of these intangible qualities: understanding and knowledge. And we ask what are these qualities, and where do we search them out, and what do they contribute to our lives? We profess to understand one another, our neighbors, ourselves, but then our so-called understanding is but an illusion. One can only understand another when each learns to seek behind the action and to examine the reason for the behavior–the reason one country differs from another. Once we have that reason, that motive, we are on the road to understanding.

And what of knowledge? Education speaks not just of vast libraries of universities, nor of the scientific facts, nor of the laboratories, but it speaks of all that which leads man to an understanding of himself and the world. It is the friendship of life, the art of giving, the pleasure of work, the fun of playing, and the spirit of enthusiasm. When man grows and learns, he does so through all these factors, not through one alone. The final result is a complete, a full, a mature individual who can contribute to the world of life. Indeed, education makes the full man. It is he who understands himself, as well as he who understands that person, that country, on the other side of the globe.

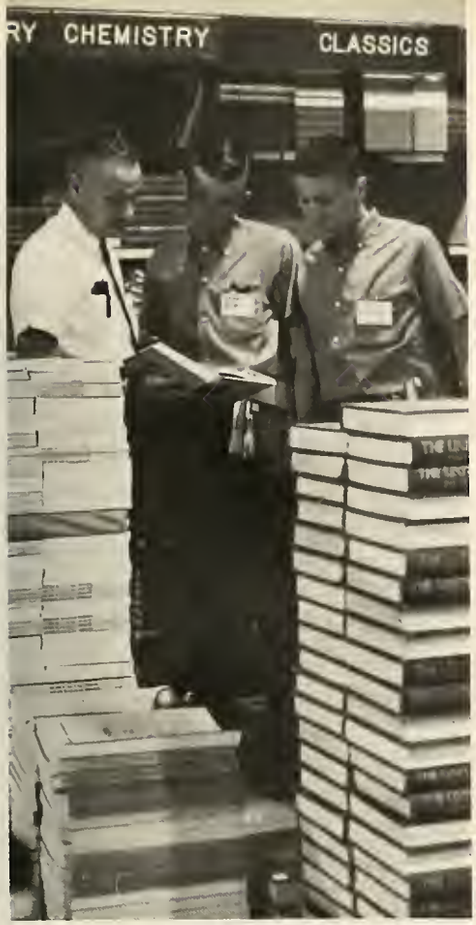
To this, then, let our 1964 "Jambalaya" be dedicated: to those principles so fervently instilled in the youth of America and the world by the late President John F. Kennedy; to education, in hopes that the peoples of the world shall no longer be separated by an ocean, but joined together to make our world one of understanding, to make our youth men of knowledge, and to make this a life permeated with fulfillment and completeneness. ". . . . And where there is no vision the people perish." Proverbs, 29:18.

Tulane student begins long day of activities with a quick walk to class.



Barbara Burnett gains greater understanding through long hours of study at her desk.

Mrs. Capers develops a certain rapport with a student as they discuss a problem of mutual interest.



The first real experience a freshman has at Tulane is buying his books from Mr. Endicott at the bookstore.

Education Fosters Tulane Cooperation

On graduation day the Tulane student stands with diploma in hand, awaiting the call of that final name. And finally, the student is graduated into a world demanding his knowledge, his maturity, and his understanding. And we of Tulane must ask ourselves what this student has gained in understanding and cooperation from our university. There are two aspects to this understanding resulting from campus life.

On one side of the coin are the activities related to study: Cooperating with fellow students within class . . . sharing . . . helping to obtain a copy of a book hard to find . . . explaining something misunderstood by a classmate . . . cooperating with the faculty member in discussing an assignment, a paper, or a new idea . . . working with another in a lab or on an outside project . . . excitement and inspiration of wholesome competition. While the student shares in these simple learning experiences, the classwork responsibilities are making their contributions to the side of the coin that will insure a diploma on graduation day.

Dr. A. J. Riopelle experiments in the laboratory to attain new knowledge of the basics of human life.

Students attempt to understand both themselves and the world as Dr. Jonassen analyzes a molecular structure in his freshman chemistry class.

Mr. Hank Schneider and Lehman Marks work together in preparation for freshman orientation.

Athletes enjoy the companionship and fun of a homecoming, pre-game meal.

Understanding Inspires Students' Creed

Yet, there is still another side to the coin, another kind of graduation. It is the life of understanding and cooperation outside the classroom. It is the cooperation and understanding that makes the student a human being, that makes him mature.

Sharing with a roommate . . . bull sessions with the person down the hall . . . losing a fraternity football game . . . seeing a personal flaw through the help of a friend . . . dating . . . participating in a campus activity . . . just playing pool with an acquaintance—these are the everyday occurrences that build and mold and shape the individual. Here, in human relationships, are the seeds of worldwide understanding. It's the "hello" on campus or the unexpected favor that begin to secure this understanding, this cooperation at Tulane.

Most important of a student's accomplishments is his learning, both as a student and as a human being. Everyday he meets and converses with people of various levels; whether it is with his roommate or professor, he is learning to cooperate and to understand, to develop both sides of the coin. He has learned to respect his own wishes as well as those of his acquaintances, and acknowledges that the world is composed of many, not just one. Perhaps he has gained the understanding of himself and others which will insure his fulfillment of the demands of the world, and which he individually can use in contributing to world understanding and cooperation.

Let our gain of education be our beginning from which the seeds of understanding will burst forth into lasting bloom; then shall we be happy, enjoying the benefits of all we gain through participation in the university . .

Let us then be as Parliament not as islands nor islanders, but as vital forces which give as well as grow as can be exemplified in the Tulane and Newcomb . .

Let us then be as the Greeks sharing in pleasure yet restraining the excess; then shall we experience the true enjoyment of our . .

New Additions to Campus Enhance Tulane's Facilities

The facilities of Tulane offer each student an opportunity to develop his talents and fulfill his ambitions. The University Center with meeting rooms, swimming pool, bowling lanes, snack shop and music listening rooms seems to be a center of all types of activity. Any afternoon during the school year it is quite possible to find a Tulane student studying on the mezzanine or socializing "with a cup of coffee" at the snack bar. Gibson Hall and Newcomb Hall however are the centers of activity during the class hours. Many a student has seen success and failure in the hallowed halls of these two buildings. The dormitories, ranging in age from the ancient Josephine Louise freshman dorm to the shining, polished, recently completed Monroe House are a vital part of life at Tulane. The Tulane University Theatre Playhouse, the well-known Sugar Bowl, the Howard Tilton Memorial Library, Bruff Commons, and the Caroline Richardson Dining Hall all contribute an important part to campus life.

Gibson Hall, one of Tulane's oldest buildings, is a familiar landmark to the University students.

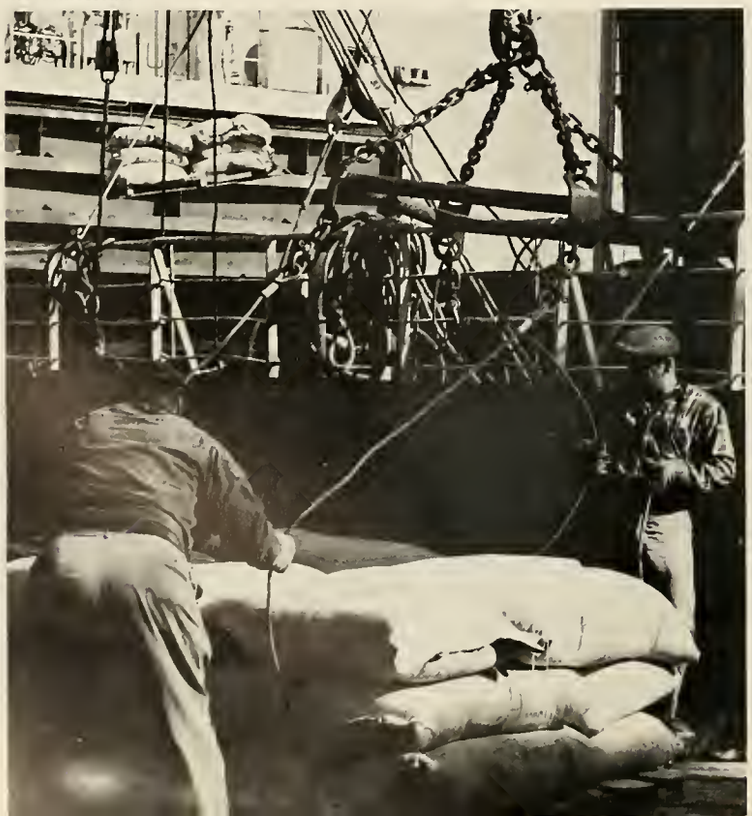
With the growth of the campus, Tulane facilities expand to accomodate increasing numbers of students. Monroe Dorm serves Tulane students both adequately and comfortably.

Ginny Nishigaya takes advantage of the Howard Tilton Memorial Library to enrich her knowledge for an upcoming test.

The Sugar Bowl is a Tulane landmark favored by students and tourists alike. New Year's Day sees the bowl full to overflowing for the traditional Sugar Bowl classic.

Jackson Square and the Saint Louis Cathedral are landmarks of historical significance, known by native New Orleanians as favorite spots to all who happen to pass.

New Orleans, the third largest port in the United States, serves both the country and the world as the gateway to the Americas.



Canal Street comes alive with colors and decorations during the British Festival. The co-operation evident in the presentation of this program exemplifies world understanding.

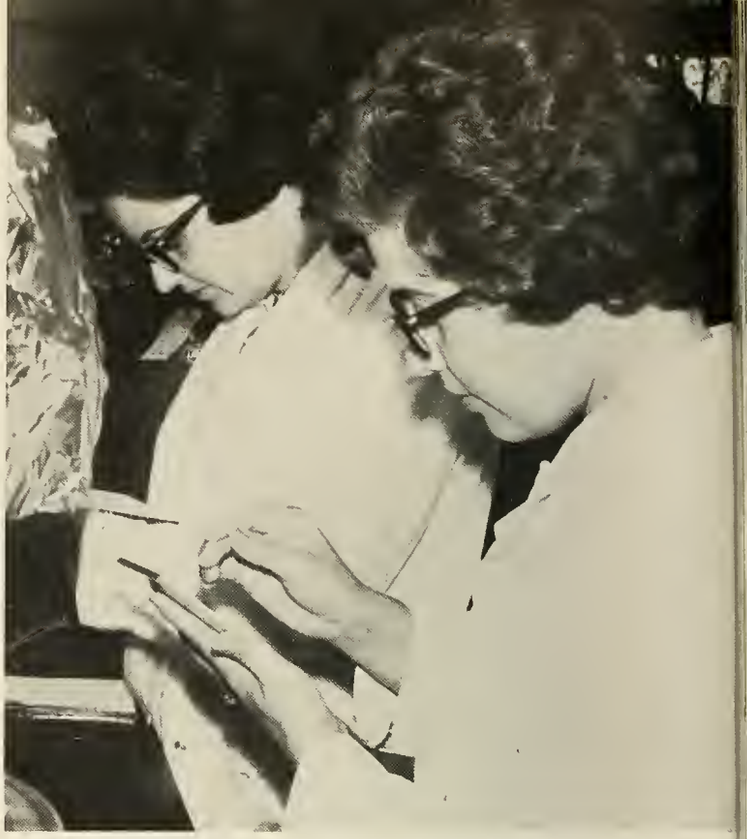
New Orleans, a city of artists and culture, displays the work of its talented citizens in any available space in the French Quarter.

New Orleans Serves Country As Gateway To The Americas

A city of varied flags and influences, of the old world and the new, of French and Spanish and English . . . New Orleans, a metropolis, a cosmopolitan city, a living example of America's melting pot . . . The various groups and countries, at first, developed their own distinct and separate communities, never crossing any boundary to join with any other group. Yet with the passage of time and the growth of understanding, the boundary line dissolved and the many became one . . . Today the entire community as a whole, as one, shares in the benefits of the docks, of Michoud, of one city hall, of one library, of one French Quarter. Striving, working, creating together, the inhabitants of varied areas and customs contributed to a city, a rich, a vast, a beautiful heritage able to be enjoyed by all. Such a city, such accomplishments, such a culture are developed only with understanding and cooperation as brothers in a world of differences.

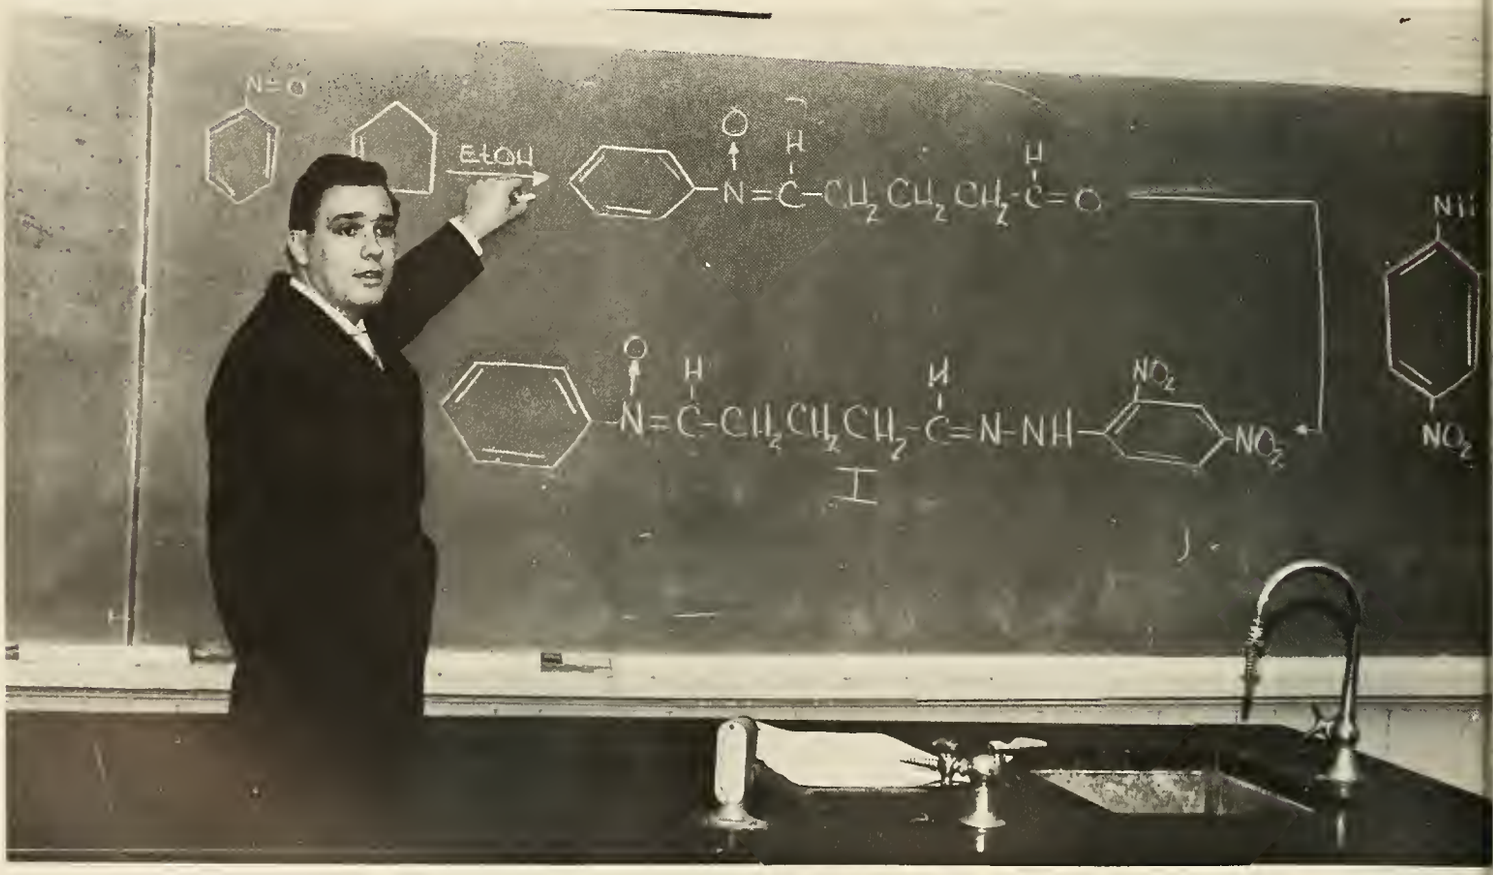
Bourbon Street of mid-afternoon differs significantly from Bourbon Street of mid-night. The daylight hours barely suggest the night-life that comes alive at twilight.

Our fraternity football field laid to waste by enterprising workmen is now converted to a home for Newcomb's young ladies.



Audrey Ayo and Linda Muller take full advantage of the summer to work on projects financed by a research grant. They waste little time, not even summers.

After several long and involved years of study Anthony Macaluso receives his Master's Degree in chemistry. The heat of the summer detracts nothing from his feelings of accomplishment and satisfaction.



The Tulane Day Campers have no regrets about their conversion of the Newcomb Quadrangle into a summer golf course. They enjoy every minute of their attempts to become professionals.

Unfamiliar Faces Invade Campus During Summer Months

Graduation . . . trunks and packing . . . heat and humidity . . . rushing to catch that plane . . . and finally good-byes . . . the campus is deserted, the classes empty, the University Center quiet. Then, like a burst of thunder, the race is on again.

New and unfamiliar faces place their belongings in what last spring we called our room. Summer school students take over our spot in the library, our school, our campus. A rather leisurely air pervades the students in burmuda shorts as they walk to classes. The hush of exams is broken by the spring of the diving board as the camp counselor instructs his pupils . . . Little girls in black leotards race up the steps of the Newcomb gym to their dance class as the Tulane campers invade the baseball diamonds.

Suddenly, the whole campus takes on a new look as the face-lifting program gets into full swing . . . New dorms seem to spring up from the very spot where we played football last fall. Time speeds by . . . Unbelievably it's fall again and that first student with suitcase in hand surveys the campus wearing that familiar smile of "I'm back at last" . . . Classes just around the corner.

The summer student differs remarkably from the winter student as is evidenced by this young lady's leisurely study method.

A fall arrival contemplates the comforts of Southern hospitality and the prospects of lively campus spirit.

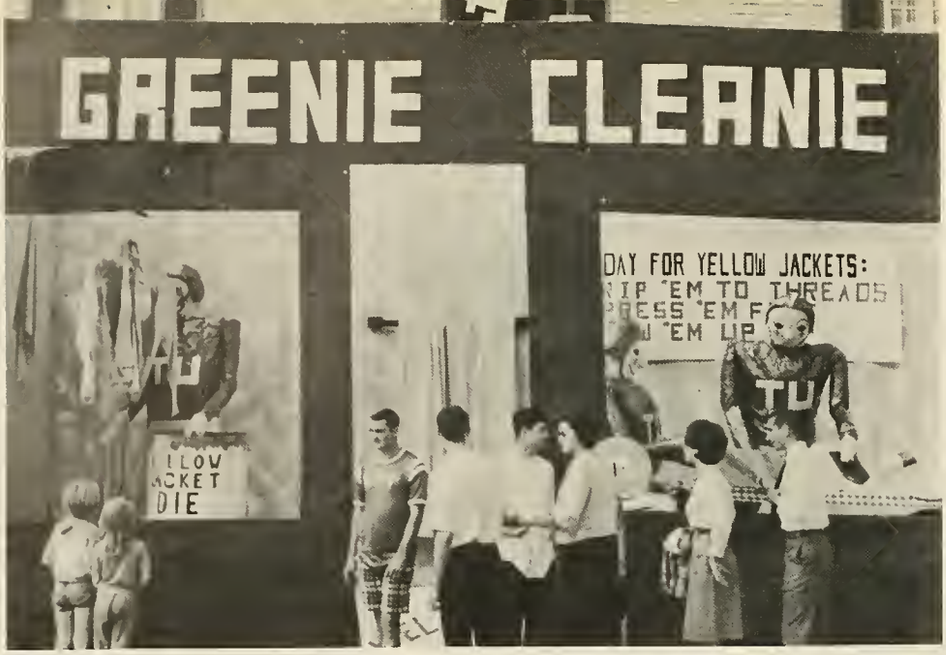
Arrival Of Fall Renews Campus Activities And Classes

The long lines of registration lead directly to alarm clocks and early rising, classes and books, study, study, and more study. Ninety degree weather and football games cause us to think that summertime has simply turned to Indian summer and not fall at all . . . But, gradually the rains come, usually at the same time as the arrival of Homecoming . . . The homecoming festivities end abruptly as mid-semester exams pile up in a sudden onslaught and pink slips peek daintily from beneath the flaps of envelopes. As fall really begins to take hold, deferred rush sees the comings and goings of freshmen and sorority girls up and down Broadway. Pep rallies, fraternity football games, the freshman talent show—all these thrust Tulane into a frenzy of activity which barely diminishes until Thanksgiving vacation.

Registration introduces the unsuspecting freshmen to the wonders and delights of organized chaos.

An energetic Sammy pledge class breaks out with an early demonstration of Tulane spirit.

Jeanne Montedonico and Mike Toups enjoy the comforts of costumes and fun of the annual Beaux Arts Ball.



With their Greenie Cleanie, the ZBT'S sew up first place honors in the homecoming competition.

As Pi Phi's hissing snake wishes death to the Greenie's opponents, a first place award is handed over for the efforts of the sorors.

Chi O's sticky rug fails to attract any bugs, but does succeed in attracting a winning place.

No bonfire is complete without a pretty girl and this bonfire is no exception. Here Tulane students make a worthwhile sacrifice to the "greenie gods."

Sports Encourage Enthusiasm And Loyalty For Alma Mater

The football season sees crowds of enthusiastic students pouring into the Sugar Bowl for another T.U. game. Cheering loudly, standing for a hopeful touchdown, groaning at an interception, all eyes are on the field . . . A one, a two, a hell of a Hullabaloo! . . . and we find ourselves at another pep rally with a cheerleader before us and football players predicting victory . . . A bonfire glowing brightly in the darkened night, surrounded by students, offering some gift to appease the "greenie gods," yelling for a victory. Street dances and homecoming displays . . . Emile from Pat O'Briens . . . cheers . . . and the pep band . . . T.U. is well prepared for a year of exuberance and loyalty for our Alma Mater.

Tulane's Green Wave rolls down the field with visions of victory uppermost in each player's mind.

With the help of Pat O'Brien's Emile, Tulane cheerleaders lead T.U. students on to enthusiastic cries for victory.

Tulane again makes a wise choice of beautiful and versatile girls to grace their Homecoming Court, as is evidenced by Norma May, Patty Heatherly, Coleen Spence, Dianne Potin, Liz Jane Caldwell, Helen Harry, and Susan Cosgrove.

Tulane's striking Dianne Potin receives a willing congratulatory kiss from John C. Hodges, President of the Alumni Association, during half-time festivities.

The power and determination of T.U.'s team makes itself evident throughout the hard but well-played homecoming game.

Alums Welcomed With Wide Variety Of Homecoming Displays

For weeks before the day arrives, in hushed and hurried tones, the Greeks on campus prepare for their homecoming displays. Hours at the house are spent stuffing chicken wire, cutting, revising and building . . . And suddenly it's the night before, and Broadway is alive with students hard at work, as each display takes shape. 5:00 a.m. and one would think all of Tulane is still settled snuggly in bed, but everywhere people administer the well-guarded secret . . . And eagerly they await the judges' arrival . . . "A sticky rug for an icky bug" . . . "Gone with the Wind" . . . "Bees a la Moat" . . . "Welcome Alumns." Broadway is dressed in full array. . . The game is played in summer heat, but the sun is shining. Half-time sees the presentation of the campus court as each girl smiles, waving excitedly to both unfamiliar and familiar faces in the crowd. At last the Homecoming Queen is crowned for 1963 . . . That night all Tulane finds itself dancing and laughing in the crowded ballroom of the Jung Hotel. Once again the court is presented and the dream begins to fade. As the clock strikes one, the dream has disappeared and all return to campus—until next year.

Tucker Couvillion takes great pleasure in presenting Dianne Potin, the reigning queen, to her subjects at the annual Homecoming Dance.

Winter Slips In While Students Face Exams And Vacation

We have eaten all the turkey possible and suddenly Thanksgiving is over. Where has the semester gone? . . . Twelve short days and Christmas is upon us . . . The hanging of the green seems impossible in the absence of snow. The night before we leave . . . We find ourselves leaning out our windows, listening to the caroling Tulanians bid us "Season's Greetings." . . . Then, it's home—fun—New Year's Eve— and finally T.U. greets us once again . . . Another year . . . We find ourselves crowding a whole semester of study into three short weeks . . . Finally exams are over. Haggard faces catch up on much needed sleep while sororities greet their new pledges as each girl accepts her bid . . . The race is on again . . . Another long line at registration . . . More classes, more study.

Daria D'Aporto puts the final touches on the Christmas tree during the "hanging of the greens" activities.

The Chi O's give a warm and enthusiastic greeting to the pledge class it worked so hard to obtain.

Snow invades the warm southland making Tulane a winter wonderland.

Bob Hope, amid a mass of pins, pennants, posters, flowers, and other gifts presented him by members of Newcomb sororities, peers out at a laughing audience.

Spring Fever Initiates Whirl Of Social Events On Campus

A season of Mardi Gras activities, balls, dances, and parades gradually infests the entire campus with a disease prevalent only in the spring months. As spring fever attacks the students, arm in arm couples stroll lazily to Audubon Park, spending hours enjoying the renewal of nature. Industrious students gather their books together and nonchalantly prop themselves against the budding trees to "prepare" for final exams. Mysteriously, the campus hermits leave their winter quarters and seem to forget that there is studying to be done. Young men staring at the beauties of nature hang breathlessly from their dormitory windows as the Newcomb co-eds head for the roof and sun in impressive attire. Formals crowd the busy social schedule. The Pan-Hel formal sees the Jambalaya staff announce Miss Pauline Tulane and her court, while Spring Weekend is just around the corner. The lovely spring weather once again turns to heat and humidity, Easter vacation, and semester exams. The year is culminated as long lines crowd the corridors of the University Center basement, eagerly awaiting the chance to receive their copy of the 1964 Jambalaya.

Smiling faces and screams of "Throw me something, Mister." predominate as Mardi Gras spirit marks the beginning of Spring.

Tulane Bids Fond Farewell To Seniors At Graduation

And the year is over . . . All that remains now are the good-byes, the diploma, and departure. With speed and excitement these four years at Tulane University seemed to have raced by and now all the tomorrows are upon us. What have we gained? Perhaps some bit of understanding that can guide us through whatever the future may bestow, some bit of knowledge that will make each of us a full and complete individual . . . Long lists of names, graduation robes, parents, friends, and, finally, that hard-earned diploma is grasped firmly between nervous hands. And, so, good-bye Tulane—thanks for the fun, the memories, the knowledge . . . We won't forget . . . Farewells said and plans for reunions secured, we take a final look at our Alma Mater . . . Four years of memory flood our minds and we can remember when we first arrived as freshman. But now, good-bye, we'll see you again . . . someday, somehow, somewhere.

Four years of Tulane life culminate when the senior class receives the long-awaited diploma.

"Happy is the man that findeth wisdom And the man that obtaineth understanding." Proverbs 3:13-14. Majestically the profile of the ancient sphinx of Egypt stands outlined against the blue skies, reaching heavenward, emanating strength and fortitude. Here is the cradle of civilization, the birthplace of history, the beginnings of society. Symbolically this monument to the past represents the seeds of knowledge, of wisdom, and of education. Like the magnificent sphinx of Egypt, education too is a beginning; it is the beginning of world understanding. All that which we have learned or will learn during our lengthy educational process is but a tiny portion of the infinite knowledge of the world. Yet that which we learn is that first step, that beginning towards true wisdom and understanding, just as Egypt and the sphinx were that beginning of civilization. Egypt, a country of the past, from which man began to grow and develop; the sphinx, a symbol of strength, of fortitude, and of the basic birth of knowledge. Let our gain of education be our beginning, our birth from which the seeds of understanding will burst forth into lasting blooms of complete human beings who possess fortitude to immerse themselves in all that which the world may offer. Then shall we be happy enjoying the benefits of all we gain through participation in the university . . .

CURRICULUM

The President's Message

This year Tulane reaches the age of 130 and grants its 40,000th degree. Nearly half of those degrees have been conferred in the past twenty years and more than a fourth in the last ten years.

Members of the class of 1964 will thus join a relatively young alumni group of a university which, by American standards is comparatively old.

While this year's seniors were freshmen, the United States elected the youngest president in its history; and despite his tragic death, the vigor which characterized his administration has persisted in our national leadership.

These are times of emphasis on youthful viewpoint and youthful aspiration, in the university and in the country. I hope that as you make your voices heard, as alumni and as citizens, the freshness and enthusiasm of your college years will stay with you and mark your efforts. Tulane will welcome a youthful outlook among its alumni and friends; for a university, serving the young and looking ever to the future, becomes venerable but never aged. Such an outlook is necessary also for the people of this and other free nations in a world of rapid change requiring constant adjustment.

Student Life

The administration of the particulars of campus life is directed and supervised by the Division of Student Life and its staff. It is through the efforts of the various departments and divisions of this branch of the administration that Tulane students receive advice, information, and guidance.

The Student Program seeks to give the student an opportunity to complement his formal studies with social and cultural growth, and to give him opportunities to develop his interests and appreciations through companionship.

The Orientation Program at the beginning of the year strives to acquaint new students with Tulane, and to assist them in making the transition from reliance on others to reliance on self. The University Center, in all its many aspects, offers the student recreation, and provides him with meeting rooms and many activities. Every phase of the University as it directly concerns the student can be traced to one or another of the branches of the Division of Student Life.

The new facilities created constantly for the student-new dorms and food services, renovated athletic facilities, the Health Service and the University Center-are the testimony of the Division of Student Life and their labor for the student and his benefits.

All the members of the staff are experienced in their field and are dedicated to their work.

Dean John Stibbs considers the value of a proposal concerning student affairs between conferences with student leaders and faculty members.

Tulane Alumni

Miss Beatrice M. Field, Director

The Tulane Alumni Association was incorporated in 1898, dedicated to the broad principles of loyalty and service to the University and its alumni. During the past sixty-six years it has grown into a world-wide organization of more than 35,000 members living in the fifty states and in sixty foreign countries.

The Alumni Fund provides money for the needs of the University. The Association's contributions to higher education have been equally important. Alumni clubs provide scholarships to deserving students in their areas. The annual Tulane conferences, presented by the Association and Alumni Clubs, bring to many Southern cities programs in the specialized fields of science, the humanities, law, medicine, engineering, social work, and others.

Other activities include Homecoming, reunions, and the principal publication for the alumni, THE TULANIAN, sent to all alumni without charge.

Lewis A. Scherck, the oldest Tulanian present at the 1963 Homecoming festivities, received a plaque and a football honoring the 75th year of his graduation.

Keeping communications open between the alumni house and the campus is a full-time job for H. B. Baptiste.

Newcomb Alumnae

All students who have attended Newcomb, whether they have graduated from the school or not, are considered as members of the Newcomb Alumni Association. This association is now composed of more than nine thousand alumnae. The office is in the Tulane Alumni House, where files are kept concerning current addresses of former students. Clubs of alumnae are located in leading cities throughout the United States.

The Association has two national meetings annually, one at Homecoming in the fall, and the other at Commencement in the spring. At the first of this year, the freshman descendents of both Newcomb and Tulane alumni were honored at a reception for them at the Alumni House. Here they had a chance to meet fellow freshmen from New Orleans as well as from cities all over the United States. They also looked at pictures of their parents in old copies of the JAMBALAYA.

Law students had murder on their minds during the annual Moot Court in which the most outstanding students participate.

Playing, rather than studying, occupies law students on Homecoming Day.

The freshmen law students diligently prepare for the presentation of their skit.

Law School

The School of Law was established by an act of the Louisiana Legislature in 1847, when the University of Louisiana was organized. In 1906, the Law Department moved to the present campus site on St. Charles Avenue and in that same year was one of the two law schools in the entire South on the accredited list of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching. The School of Law, since its founding, has graduated approximately 3,000 students.

Because of the metropolitan location of the School, opportunity is afforded for much practical observation of a variety of civil and criminal courts. The Louisiana Supreme Court and the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit are in New Orleans.

The School of Law tries to maintain a proper balance between the necessary basic informational content and the broader, more cultural aspects of law study. This is because today's law students become not only judges, legislators, and law teachers, but may also go into fields of business or government service.

An opportunity for seeing the broad view of legal principles which comes from compartive treatment is given by studying the codes of Louisiana as well as the common law which is similar in all states.

Awe-inspiring crest on Law School Building is symbol of historic justice.

Aspiring lawyers hibernate in the law school library to prepare briefs and pore over scholarly legal tomes.

Medical School

At the dedication of the new medical school building, President Longenecker awards an honorary degree to Tulane graduate Dr. Luther Terry, Surgeon-General of the United States.

The School of Medicine, established in 1834, was the first medical college in the Deep South or Southwest. The school is now located in the Josephine Hutchinson Memorial Clinic Building, next to the Charity Hospital. With the completion of the new unit in 1963, the first year departments were consolidated with the rest of the school.

The use of the wards and clinics of the Charity Hospital has been given to the teaching staff of the Medical School for the practical instruction of its students in all the divisions of medicine and surgery. In addition, the facilities of other hospitals in New Orleans and elsewhere in Louisiana are at Tulane's disposal.

Social Studies

The Social Studies Department strives to teach its students about humans and their relation to the world, the problems of this world, and possible ways of solving these problems.

The Political Science Department offers studies of the structures of both American and many foreign governments. Courses in international relations, political motivation, displomacy, and law develop the study of political theory.

Courses in the Department of Economics can roughly be divided into three groups: theoretical, historical, and practical.

Philosophy and Psychology Departments use inductive and deductive reasoning to explain human behavior and the workings of the human mind.

History, sociology, and anthropology trace man's development into a social being, and how he formed society.

Military

The Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps offers a commission in the United States Air Force to students who have obtained a baccalaureate degree and completed the AFROTC basic and advanced courses. Regular University academic courses are included as part of the air science curriculum, and consist of mathematics, science, the humanities, and foreign languages.

The successful completion of the Army Reserve Officers Training Corps military science course, and the receipt of a baccalaureate degree give a student a commission in the USAR. Outstanding cadets may be selected for a regular army commission. In addition to required University courses, cadets take military classroom work and leadership laboratories.

The Naval ROTC curriculum of naval science leads to commissions in the Navy or the Marines. Regular NROTC students take, in addition to the naval science courses, three summer cruises and receive a regular Navy commission. Contract NROTC students are ordered to active duty for three years immediately after graduation. All of these students are deferred from induction.

Engineering students survey T.U.'s campus.

Engineering

The School of Engineering offers professional training in chemical, civil, electrical, and mechanical engineering.

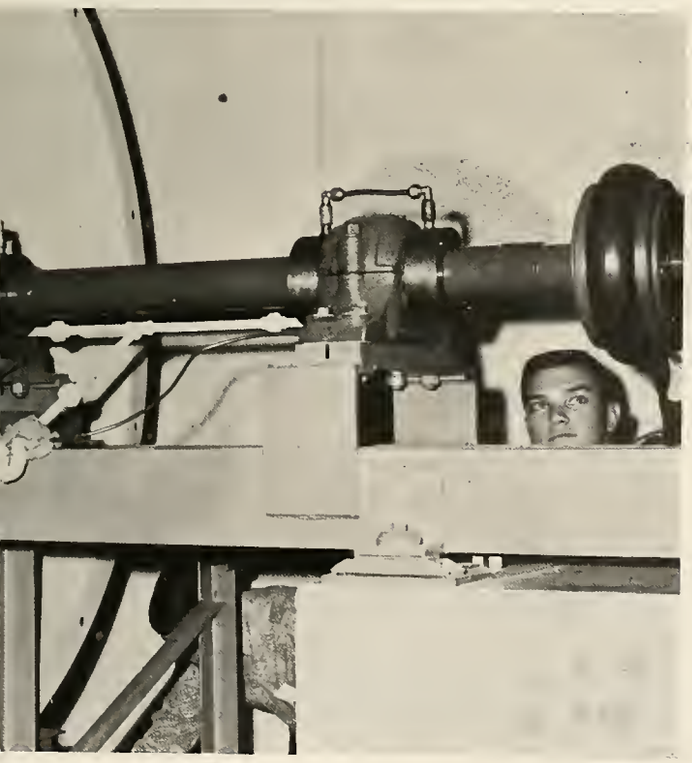
The chemical engineering curriculum provides the student with knowledge to cope with the technology of the chemical industry. This includes the use of automatic computation and powerful new tools for designing and operating processes.

The civil engineering curriculum provides instruction in the fundamental principles pertaining to the profession. These include bridge, hydraulic and structural engineering, surveying and mapping, and transportation, sanitary, and highway engineering.

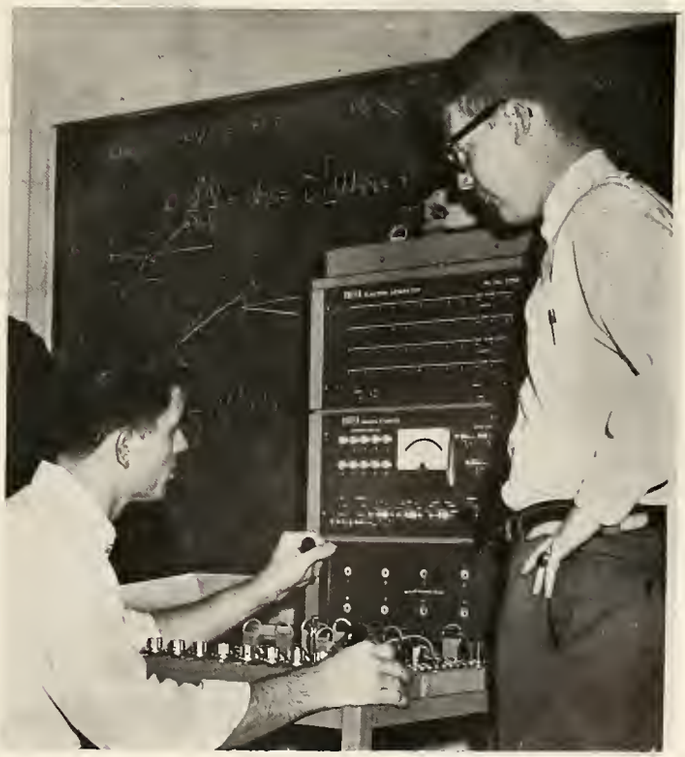
The electrical engineering department teaches its students to supervise and direct the processes of generation, transmission and distribution of electrical energy. Fields are open to these students in nuclear power, applications of electricity in medicine, and missile and satellite instrumentation and control.

The broad field of mechanical engineering applies basic science to modern engineering problems.

These bewildered engineering students are hardly cheered by the realization that machines can be even more complex than this one.



Just follow the simple instructions on the board and the machine will work.



Physics students apply their theoretical knowledge of the production of electricity to a lab experiment.

Science

A thorough and integrated curriculum prepares today's student to be tomorrow's scientist.

Astronomy classes teach the fundamental principles of the solar system. In order to do this, telescope use at night supplements regular classes.

The study of botany starts with an introductory course and progresses through courses in cytology and research methods.

Chemistry also begins with general courses, and the study is advanced through inorganic and organic chemistry, and analysis.

Geology study is introduced with a description of the nature and development of the earth, and advanced courses offer detailed study of rocks and minerals and application of methods of geophysical exploration.

The physics department offers a general course for those not going further in this study, and another as a basis for more advanced work. As the course of study progresses, the student makes a careful study of such things as heat, magnetism, light, biophysics, and atomic and nuclear physics.

Term papers, themes, and critical essays keep English students busy in the library searching for books and information, reading, or just meditating in the quiet of the reading rooms.

English

The overall program of the English Department creates in the student an appreciation and comprehensive knowledge of trends in poetry, prose, drama, and criticism; gives an understanding of literary and cultural relationships; and fosters individual critical judgment and writing ability.

To acquaint freshmen and sophomores with literary analysis, and major American and British writers is the purpose of the four semesters of English required of all Tulane and Newcomb students.

Upper level courses offer a wide range of studies in literature, grammar, creative writing, and literary criticism. Courses include surveys of representative types of literature in important stylistic periods, and the political and social atmosphere of the times. Composition and reading courses are available to students whose native language is not English. Creative writing classes, limited in size, are employed in directed projects in verse and prose. Courses concentrating on the works of Shakespeare, Milton, and Chaucer, and more modern writers are offered.

The impossibility of studying dozens of novels, plays, and short stories in the last 24 hours before a midsemester is mirrored by the agonized expression on the face of a harried Newcomb student.

Languages

The study of a language, whether classical or modern, is required up to a second year of all Arts and Science students, and up to a third year of all Newcomb students.

Experimental courses in several languages are offered, working on the principle of learning by hearing. These classes give the student extensive lab work, and he learns by repeating rather than by reading from a book.

Language labs, formerly housed in the Alcee Fortier Hall, have been moved to the newly renovated fourth floor of Newcomb Hall. These labs, just finished in time for second semester this year, have the newest equipment and facilities. In addition, there are class rooms for language classes.

In addition to classical Latin and Greek, students may elect French, Italian, German, Russian, Spanish, or Portuguese. In each of these, the course of study includes a survey of the literature in the countries speaking that language. This provides an insight into the culture and history of other lands.

This complicated control panel allows teachers to give individual instruction to language students.

The language lab is becoming a "home away from home" for more and more students as the language departments increasingly emphasize conversational ability and correct pronunciation.

Two French students check the date and time of the production of "L'Alouette" on the Tulane campus.

A Comedy of Errors, produced by the theatre department, received outstanding reviews from the critics.

Fine Arts

To develop the student's proficiency in studio art and to provide him with an understanding of the methods and content of art history are the primary aims of the Department of Art, one of the most outstanding in the South.

Two degrees are offered by the department—the Bachelor of Arts and the Bachelor of Fine Arts with a major in studio art or art history. Studio art majors may concentrate in one of five fields: ceramics, design, painting, printmaking, and sculpture. As the student pursues a program of art studies, broad introductory courses give way to increasingly specialized classes dealing with advanced problems and methods of creation. Art history majors gain a thorough knowledge of artistic backgrounds, theories, and philosophies, and of the economic, social, and political forces which influenced the artist.

Because three hours of studio work are required for one hour's credit, art students receive much practice and individual attention during their undergraduate years which well prepares them for further studies leading to careers.

A vital part of the art curriculum is the sculpture class which introduces students to the problems of creation in a three-dimensional medium.

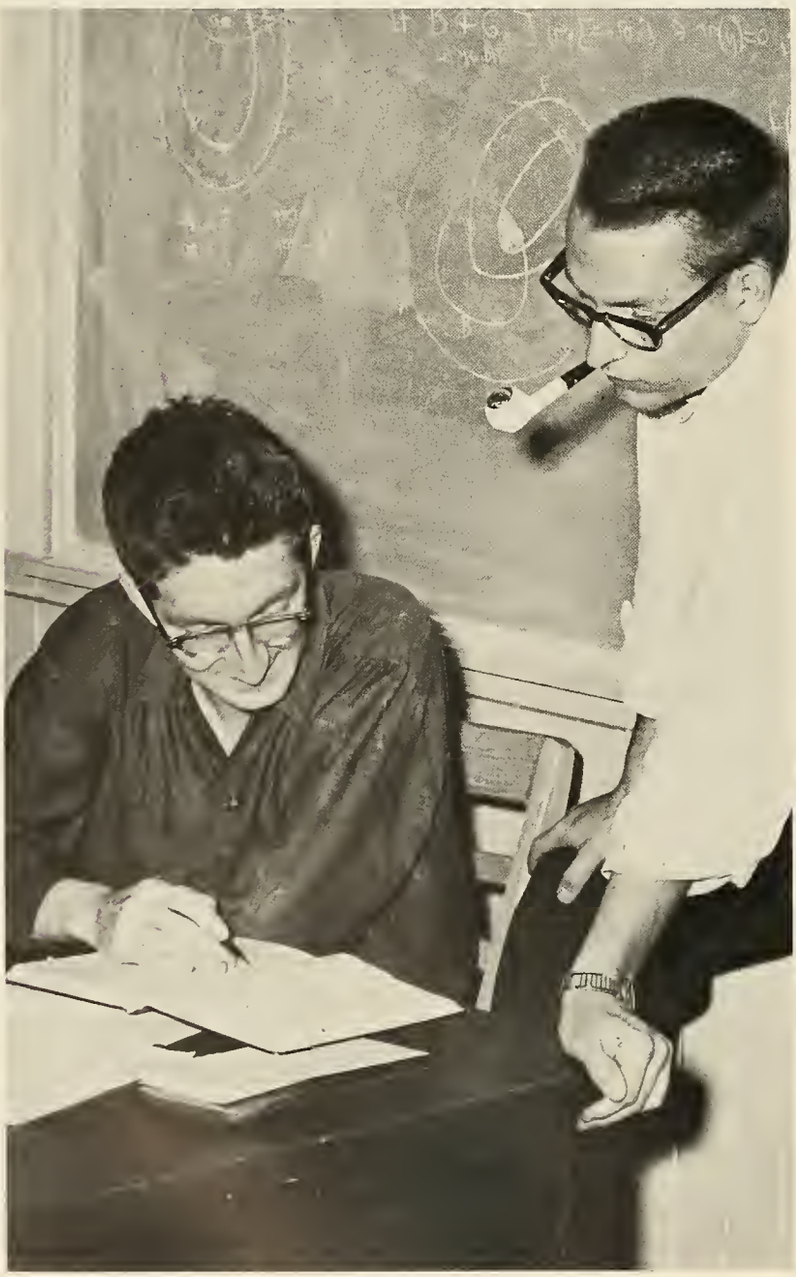
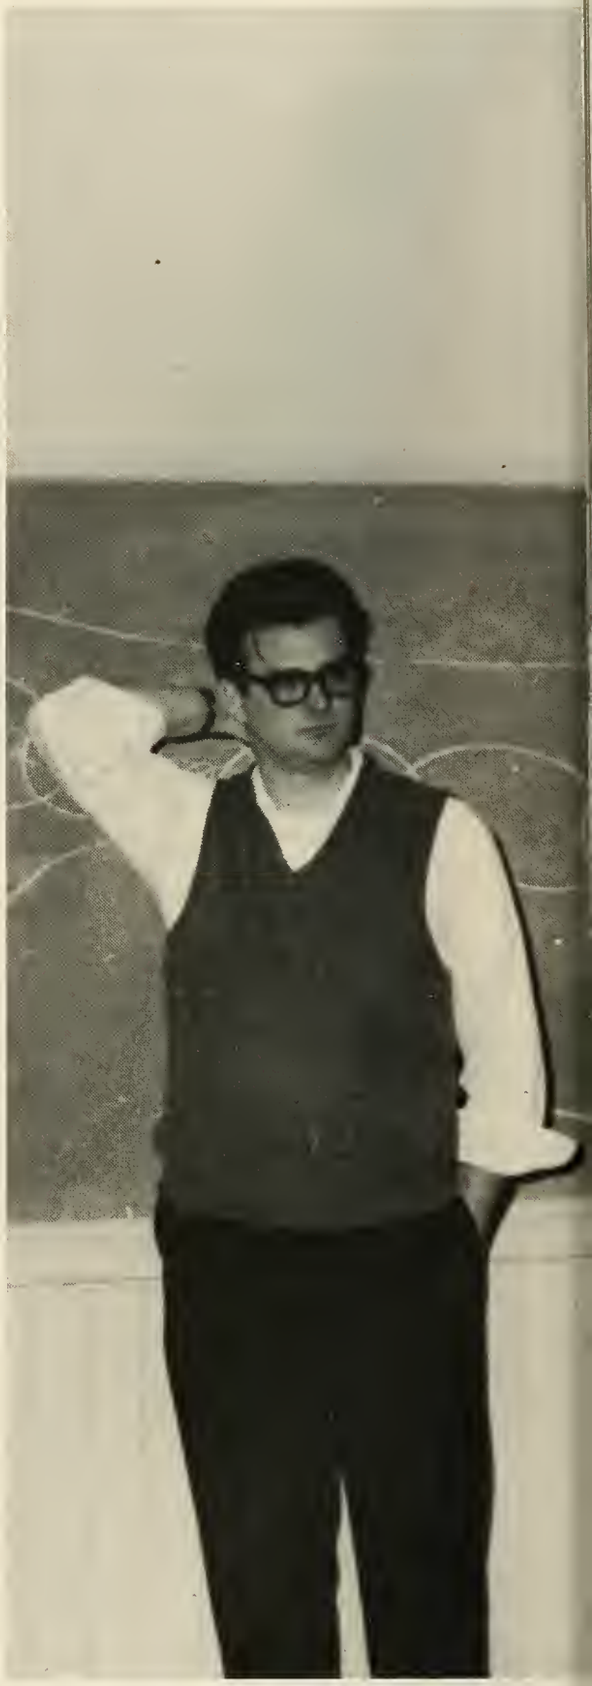
Mathematics

Fred Backlond confers with his teacher, Joe Hanlon, about a complex problem.





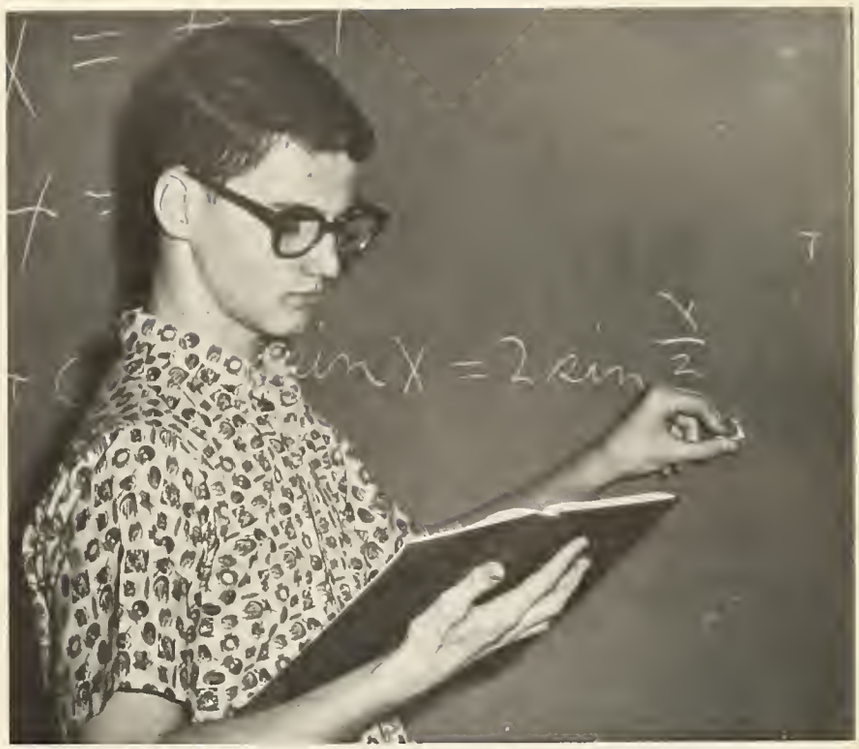
The perennial challenge of mathematics seems to have stumped this mathematician.

Mathematics

Studying the structure and techniques of mathematical analysis and computation is the aim of the department.

This department has been offering for some years a program for freshmen similar to the one sponsored by the Committee on the Undergraduate program of the Mathematical Association of America. Its purposes are to acquaint the student with some leading concepts of modern mathematics early in his study of the subject and to give him an acquaintance with the theory of calculus as well as with its use as a tool. This program serves as an introduction to aspects of modern mathematics which have become important to the physical and behavioral sciences, economics, and medicine.

After the introductory courses, students may elect a variety of subjects. These include techniques in discrete and continuous mathematics, engineering mathematics, mathematics for the biosciences, application of differential equations of electricity and mechanics, the theory of games, and probability.



While pondering the next step in the equation, David Fitzhugh concentrates at the blackboard.

Three theorists exult in the discovery of a mistake which has long thwarted their ardent efforts to arrive at a solution of a difficult problem.

General Studies

The General Studies program includes courses in literature, philosophy, social studies, and art history.

General Literature creates in the student an appreciation of representative types of literature in important stylistic periods.

General Philosophy deals with the more important schools and problems of western philosophy, studied against their historical backgrounds.

General History is a comparative study of historical institutions and ideas.

In Main Currents in American Civilization, students are familiarized with the historical analysis of democratic principles, agrarianism, industrialism, and social movement.

Arts are studied for their own sake and as reflections of the societies and cultures which produced them in the History of European Art.

The General Studies program offers the student a study of the varied aspects of intellectual and cultural life.

Pouring over photographs of art masterpieces, a student compares, contrasts, and criticizes them as he prepares to write an art paper.

Deep in philosophic thought, Jacob Wilensky studies the writings of great thinkers of the past.

Education

To meet the ever increasing need for well qualified teachers is a primary objective of the Tulane Teacher Education Center.

Admission to the curricular which leads to certification to teach in both elementary and secondary schools is by application to the Director in the sophomore year. A broad background in English, science, social studies, mathematics, foreign language, and health and physical education is required of prospective teachers; essentially these courses are those leading to a Bachelor of Art or Science degree.

Professional education acquaints the student with psychology, principles of teaching, methods and techniques, and extends the student's knowledge of schools, pupils, the curriculum, and the community.

Special education consists of subject concentrations chosen as the teaching fields. This advanved work builds on the knowledge acquired in the first two years of the program.

At the completion of the Teacher Education program, students must take the National Teacher Examination.

Physical Education

Appreciation, enjoyment, and understanding of sports and games and increased proficiency are the primary aims of the Physical Education Department. In striving to attain the ideal of "a sound mind in a sound body" Tulane has greatly expanded the physical education program in the past few years.

Four semesters of sports activities are required of each student. All students must pass an intermediate level swimming test before graduation. While courses in such recreational sports as golf, basketball, badminton, and volleyball are stressed, the University offers such diversified classes as "Squash Raquets," "Folk Daneing," and "Tumbling."

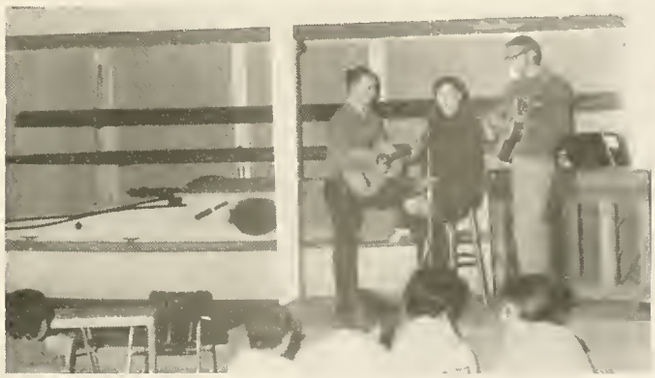
Related subjects in the physical education field are also taught. These courses stress the principles, organization, and administration of physical fitness programs. Basic science programs in anatomy and physiology are also offered by the department. Professional techniques of coaching are taught at the upper levels. Courses concerning health education and curriculum problems are available for prospective teachers.

Girls basketball classes may seem to be more luck than skill, but competent instructors are constantly working to teach Newcombers the fundamentals of the game.

While practicing broad-jumping each student is carefully watched by the instructor and by other students who give advice and encouragement.

Tulanians run track in the shadow of the Sugar Bowl in order to increase their endurance and their speed.

"Never one thing and seldom one person can make for a success. It takes a number of them merging into one perfect whole." Marie Dressler. England's Parliament is a compact, concise, well-planned, and functioning structure. The exterior of the building, designed and ornamented by the repetition of posts and arcades, creates the impression of order and purpose. Just as the building itself is organized by each part fulfilling its particular and vital service, so too do the workings of the government procede in the same ordered manner. Each member considers himself vital to the life of the Commonwealth; he is neither an island nor an islander, but an integral part of the very lifeblood of England. The order of the structure and the function of Parliament are examples to the world of what can be accomplished if every man contributes his part to the whole. Within each of us, there is much that can be shared when we are willing to participate and contribute our individual abilities to a university composed of many and various parts. The life of a student consists of more than study, for study alone can create only islands and islanders. Sometime in the tomorrows that stretch ahead, we too shall be involved in governing, and this we can do only by giving of and developing our organizational talents. Let us then be as Parliament, not as islands nor islanders, but as vital forces which give as well as grow, as can be exemplified in the Tulane and Newcomb . . .



ORGANIZATIONS

The Tulane Student Council, acting as a body through which the voice of the students can be heard, is composed of elected representatives from each of the nine colleges of the University and five officers. This year the council has been under the leadership of Tucker Couvillon, a senior in the Arts and Sciences. Alex Dietz served as Vice-President, Helen Harry as Secretary-Treasurer, Tom Ries as Representative-at-Large, and Rod Chastant as President of the University Center Board. Besides acting as a voice of the students, the Council has direct control over student organizations and the budgeting concerning student affairs.

Working chiefly through standing and special committees, this year's Council has laid the groundwork for several projects which, if accepted, will be of value to both the students and the University. The Budget Committee, under the chairmanship of Russ Herman has completed its proposal to place all of the funds allotted to Student Activities under the Student Council. The Parking Lot Committee, headed by Jerry Goldstein has completed plans for a temporary lot which will handle 150 cars. The Tutoring Committee, chaired by Pat Alverson, has investigated the possibility of establishing a tutoring society here at Tulane. Bill Pitts and his Reading Period Committee are completing a recommendation which will give the students the four days preceeding final exams for reviewing with no classes. The N.S.A. Committee under Bill O'Neill, the Cafeteria Committee under Bill Williams, the Elections Committee under Cork Steiner, and several others have also contributed to make this a very successful year for the Student Council.

Thursday night, 6:45—UC Board Meeting! Composed of ten committee chairmen, four officers and one regional coordinator, the University Center Board co-ordinates, discusses and evaluates the procedures of the entire program throughout the year. The "program," which ranges from that favorite comic, Bob Hope, to the winner of the regional pool tournament. Certain events of the year of 1963-64 make the UC Program one which is unique. Though the committees retain their previous titles, the activities of this year were varied, and each event presented a kaleidoscope of successes, problems, and excitement which produced an element of individuality in this year's program. Off to a booming start with UC Open House, the committees then branched into their own areas of specialization.

A captivating Artist Series, featuring such performers as Carlos Montoya and Marian Anderson, was sponsored by the Music Committee. Other outstanding activities of this committee included the A Cappella Choir Concert and Christmas Night at Tulane. The Fine Arts Committee was particularly busy with the presentation of the Fine Arts Film Series as second semester emphasized "The Development of Cinematic Comedy." The art division of the committee exhabited paintings and prints by such artists as Sister Mary Corita, Rouault, Picasso, Renoir and Rembrant in the UC Lounge.

Cosmopolitan's Christmas Dance and Easter Egg Hunt were excellent means by which the international students gained an insight into American customs. This transition was further emphasized by the committee's "big sister-brother" sponsor system. Spotlighters Committee, in its truest sense, "spotlighted" numerous talented Tulanians in both the Freshman Talent Show and the Campuswide Talent Show, "A'fair to Remember." The committee also provided an impetus to the realm of entertainment with the presentation of the Grapes and Allen Show. The Journalism Symposium, sponsored by the Lyceum Committee, consisted of seven distinguished Tulane alumni, including Hodding Carter as moderator. Another successful program sponsored by Lyceum this year was the appearance of Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, who is the director of Harvard University Center for International Affairs and an authority on nuclear strategy. This program was especially enjoyed by political scientists!

Coordinate Campus Entertainment, Activities

Allan Yasnyi, Master of Ceremonies of many University Center productions, never fails to keep his audience chuckling.

Remember the Homecoming Dance? This year the Lagniappes Committee can boast of its being a huge success! The committee also sponsored a Campus Lover Dance February 14 and Spring Weekend where "high-hecled sneakers" blasted the scene. As a member of Spirit Council, the committee helped organize a Garden Beer Pep Rally with folk singers for entertainment. The Hospitality Committee literally "rolled out the red carpet" for the Swedish midshipmen who visited the campus while docked in New Orleans. Caffeine Capers on Wednesday afternoons and ushering at various events are also important activities of this committee.

The Recreation Committee is encompassed in the wide variety of programming to the student's interest. Known for its versatility, this committee handled tournaments in billards, bowling and tennis as well as in chess and bridge. How many persons have asked, "What is PADOHAD?" The answer to this question can be observed in the banners made for various important events and the particularly colorful mobile in the UC for Homecoming. The committee also sponsors "Hanging of the Greens" which is the means by which the UC is decorated for the Christmas season. No organization can survive without the aid of Public Relations. This year our Public Relations Committee started the all-important job of compiling material for our scrapbooks. We were very fortunate to have a beautiful pictorial scrapbook donated to the UC Program by Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Lyons. Public Relations delegates attended meetings of each of the other committees to assist them in publicizing events.

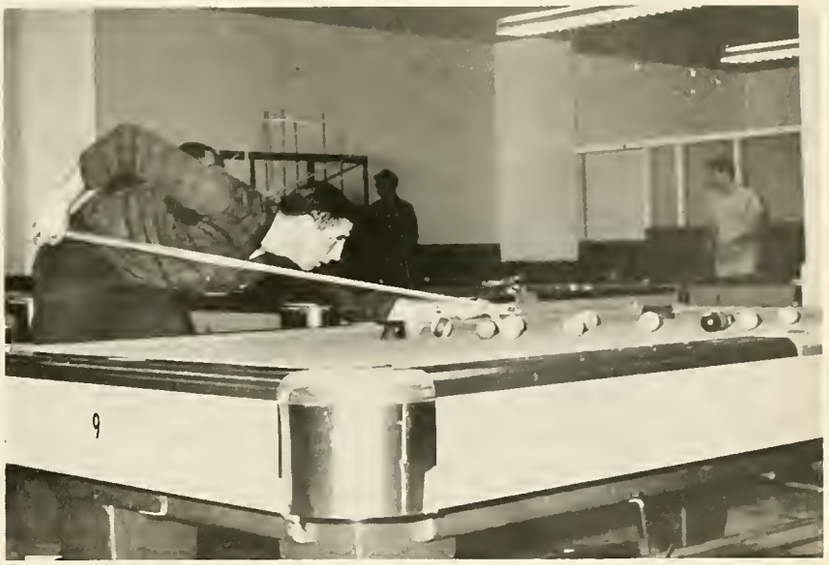
Always planning for the future, the University Center Board attempts to further its programming by providing Tulane students, faculty, alumni and guests with more and varied programs in all fields.

Parties, Programs, Lectures Mark Success Of

In addition to the major campus dances, Lagniappes sponsored a successful street dance-pep rally in the early fall.

Decorations by Padohad enhanced the University Center Open House and advertised the varied activities of other UC committees.

Tulane's first Hootenanny, sponsored by the Hospitality Committee, utilized student talent.



Using the vast facilities of the UC, the Recreation Committee helped plan and provide extracurricular activities for the student body.

Committee Plans, Work

Entertaining at the UC Open House was just a beginning of the activities of the Music Committee which planned the Artist Series and brought musical talent to the campus.

The Lyceum Committee planned lectures by nationally known personalities and by Tulane faculty members to provide an atmosphere of intellectual stimulation.

Spotlighters' programs headlined Bob Hope in the spring, but also starred campus talent in well-received variety shows.

Tulane Honor Board

The Tulane Honor Board is the parent organization to the Honor Boards of the various colleges, for it serves to co-ordinate the structures within the University. Under the leadership of the Student Council Vice-President, the University Honor Board consists of two representatives from each college. It decides questions of interpretations of the University honor code.

Newcomb Honor Board

The Honor Board is one of the oldest institutions of Newcomb, and functions as the judiciary branch of the Student Government. It is composed of sixteen student representatives from the various classes and a president, elected by the student body. It is responsible for the maintenance and administration of Newcomb's Honor System, with regard to scholastic endeavor, and for investigation of violations and enforcement of penalties. The Honor Board also supervises all Newcomb elections, and participates in the work of the Student Council.

Tulane Inter-House Council

The Inter-House Council is the main co-ordinating body for the men's residence halls. Its function lies in the supervision of dormitory activities, governing of the residence halls, and general co-ordination of social activities for the dorms.

Highlights of the Inter-Council's year have been its annual auction featuring Bill "The Messiah" Clark; the annual Christmas dance held in Bruff Commons; a series of Saturday night Spring record hops; and bi-monthly meetings featuring Robert's Rules of Order.

The political side of Inter-House Council was revealed in its petition to gain a seat on the Student Council. Also the withdrawal of Irby House marked another of the year's special high points.

Newcomb Inner-House Council

The purpose of the Newcomb Inner-House Council is to develop and maintain an efficient system of self-government among the students in all matters relating to their conduct both individually and as a social group. Inner Council, composed of the elected representatives of the students, has the power of making rules and of inflicting and enforcing penalties to the degree which they find necessary. This system is based on the belief that rules are made for the intelligent individual to use as a guide to a more profitable functioning within any society. The success of the Resident Student Government Association depends upon the individual member to be responsible for upholding its standards, for it is only by the participation of the individual that we can maintain our self-government.

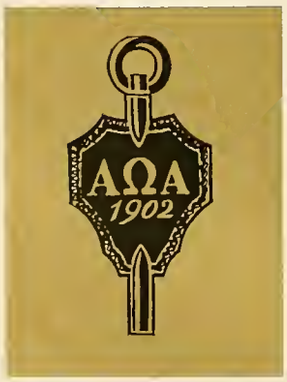
Phi Beta Kappa

Phi Beta Kappa, the oldest college honor society, was founded in 1776 at the College of William and Mary. The Alpha of Louisiana Chapter at Tulane was established in 1909, and recognizes superior attainments in scholarship by students in the College of Arts and Sciences and in Newcomb College.

Beta Gamma Sigma

Beta Gamma Sigma Fraternity rewards and encourages scholarship and accomplishments in all phases of business among students and graduates of the School of Business Administration, and fosters principles of honesty and integrity in business practices. The Alpha Chapter in Louisiana was established at Tulane in 1926. Juniors and seniors are selected by the faculty on the basis of high scholarship and promise of marked ability.

Alpha Omega Alpha



Alpha Omega Alpha bases its membership upon superior scholarship, initiative and independence in thinking and research. Election recognizes not only present accomplishments, but also the promise of future leadership in some phase of medicine. The Tulane Chapter was founded in 1914 and includes in its activities annual lectures by prominent men in various fields of medicine, clinical discussions and an annual banquet.

Order of the Coif

The Order of the Coif, national legal honor society, recognizes senior law students for exceptional ability and performance in the School of Law and in law. Scholastic achievement and leadership, and service to the school and community, are considered in the election of new members. Each year a Louisiana lawyer who has rendered outstanding service to law and to the public is initiated as an honorary member of the chapter.

Tau Beta Pi

Tau Beta Pi, founded in 1885, was established at Tulane in 1936 to recognize the highest accomplishments of junior and senior students in the School of Engineering. Outstanding scholarship, high character and breadth of interest are considered in the selection of members. The society also fosters a spirit of liberal culture in the engineering colleges of America.

Tau Sigma Delta

Tau Sigma Delta, national honor society for architecture students, selects its members for outstanding scholarship, leadership, character, and creative ability. Nominees undergo a pledge period in which the winning sketch in the traditional Gargoyle competition is selected.

Kappa Delta Phi

Kappa Delta Phi, the oldest honorary leadership fraternity on campus, confers membership each year upon no more than ten students from the junior and senior classes, and upon one member of the faculty, for outstanding service and unselfish loyalty to Tulane.

Alpha Sigma Lambda

Alpha Sigma Lambda, national honorary scholarship fraternity of university evening colleges, selects its members for distinguished scholarship and leadership. In addition, the members must carry at least fifteen semester hours in subjects outside his major field. Theta Chapter, organized at Tulane in 1954, revised its original constitution in 1957 to comply with the provisions of the national convention.

Sigma Xi

The Society of the Sigma Xi, founded at Cornell University in 1896, and established at Tulane in 1934, recognizes outstanding achievement in scientific research and proficiency and promise in various fields of science. Undergraduates, graduate students, members of the faculty, and research workers are eligible for membership. The society sponsors a series of public lectures and awards prizes for research papers.

Phi Eta Sigma

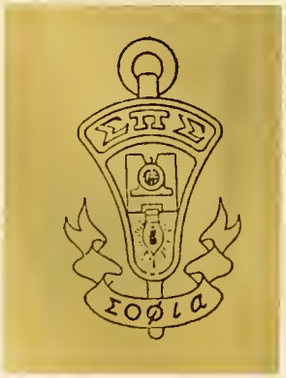
Phi Eta Sigma, national honor society for freshmen men, was established at Tulane in 1954. A 3.5 average or better for the first semester or for the freshman year is the requirement for membership.

Alpha Epsilon Delta

Alpha Epsilon Delta is a national honor society for pre-medical students. The Louisiana Delta chapter was officially installed at Tulane in 1958.

The purpose of the society is to encourage excellence in pre-medical scholarship; to stimulate an appreciation of the importance of pre-medical education in the study of medicine; to promote cooperation and contacts between medical and pre-medical students and educators in developing an adequate program of pre-medical education; and to bind together similarly interested students.

Sigma Pi Sigma



Sigma Pi Sigma, honor society for students majoring in physics, was founded at Davidson College in 1921. Juniors, seniors and graduate students are eligible for membership. The Tulane chapter was established in 1950.

Who's Who
in American Colleges and Universities

The students recognized in Who's Who each year are nominated from approximately 600 colleges and universities. Campus nominating committees are instructed, in making decisions, to consider the student's scholarship, his cooperation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities; his service and citizenship to the school; and his promise of future usefulness. Recognition by Who's Who means that the student was officially recommended from the university or college he attends and then accepted by the organization.

Assets

At the last Newcomb Student Body Meeting of the year, freshman girls, outstanding in leadership, service, scholarship, and school spirit are tapped for Assets, honorary sophomore organization. The new members are elected each year by the outgoing members.

The Assets don white dresses during the year to act as ushers at numerous school functions including the May Day festivities. During fall orientation they are Big Sisters to incoming freshmen.

Eta Sigma Phi

Alpha Chi Chapter of Eta Sigma Phi, national honor classical fraternity, carries out a program designed to fulfill the primary objectives of the organization. These objectives include the encouragement of classical scholarship, the better appreciation of Greek and Roman culture, and the increased fellowship among students of the classics.

Throughout the year lectures on classical subjects are presented. The society jointly sponsors the annual Christmas celebration, Saturnalia, with the classics Department. In addition, the chapter contributes to a national fund providing scholarships for classical study in Greece and Rome.

Beta Beta Beta

Beta Beta Beta, the national biological society, was founded in 1922. The Beta Lambda chapter of Newcomb College aids in stimulating scholarship and interest in the biological sciences.

Its many activities include field trips, speakers, and an annual Christmas party for all biology majors and the faculty.

Clair Brumback, Marilyn Salerno, and Martha Sapp were delegates tothe Regional Tri-Beta Convention in Gainesville, Florida, where they presented papers concerning their National Science Foundation Research projects.

The advisor, Dr. Stuart S. Bamforth and three members, Lida Garrett, Melanie Lewis, and Karlyn Wenger participated in the Junior Year Abroad program during the current year.

La Tertulia

La Tertulia, the Spanish honorary club at Newcomb College, was founded in 1939 with the purpose of maintaining an active interest in the customs, literature and art of Spain and South America. The members are chosen in the spring of each year from those girls who are enrolled in a Spanish course and have an A average in a 100-level course or at least a B average in an upper level course. The annual activities include commemoration of Columbus Day, a Christmas fiesta, Panamerican Day, Cervantes Day, and a final banquet. This year the program also included a debate in Spanish concerning the effects of higher education on women in Spain and in the United States and a "Twelfth Night Party" in January.

Oreades

As the Newcomb Honorary Classics group, Oreades meets throughout the year to promote interest in the classics. The programs vary from fun ceremonies like Saturnalia to interesting lectures. In December, Oreades celebrates the Roman pagan festival Saturnalia with Eta Sigma Phi.

Of special interest to Oreades is the influence that classics have made on our life today. An excellent example here in New Orleans is the Carnival Season. The members are dedicated to the reillumination of Renaissance ideals to help lead out of these Dark Ages.

Alpha Chi Sigma

Alpha Chi Sigma was founded in 1902 to promote friendship and cooperation among those in the field of chemistry, and to advance the study of chemistry both as a science and as a profession. The organization is now represented nationally both by student chapters in leading colleges and universities, and by professional chapters in all major cities. The student chapters, such as Alpha Tau at Tulane, aid students during their college life, whereas the professional chapters help the members upon entering the field after graduation. Membership in the Tulane chapter is open to students majoring either in chemistry or chemical engineering.

Delta Sigma Pi

The presentation of the Rose of Delta Sig at the annual Rose Formal climaxed a whirlwind social season for members of the Gamma Mu chapter of Delta Sigma Pi. The chapter, which has been active on the Tulane campus since 1949, also sponsored tours of local firms, conducted programs with prominent speakers from various fields, and promoted discussions about important topics from today's business world. Each year the chapter enters a national efficiency contest against other chapters, which conform to standards set up by the Central Office. The Gamma Mus always score in the upper echelon of the final standings of this contest.

Scholars And Fellows

The Tulane Scholars and Fellows Program was inaugurated in 1962 for superior students in the College of Arts and Sciences and in Newcomb College. The program arranges special academic counselling to assist the student in coordinating his schedule to adapt the University offerings for superior students to his own abilities, objectives and needs. Basically, participation in the program provides an opportunity for academic advancement and recognition through a carefully planned program of honors courses, independent studies, and other special instructional possibilities not normally available to other students.

Pi Sigma Alpha

Alpha Sigma of Pi Sigma Alpha is the Tulane Chapter of Pi Sigma Alpha National Political Science Honor Society. It has many active members on the Tulane campus from the several colleges of the university.

Requirements for membership include a minimum of a B average in at least 10 hours of political science and standing in the upper third of the respective class rankings. A major in political science is not necessary.

The activities of this year included monthly meeting with guest speakers, each discussing a particular problem in the political science field.

German Club

In order to acquaint the student with the German language, culture, art, and social customs, the German Club of Tulane and Newcomb has presented a varied program of several films on German art, a short Christmas play in verse to illustrate an aspect of German Christmas celebration, a chance for students of German to meet on a social level and try their hand at conversational German, and, in conjunction with Delta Phi Alpha—the German Honorary Fraternity, an evening of German Lieder.

Graduate Business Society

The Graduate Business Administration Society of Tulane University is a new organization, founded in the fall of 1963. It is the successor to the MBA Club which was established in the fall of 1960 as a group for academic and social purposes and which continued on that basis until the formation of the GBA society.

A formal organization of the graduate business students is a logical development in consideration of the growth of the graduate business school. In the academic year 1960—1961, when the informal club was organized, 15 students received MBA degrees. In the fall of 1963, when the society was organized, there were thirty-seven full-time graduate students and this number will continue to grow as the business school develops and expands into a school for graduate business study only. The last undergraduate class of business students was admitted in the fall of 1963.

Tulane Conservative Club

Organized in 1960 as the Young States Righters, the Tulane Conservative Club is dedicated to opposing change which we believe inimical to the Anglo-American heritage of free enterprise and limited constitutional government. The Club attempts to acquaint students with viewpoints different from those of the Liberal academy. The principal activities include the writing and distribution of the magazine, The Liberator, together with the distribution of the Southern Conservative newspaper and occasional literature; and a speakers program. In the past the Club has brought to the campus such personalities as William I. Buckley Jr., J. Strom Thurmond and Tom Anderson. Activities held during the January-May period, 1964, called for campus speeches by Governor George C. Wallace of Alabama, Attorney General P. F. Gremillion of Louisiana, and William T. Buckley Jr., editor of the National Review.

Young Republican Club

The Tulane Young Republican Club is an organization dedicated to the preservation and advancement of the ideals of the National Party and has as its chief function the practical task of taking an active part in the recent and phenomenal upsurge of the Republican Party in the South. This is being accomplished by support of candidates in local elections and by maintenance of ties with the local and state Young Republican organizations. The Club holds monthly meetings at which timely issues are debated, political films are shown and discussed, and speakers are presented.

A. S. C. E.

Established at Tulane's College of Engineering in 1933 the A.S.C.E. Student Chapter today sponsors activities of many types for engineering students. At the bi-monthly meeting speakers and films concerning Civil Engineering are presented. The group also organizes field trips for its members to construction sites, offshore drilling rigs, and fabrication and industrial plants in the New Orleans area. In a lighter vein the A.S.C.E. organizes intramural sports participation for the Department of Civil Engineering in addition to sponsoring several parties for members during the school year.

A. S. M. E.

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers serves as a means of acquainting the Mechanical Engineering student with the practical side of his profession while meeting the men he will join after graduation—men already working as mechanical engineers.

The society at Tulane seeks to accomplish these objectives by monthly meetings, at which gleeful students, having pushed aside scholastic worries, hear stimulating lectures by outstanding members of industry. The members visit modern industrial plants as a means of complimenting the knowledge they already possess.

The Student Chapter of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers attempts to present a realistic picture of engineering to interested students. Guest speakers are invited to give talks on various related topics, and it is through these talks that the students are enabled to learn of engineering opportunities. The student chapter provides the student with a link to the professional world.

Each spring the A. I. Ch. E. student chapters send representatives to the Student Southern Regional Convention, which is conducted in the southern conference. Through these conventions students can learn of activities at the other universities in the South.

I. E. E. E.

The Tulane Student Branch of the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers was formed in order to present a more realistic view of the engineering profession to the college student. The Student Branch strives to attain the dissemination of knowledge of the theory and practice of all phases of electrical engineering as well as to further the professional development of the members.

The student governed group has monthly meetings which generally feature a talk given by a professional engineer. Some of the meetings, however, are set aside for educational scientific movies or technical talks given by students. All of these functions aid in developing the members as professional engineers. In addition, the group sponsors periodic functions for its members.

Louisiana Engineering

The Tulane Student Chapter of the Louisiana Engineering Society has the distinction of being the only technical society in the School of Engineering whose membership is composed of undergraduates and graduates from each of the four major fields of engineering. The organization strives to promote a closer union of the engineering student body by having monthly meetings with guest lecturers speaking on subjects of interest to all engineers.

Other activities of the L.E.S. include field trips and social events. The field trips enable the students to see in practice, the principles they are now studying in the classroom. Nor is the social life of the engineering student neglected, as the L.E.S. assists in all social functions sponsored by the various technical societies of the School of Engineering. In addition, the L.E.S. sponsors an outdoor barbecue

The Pre-Medical Society

Now in its sixteenth year, the Pre-Medical Society is one of the most successful organizations on campus. The primary goal of this society is to acquaint all undergraduate pre-medical students with their chosen profession. This end is achieved through bi-weekly films, most of which are in color and sound, that deal with the medical specialties and areas of general interest. Some of the films shown in the past include: "Orthopedic Surgery," etc. The highlight of the year is usually the meeting at which two films dealing with birth, "Normal Delivery," and "Lower Caesarean Section" are shown. At all meetings, a doctor who specializes in the particular field being covered by the film is present to answer any questions. A tour through Charity Hospital and Tulane Medical School, and a steak dinner banquet provide a thrilling climax to the Pre-Medical Society's year.

PRE-MEDICAL SOCIETY, FRONT ROW: Bernard Barrett, Claremont Carter, Charles Goodwin, Corresponding Secretary; Steven Zegar, President; Mark Kalish, Treasurer; Charles Wallace, Stanley Linnick. Phi Chi Theta

Women enrolled in the School of Business Administration as well as Economics majors at Newcomb are eligible for membership in the Alpha Xi chapter of Phi Chi Theta. The chapter was re-activated in May, 1962, after three years of inactivity, and it was at this time that Newcomb Economics majors were admitted to the fraternity. In the brief time since its reactivation the chapter has striven to become more active in the Business School and on the campus. In many of its activities, Alpha Xi works in cooperation with the Beta Gamma chapter at Loyola, as well as other Business school organizations, to stimulate interest in the field of business administration. Phi Chi Theta presents annual awards to the outstanding freshman and outstanding senior women in the Business School, as well as sponsoring professional speakers for its members.

On the lighter side is the annual Christmas party which Phi Chi Theta sponsors for faculty and staff.

Beta Alpha Psi

Beta Alpha Psi is a national honorary fraternity in the field of accounting. The society recognizes and honors scholastic ability and proficiency in accounting.

The local chapter, Beta Nu, stimulates interest and promotes the high ethical standards of the profession through its meetings. Prominent members of the accounting profession relate various aspects of accounting to the business world.

Mock Moot Court trials serve to prepare senior law students for cases ahead.

The Moot Court, organized on a competitive basis, conducts a program designed to give all law students experience in preparing and arguing cases under actual courtroom conditions. Justices of the Moot Court consist of junior and senior law students selected on the basis of scholarship. The Chief Justice and the Recorder are elected from the membership.

The climax of the competition is in the third year, when the two teams who have survived the preliminary elimination rounds argue before the Supreme Court of the State of Louisiana.

Phi Alpha Delta

Phi Alpha Delta was founded in Chicago on November 8, 1902, to develop a strong bond among the members of the different classes at the various law schools; to form a strong link between the schools and their former students; and to establish a widespread exchange for the interchange of business, information, and matters of common interest to the members of the fraternity.

Phi Alpha Delta has more active chapters than any other law fraternity, although its chapters are restricted to law schools accredited by the American Bar Association.

The Tulane chapter's activities are focused on professional and social functions which include addresses by prominent members of the bench and bar.

Phi Delta Phi

Founded in 1869 at the University of Michigan, the international legal fraternity of Phi Delta Phi expanded to the White Inn chapter at Tulane in 1911. The brothers of the White Inn join legal students at seventy-three other student inns throughout the world for the advancement of high scholarship and culture, the opposition to corrupt practices, and rigid adherence to a code of professional ethics.

Inspired by a dedicated group of officers, the luminaries of Phi Delta Phi lead the Law School in all fields of student endeavor, from the academic spectrum to the social. Beginning with the early fall party, and followed by several banquets and many kegs of beer, the men of the White Inn, ably assisted by the largest pledge class in years, proved that "all work and no play" does not apply to Phi Delta Phi.

Four Final Deadlines

The Jambalaya Staff, well known for its unanswered football and 100 mile hike challenges with the Hullabaloo Staff, spent a year alternately playing and working (depending on which deadline was next). Although more time was spent working at playing than playing at working, the Jambalaya did succeed in meeting all deadlines. Many nights the staff closed the University Center and sent Charlie, the Greenie Cop, home for some well-needed hours of relaxation.

The inspiration and backbone of strength for the entire staff was Danny Schwartz, the 1964 Jambalaya editor. Danny, whose nickname is NATO (No Action Talk Only), kept all happy and smiling even when he himself couldn't smile. Danny's favorite food is "Candy Kisses" which fits in well with his nickname. Allan Yasnyi, business manager, who spent more time at Campus Nite than selling ads, successfully plunged the entire book into blissful debt. However, Jeff Yeager's talents as an amateur photographer and expert dark-room manipulator were constant forces behind the staff's efforts. Mike Harris, bow-legged sports editor, born on a saddle in St. Louis, Missouri, whose favorite pastime (besides laughing) is cooking, kept the staff well-fed and healthy with occasional meals right from Daddy Harris' kitchen. Tom Jones, between tests, patched together the organizations section with some glue and some plagiaristic talents. Jack Cohen, photographer, spent the entire year devising ways to get Georgia "peaches" into the Jambalaya. The crowning glory of the male side of the staff was fraternity editor, Doug Conner, who invited all the crowned heads of Europe to his fraternity formal, and finding they couldn't come, decided to portray them himself, in top hat, tails, cane and cape.

To achieve the harmonious equilibrium requisite for the production of an outstanding yearbook, the Jambalaya staff was filled with beautiful females. First on the list was Mary Ann Hyde, efficient, self-contained assistant editor who talked mostly between working and worked sometimes between talking. Next was Karen Deener, the untouchable class editor, who knew more about the people in the pictures than how to sort them. Norma May, sorority editor, prospered unbelievably well by her affiliation with the staff as can be evidenced through her membership on both the Homecoming and Jambalaya beauty courts. Mary Miller, curriculum editor, who knew more about cropping pictures than did the editor, spent more time with the basketball team than with the Jambalaya staff. Judi Meitin, "Jamb-a-lay-a" scheduling editor, scheduled many pictures to help insure freedom of the press and freedom of expression. Zuma Lee Gribben, features editor, had such a hard time resisting Nicky's blue eyes that she didn't even stay for the presentation of Miss Pauline Tulane at the Pan-Hel Formal. Marsha Sidel, slim, trim copy editor, controlled various muscles and finished the bulk of her work before Spring days turned her thoughts elsewhere. Captioning her way into the office, assistant copy editor Janet Hendrick had a decided love for beauty parlors, especially their ability to cut hair evenly. Mary Sumner, recognizing that persistance is paramount, used her talents to become a wise old owl. Rounding out the list was constant Connie Cudd, assistant class editor, who dropped her class section and indexing duties at any opportunity to take messages up to the Dean's office on the 2nd floor. The most precious possession of the Jambalaya staff was its adopted mascot "Doc," who was the only happy one around during deadline week.

"Willie" Weiss, the epitome of "coolness," relaxes while his staff does the work.

Hullaballoo Enjoys Running Feud With Jambalaya

Associate editor Teel Salaun, with the future always in mind, contentedly gets her work done.

Under the brilliant leadership of William Weiss, considerable staff additions and deletions and a running fued with the JAMBALAYA, the 1963-64 Hullabaloo once again proved that it is the bright shining star of Tulane communications media.

William Weiss, the ersatz editor of this powerful organ, each week was able to write editorials which were shining examples of how not to write editorials. Bill worked under the motto of "Desire nothing in this world but time to do your work, love, kisses, serious talk, laughter, great works of art, and a Monza convertible so you can get to these things more quickly."

Associate editor Teel (sic) Salaun tried valiantly to walk at a medium pace but failed and was rumored to be entering the walking championships of the world during the summer.

Joanne Omang, the expatriate managing editor from England, who wanted to be loved for her mind and not her body, acted as a counterbalance to the swift talking Teel (sic) by speaking 300 syllables a minute.

Ex-J.Y.A.'er Joanne O'Mang doesn't seem to have too much copy to read.

Entertainment editor Roi Frumkes entertains himself with "Hulla" photographs.

Barry Jacobs, a known plagiarizer of the news service sports copy, checks over his scoop.

While Publishing Paper

Barry (Ole Miss is number one) Jacobs tried hard to stave off the advances of Big Ten and Texas football dominance but had to give in at the end.

Entertainment editor Roi (ne Roy) Frumkes wrote about most anything that had to do with the movies and in a way that was uncomprehensible to every reader.

Clark Rowley, feature editor, overcame the handicap of rooming with the paper's favorite letter writer, and was able to uncover features which would have been better left covered.

John Musser, the paper's representative in almost everything, and social butterfly, found time to fit the paper in between many of his other duties.

Trying to keep the paper from going into the red, which was an impossible task, was Marshall Kragen, the only person on campus with a record player in his car. In his spare time he sparred with J. Bryan Wagner, advertising manager and chief advocate of large editions.

And, when asked for the reason behind the paper's success, the staff unanimously replied that "When you're as great as we are, it is hard to be humble."

Dick Rivers, controversial columnist, prides himself on finding his name exploited more times in letters to the editor than in his own by-line.

Marshall Kragen, business manager, keeps track of the Hullaballoo's meager share of pennies.

W. T. U. L. Keeps Campus Informed and Entertained

The most complex part of the Tulane communications system is the Wtul, the ham, although not amateur, radio station. The program schedule consists mainly of music, weather, and news announcements. The station also attempts to keep Tulanians informed with the news around campus. Notable personalities include Wayne Harper, general manager; J. K. Pollard, program director; Jeff Johnson, technical director; and Dick Spero, chief announcer. Any student interested can participate once given a spot through an audition system. The station begins live broadcasting at 4:00 P. M. and continues until 12:00 M. During the remainder of the day recorded music is played. The highlight of the 1963-64 year was the acquisition of two new transmitters for better reception at Tulane dormitories.

Disc jockey Dick Spero seems to be enjoying his position as chief table turner on WTUL.

Bureaucracy, Efficient Staff Plague Directory

The Student Directory, designed to direct students, appeared earlier this year than it had in the past three years. This, in itself, was an amazing accomplishment for its small, but hardworking staff. Fighting almost insurmountable odds (bureaucracy, poor handwriting, etc.), the staff managed to publish a Directory that contained more names and fewer mistakes than ever before. A small mistake occurred when the Newcomb dorm list was mistakenly inserted on the staff page; however, business-like Dave Klapper straightened things out in his usual efficient manner. Editor Norman Silber, a firm believer in the spoils system, was kept busy by his executive assistant, even while he was making his big grab for power in the Jambalaya.

Prospects are for a bright and cheery future for the Student Directory. Next year, the staff expects that people will even buy copies of it.

Stopping by the Student Directory office for a few minutes, Margery Held advises business manager Dave Klapper.

Tulane Band Entertains At Annual Spring Concert

Drawing its membership from all colleges of the University, the Tulane University Band with its renowned director-composer, John J. Morrissey, is considered to be one of the finest concert bands in the South. The band provides entertainment for students and townspeople through several appearances during the year in which a wide variety of music is played.

One of the highlights of the year is the annual four day tour when the band spreads the fame of Tulane by playing for high schools in the South. The biggest event of the year, however, is the Annual Spring Concert when an outstanding program, often featuring new works by John Morrissey, is presented on three consecutive nights.

Director-composer John J. Morrissey keeps the band on their toes during long weekly rehearsals.

The National Collegiate Players is a national honorary fraternity created to foster educational theater throughout the country by officially recognizing and encouraging outstanding individuals in university theater.

Following highest national standards, the Tulane Chapter has striven to elect to membership only those individuals whose contributions to Tulane theater have been continually distinguished in excellence. With this membership is bestowed national honor.

TUT Members Praticipate In Major Productions

The Tulane University Theater (TUT) is composed of participants in two of the four major productions offered by the Tulane Theater Department. Tryouts for any phase of the productions, cast or crew, are open to the members of the student body, faculty and staff.

The regular theatre season includes four major productions under the direction of faculty members, and three productions under the direction of graduate students in partial fulfillment of the M.F.A. requirements in Theatre. The plays are produced in two intimate, air-conditioned theatres—a proscenium theatre and an arena theatre.

In addition to participating in the productions, students also aid in the organization and supervision of the theatre's social activities such as the annual awards banquet where outstanding students receive recognition for their superior contributions to various phases of drama. Upon completion of the Sophomore year and the requirements for membership, a student may be elected to Tulane's chapter of Pi Epsilon Delta, an honorary dramatic fraternity.

Tulanians Sing At Various Official Functions

The Tulanians were formed in the Spring of 1960 from the members of the Tulane Choir. The impetus for becoming an organization came from the United States Army, which offered the group an invitation to sing for the troops in Northern Europe. After little persuasion, the group accepted the invitation and received rave notices for its thirty performances, including a citation from the Secretary of the Army.

Mr. Louis Berndt is the talented director of the group. He is assisted by Miss Agatha Newitt, who helps with the concert arrangements. The twenty members are selected by the director through auditions when there are openings. The group performs for official functions such as the Alumni Banquet, Homecoming, U. C. Banquet, and the Athletic dinner.

A Cappella Choir Is Ambassador of Good Will

During 1963 the Tulane-Newcomb A Cappella Choir achieved such success on a tour to Mexico that during 1964 they were once again able to make an extended tour, giving concerts in Louisiana, Texas, as well as ten cities in Mexico.

At each concert the choir was warmly received by a large audience and the members of the choir were praised highly in the press both for their musical excellence and their effectiveness as ambassadors of goodwill. Prof. John M. Kuypers was the conductor of the choir and tour arrangements were made by Miss Agatha Newitt.

In addition to its many campus appearances and the annual tour, the choir also sang the Symphony of Psalms by Stravinsky and Mass In G by Shubert in combination with the New Orleans Concert Choir and the New Orleans Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra under Werner Torkanowsky. The highlight of the year's Program was the annual Spring Concert performed for a full house at Dixon Hall.

Now in its tenth year, the Tulane-Newcomb Junior Year Abroad Program offers honor students the opportunity to spend a collegiate year at major European universities following courses of study for which they will receive cerdit toward their degrees.

Participants in the program attend approximately forty European universities in England, Germany, Italy, France, Ireland, Scotland, Spain. Switzerland, and Wales.

Living with families or in dormitories with fellow European students provides an intensive and unique medium for mutual cultural understanding and exchange. The vacation periods and summer holiday allow an unequaled travel opportunity. and most participants get the chance to visit the fountainheads and historic centers of Western civilization. and at the same time experience the phenomenon of twentieth-century modern Europe.

The sailing fleet consists of ten Ganets, one twenty-eight foot Luder, and three power craft. The club offers a complete training program for novice members and a full racing schedule for the skippers.

T. U.'s sailing club is one of the largest and most active student organizations on campus. Besides sailing, the club has acquired a reputation for its wild social affairs. Each semester the club hosts several novice cruises, a regatta dance, a number of beer busts, and a Trophy Banquet. During the second semester an annual overnight cruise across Lake Ponchartrain is held and never fails to be a success.

Glendy Burke Is Oldest Organization On Campus

The oldest organization on campus, the Glendy Burke literary and Debating Society, participates in competitive forensic events across the country. Members have distinguished themselves in tournaments at such places as Chicago, Illinois; Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; Fort Worth, Texas; Tallahassee, Florida; Boston, Massachusetts; Birmingham, Alabama, and this year won overall second in the Boston College Tournament in the Eastern Conference. In addition to representing Tulane in out-of-town events, Glendy Burke each year holds two speech tournaments of its own. The Glendy Burke High School Speech Tournament, held each January, is the largest of its kind in the South. Glendy Burke also sponsors its famous Mardi Gras Invitational Tournament, which is attended by a selected group of the most outstanding college speakers across the country and also sponsored debates for Student Council elections.

The club maintains an amateur radio station in the Air Force ROTC building. From this station, two-way contact has been made with all the 50 states and numerous foreign countries. In the past, the club has held classes in the Morse Code and radio theory for those persons interested in joining the "ham" fraternity. In addition the club provides a service to the student body by offering to handle messages to their homes free of cost.

The Arab Club

The Arab Club at Tulane, affiliated with the organization of Arab Students in the U. S. and with the student council, aims at promoting mutual understanding between Arab, American and other foreign students. The Arab members represent seven Arabian countries, although membership is open to Tulane faculty and students. The activities include lectures, talks, travelogues (films, colored slides), and picnics where Arabian dishes are served. An exhibit representative of Arab industries, art and culture is held during February. A Sports Committee organizes soccer and volley ball teams, while other committees study the possibility of teaching the Arabic language to interested persons. The highlight activity is the annual banquet held late in Spring where Arabian food, music and program are presented. American students, who are members of the club, have the opportunity to tour Arab countries during the summer at a very low cost.

Alpha Phi Omega

The year of 1964 marks the 23rd anniversary of Alpha Phi Omega National Service fraternity on the Tulane campus. Over these years the men of APO have worked together to fulfill a threefold purpose: to develop lasting friendships, to provide leadership for worthwhile activities on campus, and to serve the school, community, and nation by undertaking our own special projects and assisting with others upon request.

The range of the service provided by Tulane's Gamma Upsilon Chapter is indicated by the variety of the group's activities. Acting as hosts for the Welcome Freshman Dance and other University sponsored functions, providing an information booth during registration, decorating a campus Christmas tree, and distributing material for the Peace Corps are among the many activities of Alpha Phi Omega.

The Player-of-the-Week board in the U.C., goal-post decorating, and an academic spirit drive rounded out the high spots of the year.

With 70 members strong, Greenbackers strove further than ever this year, providing the student body with added encouragement to support the University's athletic and academic activities. The Arnold Air Society

Arnold Air Society

The Arnold Air Society was founded in 1947 at the University of Cincinnati as a means of uniting Air Force ROTC cadets. Named in honor of General H. H. "Hap" Arnold, the Society is social, honorary and professional in nature. In the past few years, however, the emphasis has gone to the word "professional," as the Society's major role has been to promote greater understanding and cooperation between the civilian population and the military.

Since the conception of the Society in 1947 it has spread to more than one hundred sixty colleges and universities throughout the United States, with each unit being organized at the squadron level. The squadron located at Tulane University is the Alvin Callender Squadron.

Anchor and Chain

Anchor & Chain is a society for members of Navy ROTC designed to promote leadership and character in the Unit. Membership is open to all students in the Navy ROTC. The society plans and sponsors the social events for the midshipmen battalion as well as improving the appearance of the Navy Building.

Scabbard and Blade

E Company, 8th Regiment is one of the 180 companies which form the National Society of Scabbard and Blade. On the Tulane campus, the society is comprised of elected Army, Air Force, and Navy ROTC cadets who become eligible for membership by exhibiting outstanding military bearing in their respective units and by maintaining a satisfactory overall scholastic average.

The purpose of the Society is to unite in closer relationship the military departments on the Tulane campus, to preserve and develop the essential qualities of good and efficient military officers, and to prepare cadets to take a more active part in the military affairs of their communities. Above all, Scabbard and Blade attempts to present intelligent information concerning the military requirement of our country.

Pershing Rifles

The National Society of Pershing Rifles is an honorary society designed to foster the development of the highest ideals of the military profession. Other goals of the Pershing Rifles are the promotion of citizenship, the proper recognition of proficiency in the military arts and sciences, and the preservation of an adequate system of national defense. The Pershing Rifles are organized into a separate platoon and are designated as "K" Company. The society was established at Tulane in 1952. The requirements for membership are a high standing in Military Science and satisfactory completion of the prescribed pledge period. The organization participates in exhibitions and drill competitions on and off campus.

Angel Flight

The Angel Flight is an honorary service organization sponsored by the Arnold Air Society, a selective Air Force ROTC cadet organization which is named in honor of the late General H. H. "Hap" Arnold, the first Army Air Corps Chief of Staff. The history of Angel Flight begins at the University of Omaha in February, 1952, where a group known as the "Sponsor Corps" was organized. This new concept quickly spread and by 1957 the "Angel Flight" had become a national idea with many names, uniforms, and activities. In April, 1959, in New York City during the Eighth Annual Conclave of the Arnold Air Society, the Angel Flight became a national organization with a common purpose. It is recognized by the United States Air Force and receives a great deal of support from the Air Force Association through Arnold Air Society sponsorship.

The Tulane Angel Flight was organized in the spring of 1962, by twenty-five charter members, including two transfer Angels from L.S.U. In addition to being official hostesses for both Newcomb College and the university, the Angels attend weekly drill with the Air Force ROTC, sit in booths for school elections, assist in various projects such as the J.F.K. Memorial Fund, guide prospective students and other interested groups around Newcomb, and serve in a hostess capacity for different university parties. Tulane's Alvin Callendar Flight became nationally affiliated on January 11, 1964, and had a wing insignia presentation by Dean Hubbard. A Rush program for new members takes place each spring.

Air Force Commissions

Detachment 320 exists for the purpose of training future officers for leadership positions in the United States Air Force's combined aero-space team. To accomplish this objective cadets go through a program of combined drill, classwork, and practical preparation. The program lasts four years. It utilizes the skills of the regular officers to the utmost degree, and channels the enthusiasm of the basic cadets into the experience of the upperclassmen.

The Basic Course during the freshman and sophomore years consists mainly of achieving drill proficiency and developing leadership potential. At the same time, introductory courses concerning the history of the USAF, career fields, and the principles of warfare are taken.

AFROTC cadets also go places. This year they visited such places as England Air Force Base, Florida to see aerial fire-power demonstrations and Alvin Callendar Field here in New Orleans to study the functioning of a base.

The Advanced Course, composed of academically and physically qualified cadets, provides for more intense academic instruction and the opportunity of exercising command positions on the Drill Field and within the Detachment itself. Summer training camp at an Air Base provides for an actual taste of military life, and the Flight Instruction Program enables the cadets in the pilot category to obtain their private flying licenses.

All time is not spent in professional studies, however. For instance, during the Fall the highlight of the intramural season was Air Force victories over Army and Navy in touch football. In other areas, the Special Flights have already given an indication of their potential by receiving awards in the Mardis Gras parades. The social life is enjoyed by everyone. Activities this year included two military balls plus a number of cocktail parties and get-together. This was also an outstanding year as the group expanded to three squadrons due to increased enrollment and numerous transfer cadets to the unit. This year also saw the largest class to be commissioned.

As a final view, at the end of four years the program has become more than a mere "course." It is a way of life. The cadets are proud of their blue uniforms; of their pretty sponsors; of their red and white bereted marching units. At the end of the four years, they are not only fully qualified to defend their country, they have more perfect understanding of it, and the organization which helps to defend it. In the final analysis this is the mission of the detachment, and one in which it is succeeding well.

Army Presents Sponsors

Tulane has the only voluntary Transportation Corps ROTC unit in the United States, and, consequently, also a chapter of the National Defense Transportation Association, which integrates the role of transportation and the Army.

The Army ROTC program, four years of classroom and applied training, prepares its cadets for leadership in today's modern Army and benefits them in all endeavors of life.

Upon completing the Basic Course, Army ROTC students may take the Advance Course leading to a commission of Second Lieutenant, United States Army Reserve. In addition, distinguished military graduates may apply for a Regular Army commission.

Basic training is simulated by six weeks of summer camp during the summer of the cadet's junior year. The brigade itself offers him the opportunity to take part in a drill team, band, rifle team, several military organizations, intramural athletics, and social events.

The Brigade Staff is selected on the basis of classroom and drill field performance on the campus and summer camp performance. They are responsible for Lt. Colonel G. Rials, the Professor of Military Science, is ably assisted by this year's Cadet Brigade Commander. Cadet Colonel John W. Vining, of Decator, Georgia leads the brigade, assisted by his staff. Tulane is one of the highest rated Senior ROTC units in the Fourth Army area.

The Pershing Rifles Drill Team has won numerous awards throughout the South in precision drill competitions. Important guests of the University are often greeted by an honor guard from the PR's.

The social highlight of the year was the 16th Annual Military Ball, held in February. This year, as in the past, co-ed sponsors from Newcomb College and Tulane University were chosen to represent each unit and were presented at the Military Ball.

In June, the senior cadets receive their commissions as Second Lieutenants in the United States Army, ready to take their places in the defense systems of the United States. The Tulane Unit, with a program designed to produce efficient, well-trained reserve officers, will once again offer new blood for active duty in the United States Army.

NROTC's Weekly Parades

The Navy ROTC is a four year program designed to equip young men with the basic knowledge and skill necessary to become commissioned officers in the United States Naval Service. The NROTC develops the natural leadership and executive abilities of each individual so that he will be able to accept the tremendous responsibilities incumbent upon Commissioned Officers.

Tulane is one of fifty-two universities in the United States that has a Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps, and one of only twelve universities whose NROTC unit offers a course leading to a commission in the U. S. Navy Supply Corps. Also available to selected students is a course leading to a commission in the United States Marine Corps. The academic and military phases of the program are taught by Naval and Marine Corps Officers, well qualified by education, experience, and training.

The Tulane NROTC Unit is an active supporter of sports here at the University. Last year saw the introduction of two brass cannons, manned by Midshipmen gun crews, at Tulane football games. These cannons are fired to signal a Tulane touchdown. The NROTC drill team is always eager to perform during half-time at football games and at other public events.

Social life isn't neglected by the Midshipmen.

Representative Herbert and Colonel Bross take the review as Company "C" Commander executes a smart "Eyes Right" during review held in honor of Tulane Alumni and Navy Day.

Are Colorful Sight

There are three major social events each year. In the fall the "Welcome Aboard Ball" gives new Midshipmen a chance to get acquainted and all Midshipmen a chance to renew friendships on a social level. This formal ball is followed in the Spring by a Battalion picnic. In May the "Farewell Ball" is held in honor of the graduating Midshipmen who are soon to be commissioned.

A weekly parade is held on Friday on the drill field adjacent to the Student Center. It is always a colorful sight as the Battalion of Midshipmen passes in review to the strains of martial music provided by the NROTC Drum and Bugle Corps.

The annual President's Review and Awards Day Ceremony is the climax of NROTC activities for the academic year. The President of the University is invited to review the parade on Awards Day. Prior to the review, awards are presented to outstanding Midshipmen for excellence in both academic and military organizations and individuals.

It is on Awards Day that the Battalion Colors are awarded to the Company which has won the Battalion competition for excellence in military drill and sports. The Midshipmen Company Commander of the winning company selects the Color Girl who assists in formally presenting the Battalion Colors to the Color Company.

Colors are presented at Color Company Color Girl Ceremonies on Awards Day.

"Ay, in every truth, pleasure is a freedom song and I fain would have you using it with fullness of heart; yet I would not have you lose your hearts in the singing." Kahlil Gibran. The ancient civilization of Greece permeated by history, culture and beauty established patterns of life which guide the behavior of man in today's world. Just as we see that the Greeks established patterns of philosophy and art and education, so too do we see that they established a pattern of pleasure. We gaze up at this magnificent Greek ruin, "The Parthenon" and we see a civilization seeking the ideal, an ideal expressed even in their architecture. Yet, they did not neglect to include in their ideal a time for pleasure. So too do our campus Greeks contribute to the full life, the ideal life. Fun, enjoyment, laughter—all these imbed the seed of spirit and enthusiasm so necessary to insure eternal youth. Trying desperately to remove the thorns of apathy and indifference, our fraternal orders inspire us in pleasure and in joy. However, the secret of the Greek ideal was temperance, temperance of art and architecture, temperance of the pleasurable. Just as the Parthenon was constructed with the correct proportions of both the perfect and the imperfect to give the impression of an organic and real structure, so too was pleasure mixed in the right portions with all else that make the complete individual. Let us then be as the Greeks, sharing in pleasuse, yet restraining the excess—then shall we experience the true enjoyment of our . . .

The Tulane Pan-Hellenic Council is the general co-ordinating and supervisory agency for the eighteen national fraternities on the Tulane campus. The council is composed of two representatives from each fraternity, chosen by the fraternity. The council is governed by the four officers and a Judicial Committee. The Judicial Committee and officers set the policies of the council, and serve as a trial body in cases of dispute.

The competitive activities of the fraternities are supervised by the Director of Interfraternity Activities and an Athletic Committee. These competitive activities range from football, basketball and baseball to the minor sports, homecoming decorations and scholarship.

The highlights of the fraternity year are the September rush season, culminating in pledging and a welcoming banquet for new pledges, and the annual Greek Week, at the opening of the second semester. Greek Week features a community "Help Day," officer and pledge discussions on current topics, and a convocation with a distinguished fraternity man as speaker. The social climax is the annual Pan-Hellenic Formal, held at the end of Greek Week.

The beginning of the year was highlighted by the opening of a brand new house—the first new fraternity house in Tulane's history. Rush week again showed the Tau Upsilon tradition of growing in size and stature with a pledge class of 41 men, the second straight year it has pledged the largest class on campus.

Socially, the AEPi's had another great year including the Mardi Gras "Notes" party, and climaxed by their gala Sweetheart Formal.

On campus, and in Pan-Hell life, Tau Upsilon was again among the most active. Brothers held such important positions as Secretary-Treasurer of the Sophomore Class, editor and business manager of the student directory, business manager of the JAMBALAYA, chief announcer for WTUL, and treasurer of the Pre-Med Society. AEPi also had members on the honor board, members of Who's Who, Greenbackers, Campus Nite, and the University Center committees, plus several varsity athletes.

ALPHA SIGMA PHI

Founded: Yale, 1845
Established at Tulane: 1962

In its second year on the Tulane Campus, Alpha Sigma Phi Colony continued its rapid growth. During Greek Week in March, the chapter initiated its outstanding pledge class, and at the same time, were formally installed as Gamma Omicron Chapter of Alpha Sigma Phi Fraternity.

This year, since the fraternity had full membership, extensive social, athletic, and scholastic activities were arranged. The chapter's goal was to reclaim the Scholastic Trophy which was won in 1962.

Extensive renovations were made on the fraternity house, which was acquired in November of 1962. The work continued throughout the year, resulting in a first-class chapter house with the arrival of spring. Eight men lived in the house this year, and preparations were made to comfortably accommodate ten next year.

Alpha Siga Phi has fast become an active, integral part of Tulane's fraternity system.

Rush Week, highlighted by the notorious Voo Doo and Johnson's Barn parties, was very successful. Seventeen promising young men were pledged and over ninety per cent were initiated.

Outstanding events on Beta Epsilon's social calendar included the wild Pledge Party, the traditional Christmas Party and the Sweetheart formal.

Beta Epsilon was active on campus in many ways. In Pan-Hel competition the ATO brothers won third place in the annual homecoming decorations competition with their "Tech Wrecker" and won first place in football. Many members were in honorary and elective organizations. Brian Barcelo and Bill Watts were elected to ODK, while Johnny Woolfolk served as Battalion Executive Officer of the NROTC. Brothers in varsity sports are Billy Zimmerman and Ken Rice, Football; Richie Schmidt and Skip Booker, Baseball; Frank Lamothe, Tennis; and Harry Belin, Track. Don Adams served as a coach of this year's freshman football squad.

Since the establishment of the Beta Xi Chapter, the fraternity's members have assumed roles of leadership in all facets of university life. Among the many Betas at key posts in campus organizations and on varsity teams were John Meade, assuming the Greek world's top position as President of the Pan-Hellenic Council; Joe Wells, President of Tau Beta Pi; Tom Hatfield, Vice-President of the Business School; Chuck Murphy, Tom Baker, Phil Hager, and Ernie Woolen, swimming team; Ray Lake, varsity tennis; Conrad Meyer and Bill Goss, varsity football.

The pledging of twenty men at the close of rush week started the fraternity off to another successful year, later to gain further momentum with the traditional Jungle Party and the Beta Formal, as well as numerous weekend parties.

The Brothers of Beta Xi feel that during the past year, they carried on the traditions of the fraternity in every way and are looking forward to a promising future during the forthcoming banner year.

DELTA KAPPA EPSILON

Founded: Yale, 1844
Established at Tulane: 1889

This year Delta Kappa Epsilon has achieved excellence within the Tulane Fraternity System. The chapter pledged nineteen freshmen, and at the other extremity of academic pursuit, had four members out of the top six men in Law School. They were: John Wogan, Carl Buhler. A. B. Monroe, and Carl Cleveland.

Pan-Hel sports were also a major endeavor on the part of the Dekes. Having been one of the last few contenders in football, they managed to place third in Volley Ball and Ping Pong. Further down the descending line of athletic achievement, Breezy Snellings was elected Campus Lover.

The Deke social activities included an impromptu of the outlawed Debutramp Ball. This year two firsts were achieved—for the first time in history the chapter was out of debt, and kept a housemother for more than one month.

"Strong before—stronger now," would seem to be an appropriate motto for the Delts this year. They began their seventy-fourth year on campus with a very successful rush week which terminated in the pledging of twenty-eight promising men. This was the largest pledge class the Delts have had in many years.

But the pledge class, to be sure, made up only a small segment of the Delt life. Tim Hoff was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. Noah Long was Secretary-Treasurer of the junior class, and senior Paul Jardis was Company Commander of the Naval R.O.T.C. unit on campus.

This year the Delts matched academic strength with athletic strength. Eight members of the swimming team, freshman and varsity, were members or pledges of Delta Tau Delta. In football this year, the Delts had three members of the Freshman team and four on the track team. Additionally, the Delts fielded extremely able teams in all of the Pan-Hellenic competition.

KAPPA ALPHA

Founded: Washington and Lee, 1865
Established at Tulane: 1885

In upholding the finest traditions of the Old South, Kappa Alpha held one of the calmest rush weeks on record, including such festivities as the Stanker Party and the Lynching Party, which was culminated by the pledging of twenty-two of the best Southern Boys ever seen. It might be said that K.A. swept up.

These outstanding boys occasionally joined the Old Regulars in such reminiscences of Southern Tradition as the annual Shiffazer Ball, the Bushman's Ball, the Blue Goose Party, and the Rose Formal, where the "Most Delicate Flower of Southern Womanhood" was presented.

Following in the footsteps of Robert E. Lee at Gettysburg, K.A. compiled an enviable record in Pan Hell athletics, losing everything with that dash and breeding which has made the South famous.

The high point of the year came with the installation of iron doors in the kitchen of the Lodge to guard the honor of the Southern Gentlemen who occasionally found their appetite not satisfied.

PHI DELTA THETA

Phi Delta Theta

Founded: Miami University, 1848.
Established at Tulane: 1889.

Louisiana Alpha Chapter of Phi Delta Theta proudly celebrated its seventy-fifth anniversary on this campus. They began their diamond anniversary year here at Tulane in good, traditional Phi Delt style by pledging twenty-two top freshmen.

The 1964 social calendar included several bubbling champagne parties and a variety of Saturday night costume parties. It was climaxed by the "one and only" always highly successful Curly Marcotte Party and this year was no exception.

The Phi Delts were represented on the Tulane football, swimming, baseball and tennis teams. The Chapter also contributed its share of scholars and campus activity leaders. Finally in this, their seventy-fifth year at Tulane, the Phi Delts initiated a rebuilding policy that has already strengthened the fraternity to a degree nearing the campus prestige it once held.

Phi Kappa Sigma was the first fraternity on the T.U. campus. The Phi Kaps were among the top four of Tulane's fraternities in this year's scholastic rankings, but they have always found or made time for the annual Christmas Party, the Voodoo Party, the Formal, and Year's-End Party. The same spirit which they put into their parties carries over into projects in co-operation with University functions and has brought them many awards such as first place honors for their sacrifice at the Annual Bonfire.

In the Military echelons, Kenneth Mallon was Battalion Commander in NROTC and President of Scabbard and Blade, and John Vining was Brigade Commander of the Army unit and Vice-President of Scabbard and Blade. John was assisted by Bob Kilinski, his Executive Officer, who also served as President of the Engineering School. PI KAPPA ALPHA

Founded: University of Virginia, 1868
Established at Tulane: 1878

With the sincere hope of brotherhood as its object, the Pikes of Eta pledged boys from all over North America and even a few from South America. This resulted in a very spirited group, as well as a great group of pledge brothers.

The Pikes were active on and off campus again this year. Pikes commanded the Army drill team and had officers in all the R.O.T.C. units.

A great event for Pi Kappa Alpha this year was receiving the trophy for "most improved scholarship."

The Pike calendar, featuring Newcomb co-eds, was once again well received by all the students at Tulane and Newcomb.

Social life at the Pike house was the best in many years. Starting the year with a "Gross Party," the partying became frequent in preparation for the "Fais-do-do" party.

Looking forward to another great year at Tulane, the Pikes have set their goals even higher.

Extra-curricular activities occupy much of the chapter's time: Alex Dietz, Vice-President of the student body; Gene Wasson, Bill Pitts, Frank Smith, Richard Gillette, Bob Thweatt, Grey Plosser, Tommy Greer, Sam Caverlee, and Bob Milling, class officers; Jay C. Stone and Alvin King, cheerleaders; Rod Chastant, President of the U.C. Board; in addition to members of Who's Who.

Varsity athletes were plentiful: Jim Saxon, football; Bob Davidson and George Fisher, basketball; Dick Stephens, baseball; Emmett Grandy, Lou Kapicak, John Kenney, Jim Connor, track; and Chuck Bleckinger, Bob Hardcastle, and Bill Banta, Tennis.

SAE attributed much of its past success to the guidance of its housemother, Mrs. Irene Lucas.

SIGMA ALPHA MU

Founded: New York City College, 1909
Established at Tulane: 1920

Since the establishment of Sigma Gamma Chapter, TU's Sammys have continued to grow in size and stature.

The members enjoyed a crowning rush week, pledging many promising young "Sammys." They then began the usual circuit of parties, including the pajama party, the grit party, and the uninhibited obnoxious party.

This year the Sammys won the Pan-Hellenic Trophy for the most outstanding fraternity on campus. Sigma Gamma was active in varying ways on campus, boasting captains of the football and baseball teams, UC Committee Chairmen, president of Greenbackers, and members of the Honor Board.

The Sammys feel that they carried on the fraternity's traditions this year and look forward to a very promising future for the coming years.

SIGMA CHI

Founded: Miami of Ohio, 1855
Established at Tulane: 1886

Sigma Chi had an excellent rush week, getting 15 select pledges. The Chis traditional activities included Derby Day, in which Newcomb sororities competed for points against one another. This was followed by the school-wide "open house" at the Sig house. The Sweetheart Formal was made even more successful by the fraternity world favorite, "the Sweetheart of Sigma Chi."

The particularly outstanding social year was highlighted by cocktail parties, Saturday night casuals, the Pledge-Active Party, Hay rides, and the annual Sweetheart Formal.

The chapter was well represented in athletics by varsity footballers Carl Crowder, Mike Steeves, Jay Crosby, Clem Dellenger, Ron Krajewski, and Larry McIntyre, and by varsity golfers Ray Fontenot and Steve Bellaire.

The brothers were well established in campus and extra-curricular activities and Pan-Hellenic Sports, while scholarship in the chapter made its biggest advance during the last school year.

SIGMA NU

Founded: Virginia Military Institute, 1869
Established at Tulane: 1888

This year Sigma Nu changed and improved in various ways within the chapter: a new and enlarged kitchen and dining area; an activated alumni chapter in New Orleans; and a revamped pledge system.

The Social year was one of the best: cocktail parties, sorority exchanges, Cajun Carnival, after game open houses, Alumni Banquet, Christmas Formal, annual orphan party, and the usual Saturday night band parties, all of which were topped by their elegant White Rose Formal.

On the political scene, Phil Marks was president of Alpha Epsilon Delta, Stan Mandel was vice-president of the Engineering School, and Rick Garbe was treasurer of Alpha Epsilon Delta. The brothers were also represented in Who's Who, Phi Eta Sigma, Honor Board, Greenbackers, Pershing Rifles, Scabbard and Blade, Wesley Foundation, Tulane Hall of Fame, Campus Night, UC Committees, Student Council, and APO. Brothers in varsity sports included George Smith and Jim Davis who played football.

Sigma Pi Celebrates

Founded: Vincennes University of Indiana, 1897
Established at Tulane: 1963

As a new fraternity, new events highlighted the social calendar, many of which the chapter hopes will become traditional for Sigma Pi at Tulane. One of the first "traditions" was the first piano breaking which occurred during rush week.

Parties were held on alternating Saturdays, with social events reaching a peak at Homecoming with a "Victory" cocktail party. Even though the victory didn't occur, the celebration was just as vigorous, and the brothers just as spirited.

The biggest event of the year for Sigma Pi was the long-awaited chapter installation which took place on April 25. Following installation was a gala banquet celebrated at the famous New Orleans Playboy Club.

Intra-fraternity athletic events included the pledge-active football game and the pledge-active tug-of-war in which the actives were victorious, hopefully starting another tradition. Sigma Pi participated in Pan-Hellenic intramurals satisfactorily, and hoped to improve their performance in the coming year.

TAU EPSILON PHI

Founded: Columbia University, 1910.
Established at Tulane: 1956.

Epsilon Kappa Chapter of Tau Epsilon Phi has made great strides in all phases of Pan-Hellenic activity since its beginning. Twice the chapter has been awarded trophies for scholastic improvement. Receiving the Most Improved Chapter Award at the recent international TEP convention in Miami exemplifies past and present success in Tulane's chapter.

In the past year Epsilon Kappa met with further success in its rush program, for last year the chapter initiated the highest percentage of pledges. This year they hoped to do as well with their class of eighteen.

Socially, in addition to bi-weekly parties, Epsilon Kappa planned a gala Sweetheart Formal to the sounds of Deacon Joe and the Ivories. Their usual parties and Pan-Hellenic activities kept them active and busy. Plans for their future include continued success in all their endeavors.

TEPs go through strenuous workout in preparation for the softball season.

Established at Tulane: 1909

Twenty-nine outstanding boys were taken into the fraternity during Rush Week. ZBT's social life was highlighted by such functions as the Grubby Party, Winter Formal and a weekend trip to L.S.U. A first place trophy was achieved for homecoming display, "Greenie Cleanie!"

1963-64 was no exception to the rule that ZBT's are active in extracurricular activities. Tom Ries was Representative-at-Large from the Student Body, and also Chairman of the A & S Honor Board. Lee Kantrow was President of A & S Freshman Class, while Steve Sherman was President of Business School Senior Class.

ZBT took an active part in the participation of sports: Steve Schreibman and Chuck Gottlich, golf; Lee Kantrow, Tennis; Allan Goodman, Basketball; and Steve Wagner, Track.

The Newcomb Pan-Hellenic Council is part of the National Pan-Hellenic Conference, which is accepted as the highest authority among women's Greek-letter organizations. The Newcomb Council is composed of the three letter officers, the presidents of each sorority and one representative of each sorority on campus. It strives for unity and cooperation among fraternity groups and aims at maintaining high scholastic achievement as well as wholehearted participation in the ideals of the college. This is accomplished through close contact with the faculty, the students, and the other organizations on campus. The Council is responsible for compiling rules which govern rushing, pledging, and initiation; it serves the community and intergrates the social and academic aspects of college life.

The Council awards the Newcomb Pan-Hellenic Trophy to the sorority achieving the most points for participation in campus activities and for the highest scholastic rating. It awards the City Pan-Hellenic Trophy to the sorority attaining the highest average. These trophies are presented as a stimulus to maintain the high aims of the Council—those of scholarship and active participation in campus activities.

An expression of happiness climaxes a long and tiring sorority rush week.

A fall houseparty on the Coast brought Kappa's together to plan for the coming year. Besides the usual weekly lunches, faculty speakers at meetings throughout the year, foreign students party, and Christmas orphans party, there were several innovations. Kappa's entertained the football team the Tuesday before Homecoming and invited all the sororities and fraternities on campus to an open house the following Sunday as a means of recuperation. Chapter suppers and parties before holidays, as well as the Monmoutte Duo, were special events of the first semester. Louisiana Alpha Pi Phi's receipt for a most successful year mixed work and play. On campus, active girls Camilla Meyerson, President of Warren House, and Jackie Hestwood, Secretary of the Resident Government Association, represented Pi Phi well. Lynn Farwell served as Secretary of the Newcomb Student Body, while Who's Who recognized Martha Bell for her job as Vice-President of the Newcomb Student Body. At Tulane, Mary Helen Young worked hard as Secretary of the U.C. Board. Patty Heatherly, the Commander of Angel Flight, was also a lovely member of the Homecoming Court—special PiPhi flavor! Artistic efforts were well rewarded in Homecoming decoration competition with first place.

Adding spice were such social events as the Christmas Party given for all campus Greeks and the grand SAE-Pi Phi Orphan Party; the most enjoyable Pi Phi-Kappa Kappa Gamma Monmouth Duo Dance, and of course the swinging annual formal. Pledge banquets and initiation, plus the Founder's Day Banquet celebrated with LSU Pi Phi's, ended another treat-filled year!

Not only does he possess knowledge; not only does he contribute to his society and to his friends, but he also possesses a sound mind and strong body. According to Plato, soundness of mind and strength of body create a harmony of life which direct us to the ultimate good and justice. In the summer of 1964, in the city of Tokyo, Japan, athletes from all over the globe will gather to compete in the summer Olympics. These young men and women personify strength of body and character. Through participation in sports we gain morally as well as physically. It is on the Olympic track or in the Tulane stadium that leadership, character, respect, responsibility, and sportsmanship can develop. Unexpected friendships secured through a competitive spirit with in the realm of sports activities will result from these Olympics. Yet more than the friendship of human beings from opposite sides of the globe, a seed of understanding will be planted in each countries representatives. Each Olympic participant will return home having gained and contributed much in world understanding; for often within the bounds of competition, the noblest in man is visible. Let us then be as Plato describes man —possessing a harmony of soul constituted by soundness of mind and strength of body. Tommy O'Boyle, Head Coach of the Tulane Green Wave

Green Wave Gallant In Hard-Fought Season

The Tulane Green Wave has faced what were probably the toughest schedules in the country the past several years, and this year was no exception. Coach Tommy O'Boyle and his superb staff brought the Greenies a long way since last year. The Wave drank from victory's cup once and beat the weekly point spreads eight times in ten games. That's the evidence on the "fighting forty."

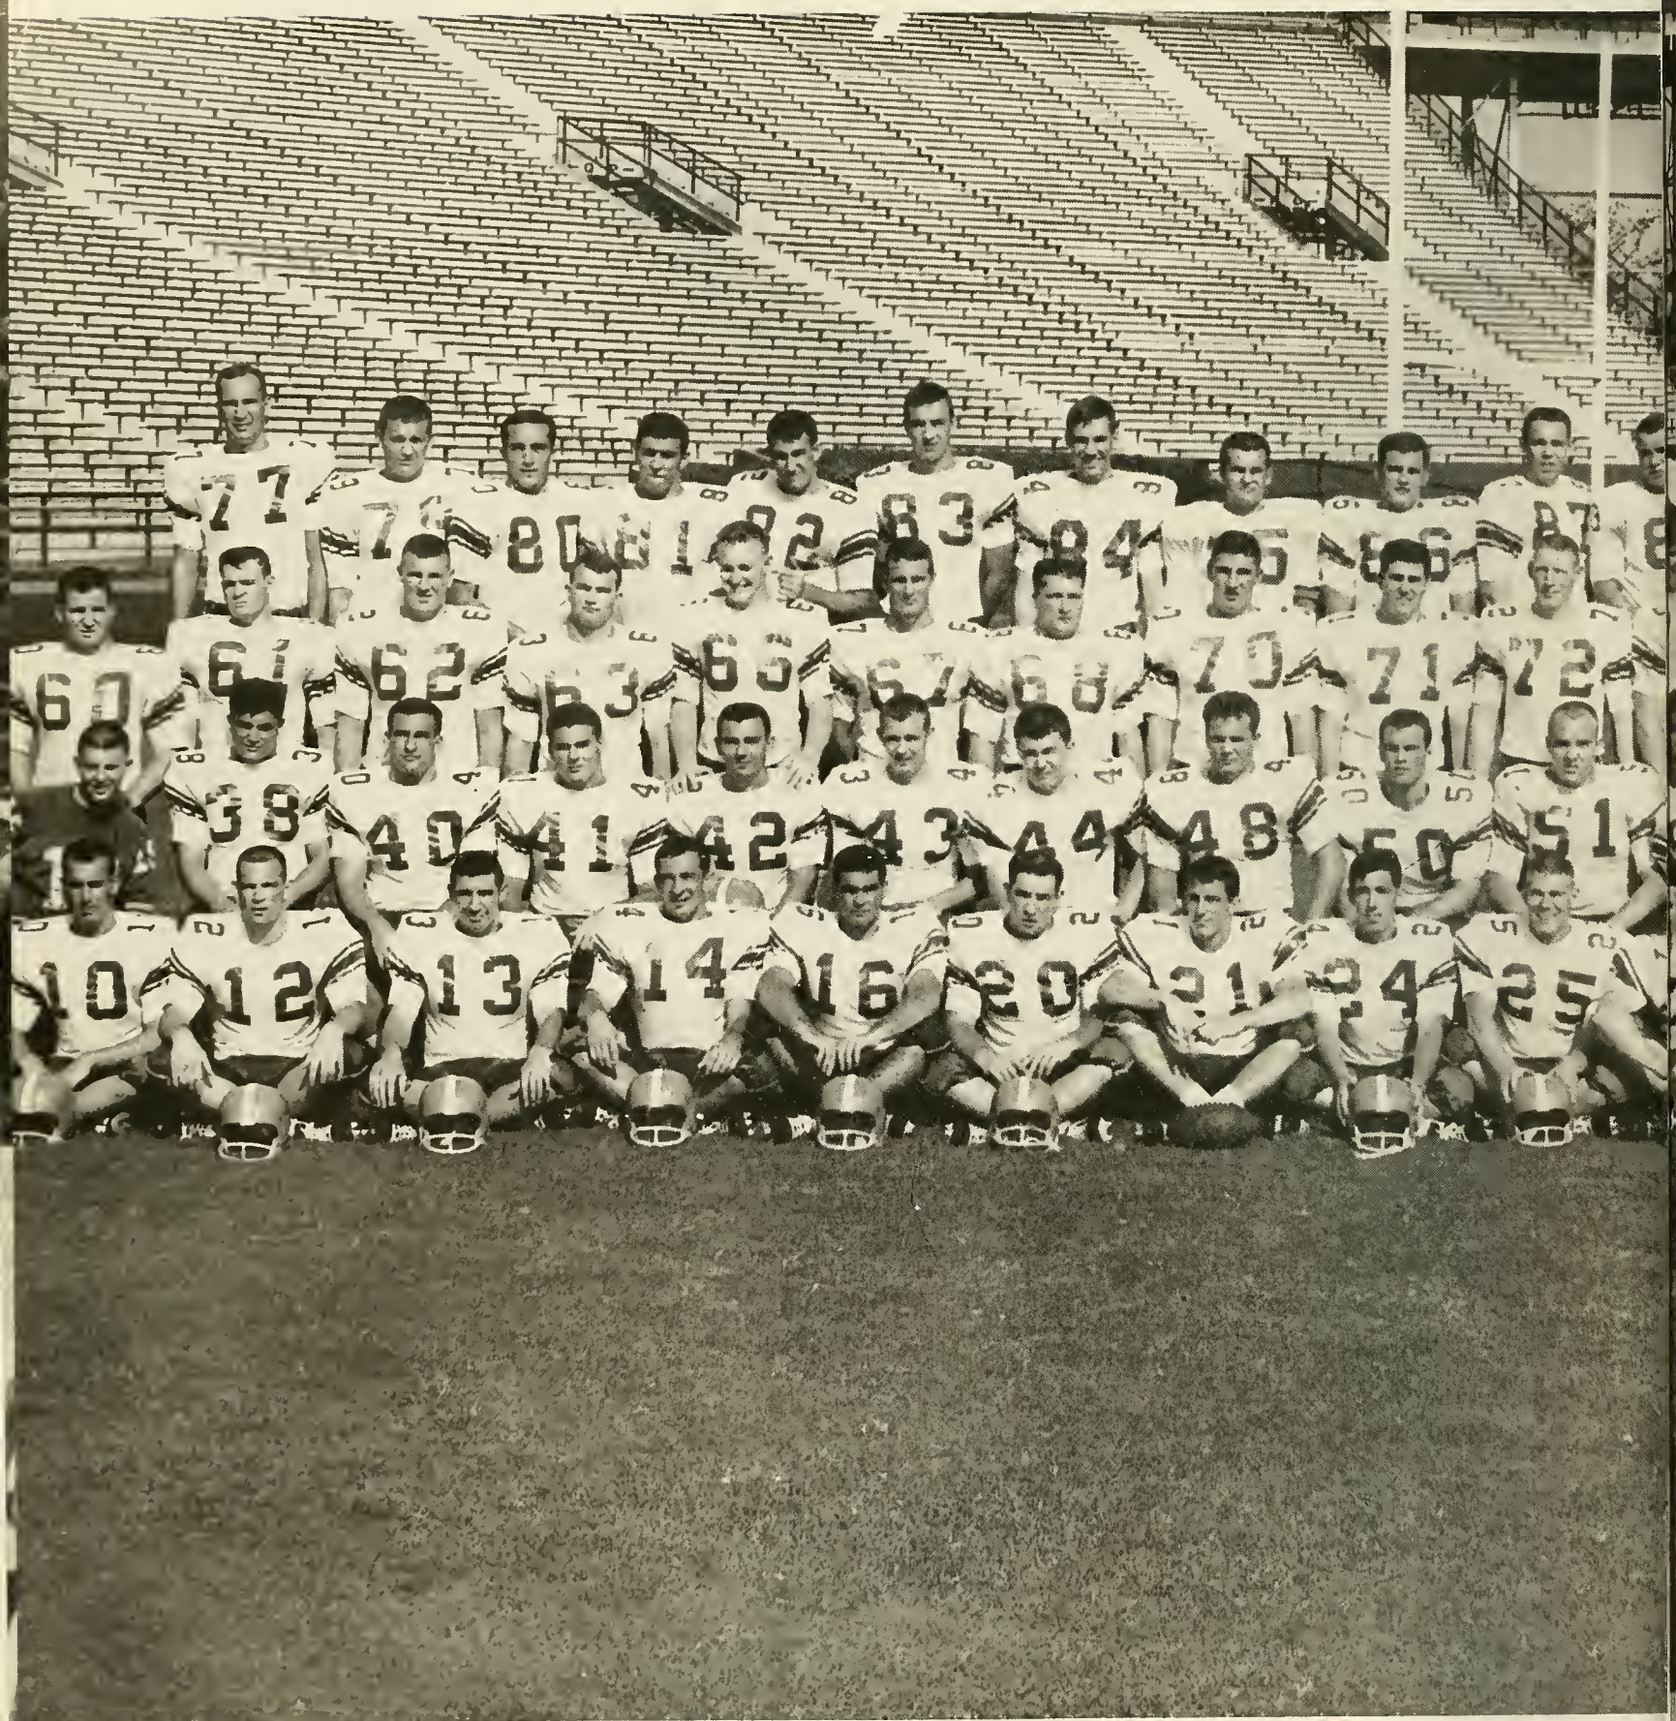
Befittingly exemplary of their schedule, Texas—the number one team in the nation—was the season opener for the Greenies. At the end of the first half the score stood 3-0 Texas, as the stout Tulane defense—led by right tackle and captain Mike Calamari and linebackers Jim Besselman and Dick Steigerwald—kept things pretty even. It was a Longhorn second half over the out-manned, weary Greenies. "Shoeless" Tony Crosby kicked his second field goal for the Steers and they scored two touchdowns in the last period, making the final score 21-0.

Alabama, with Joe Namath triggering an explosive attack, eased past the Wave 28-0. Bear Bryant's Crimson Tide was equally tough on offense and defense. The deepest the Greenies could get into Alabama territory was the 46-yard line in the fourth period. Even the shotgun attack wouldn't go boom for Tulane.

A mistake and a penalty turned a possible 7-0 victory into the Green Wave's third straight defeat of the season against Miami, 10-0. The Greenies threw nets around Miami's star quarterback, George Mira, but they couldn't get the right offensive breaks. A fifteen yard penalty set up a Miami field goal early in the second quarter. Then, Tulane fumbled on their own three, and Hurricane tackle Robert Brown grabbed the ball in the air and scored. Wave quarterback Al Burguieres hit end Ron Krajewski on the Hurricane seven yard line and he was hauled down on the one as the gun sounded ,ending the game.

Ending a frustrating three-game scoring drought, the Greenies jumped out in front of Mississippi State 10-0. In the opening minutes of the second quarter the "fighting forty" scored their first three points on the 24-yard field goal precision of Don Bright, and the other seven came on a beautiful pass pattern in which Al Burguieres hit Clem Dellenger with a strike over the middle for an eight yard touchdown. But the Bulldogs reversed the action in the second half and beat the Green Wave 31-10.

Against the Ole Miss Rebels it was the plot of a never-give-up defense, but an almost non-existent offense as the Wave lost again 21-0. The Rebel's Perry Lee Dunn did just about everything he was supposed to and was at the controls on two of their touchdown drives with the final one left to the capable hands of



THE 1963 GREENIES

No. 2 quarterback Jim Weatherly. The Greenies could only manage to get into Rebel territory for exactly one play, and that was in the fourth quarter. David East's outstanding kicking kept the Wave respectable in their loss.

The Greenies gave the Homecoming crowd a tremendous show for almost three quarters and actually enjoyed a 3-0 lead over Georgia Tech at halftime. The first half was all Tulane, as Don Bright's 26-yard field goal was the only thing going onto the scoreboard. Mike Calamari, Clem Dellenger, Al Burguieres, Leon Verriere, Jim Besselman, Bill Goss, Dick Steigerwald, Russ Galiano, Elmer Smith, and Buck Landry were constantly harassing the highly touted, talent-rich Engineers. But, it was all Tech's All-American Billy Lothridge in the second half, guiding the Yellow-Jackets to a 17-3 victory.

Ten point underdogs, the Green Wave finally proved themselves by whipping South Carolina 20-7. It was their first victory for patient and persistent head-coach Tommy O'Boyle. Al Burguieres went all the way at quarterback for the Greenies and did an excellent job of befuddling the bigger and deeper, favored Gamecocks. The usual superior defensive play secured the victory for Tulane.

The following week was not as pleasant for the Green Wave as they lost to Tennessee and its crushing single-wing ground attack, 26-0. The Greenie turf, made exceptionally slow by 2.2 inches of rain, was made to order for the heavier Vols and the outcome was obvious early.

Tulane's Larry McIntire and Vanderbilt's Art Guepe did the heavy work as the two teams battled to a 10-10 standoff. Burguieres just missed with a desperation pass to Clem Dellenger in the closing seconds, and the Greenies had to settle for the tie.

The "fighting forty" battled hard and long in the annual season-ending game against their up-state rival, Louisiana State, but the bowl-minded Bayou Bengals triumphed 20-0. Don Schwab, sophomore sensation, wrapped up LSU's scoring title for the season as he sparked them to their victory. Quarterback Burguieres made a valiant try to put the Green Wave on the scoreboard in his final collegiate game, but it was to no avail.

If Tulane's excellent morale and "guts" football playing of this year carries over to the future, with the material that is being developed in Greenieville, they will have to be reckoned with in the S.E.C. in the not so far off future. Even with their All-American schedule—the Green Wave will be causing much more than their fair share of trouble for the top teams in the nation.

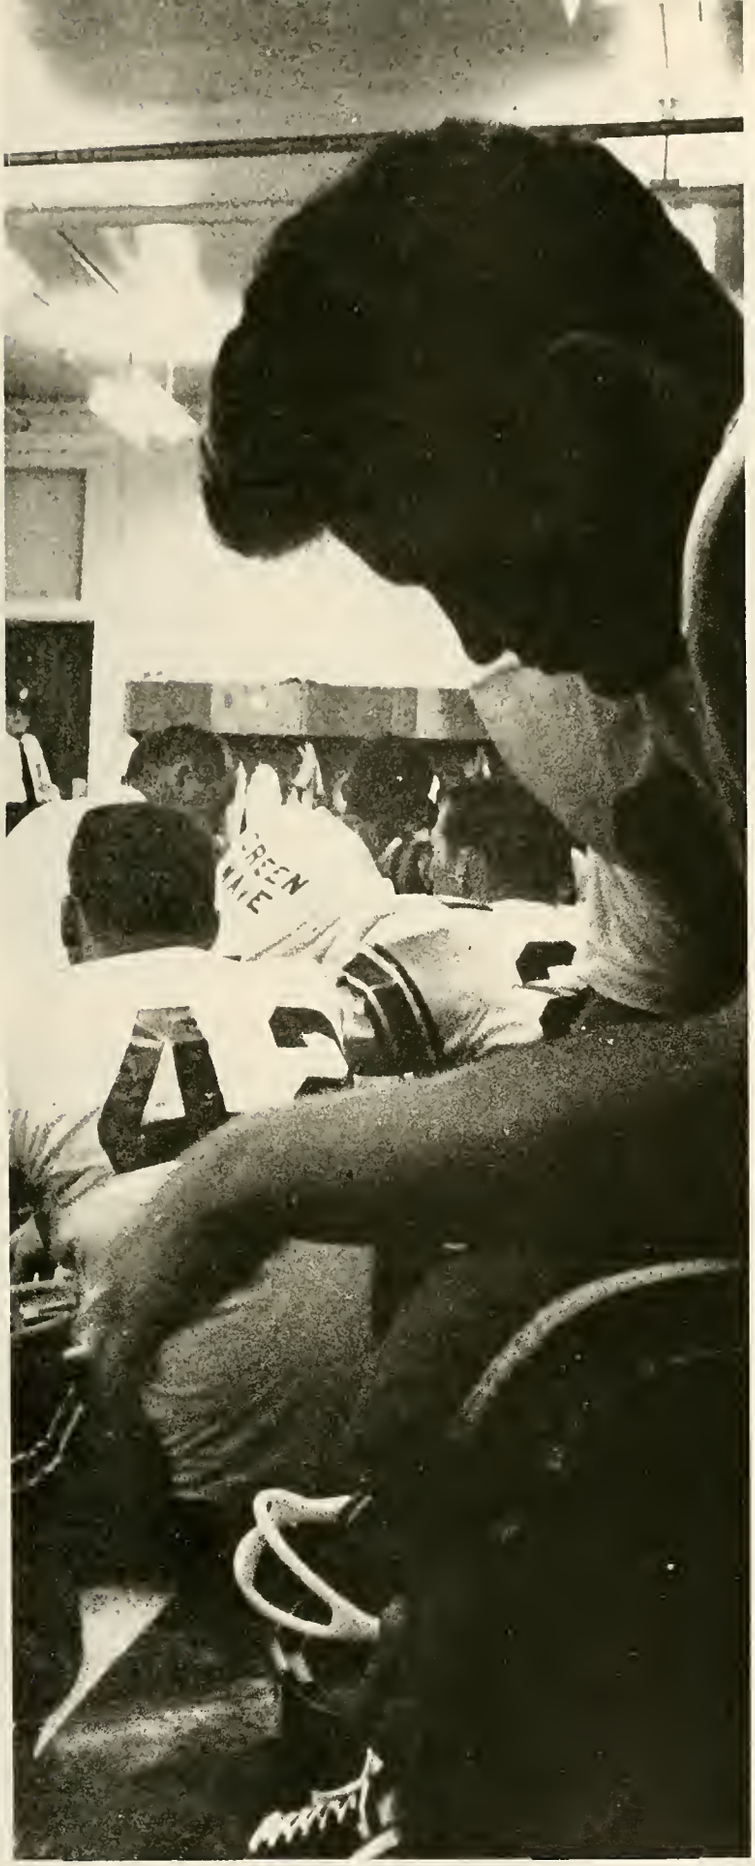
Unified Effort Is Green Wave's Strength

Head Coach O'Boyle gives final words of advice, confidence, and encouragement to signal-callers.



Deep meditation is reflected in the Greenie as thoughts are only of victory.

A final pre-game briefing is held on key plays that will lead to . . .

. . . a united effort in stiff competition.

Ron "Choppy" Chapoton, junior halfback, picks up two needed yards against the Longhorns.

Green Wave Begins

No. 1 quarterback Al Burguieres (10) completes one for the first Tulane first down against Texas.

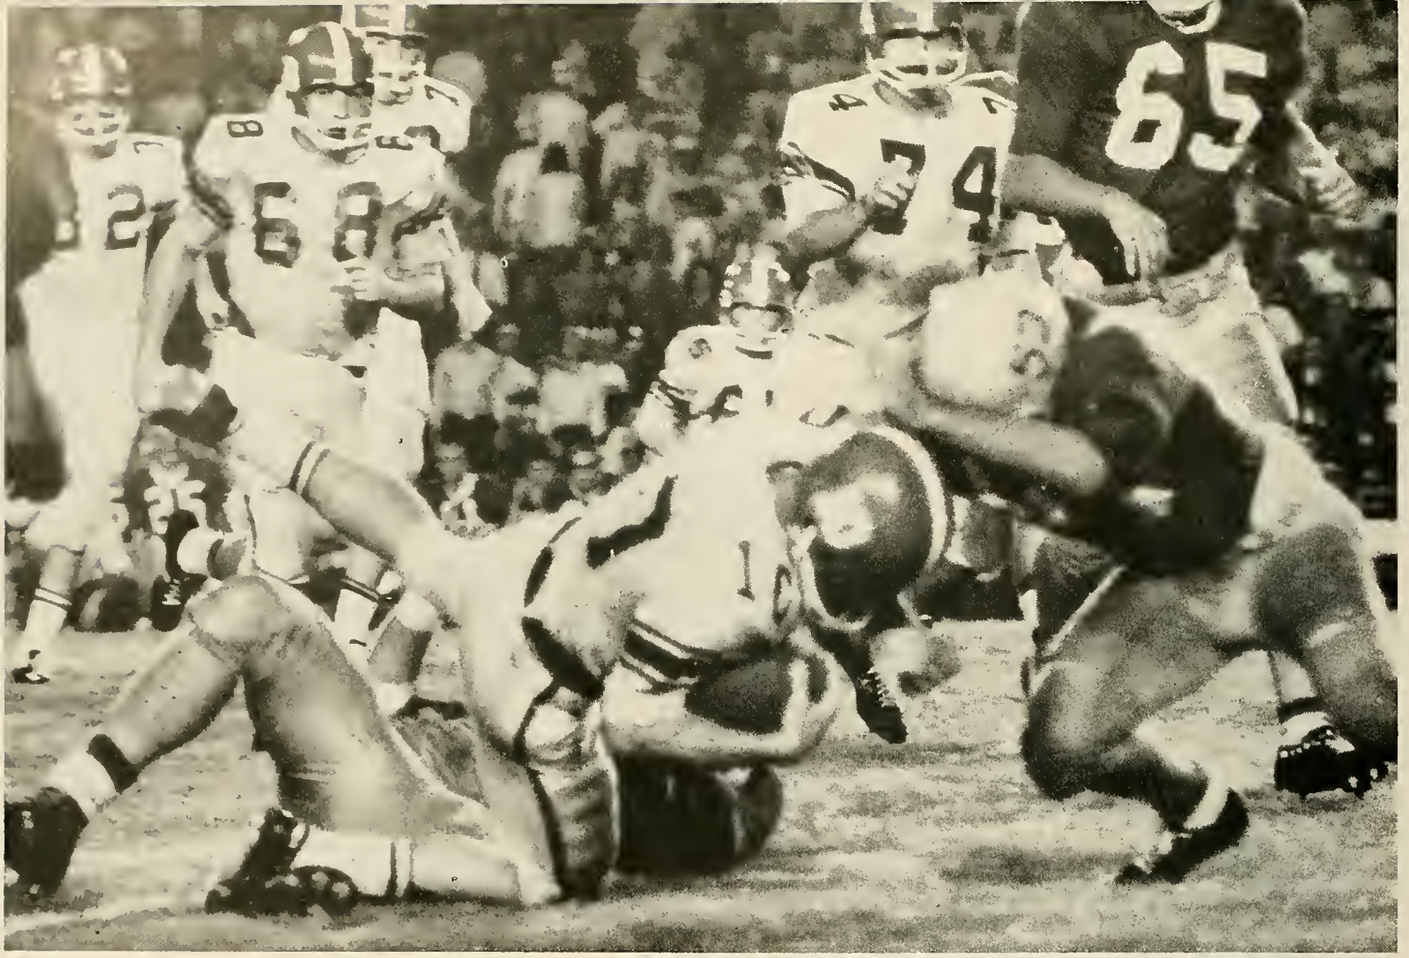
Sophomore halfback Carl Crowder (21) doesn't find that hole but succeeds in gaining yardage.

Senior quarterback Burguieres (10) picks up only five as 200 pound guard Buck Landry (60) didn't get there in time.

Bob Genez (80) needs some help to haul down Alabama's quarterback on the Wave 15-yard line.

Another Tough Schedule

Jim Davis, junior end from Pittsburgh, upends another Crimson Tide player.



220 pound senior tackle and Green Wave captain Mike Calamari (74) is a second too late to aid quarterback Burguieres.

Spirited Tulane Maintains

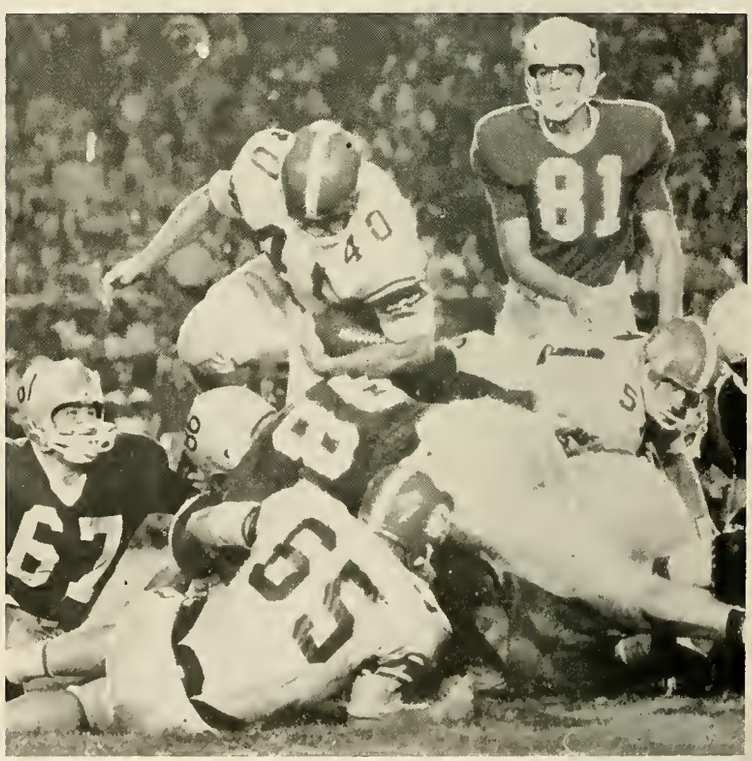
Larry McIntire, senior fullback, hurdles for those all important extra inches to get a first down against Miami.

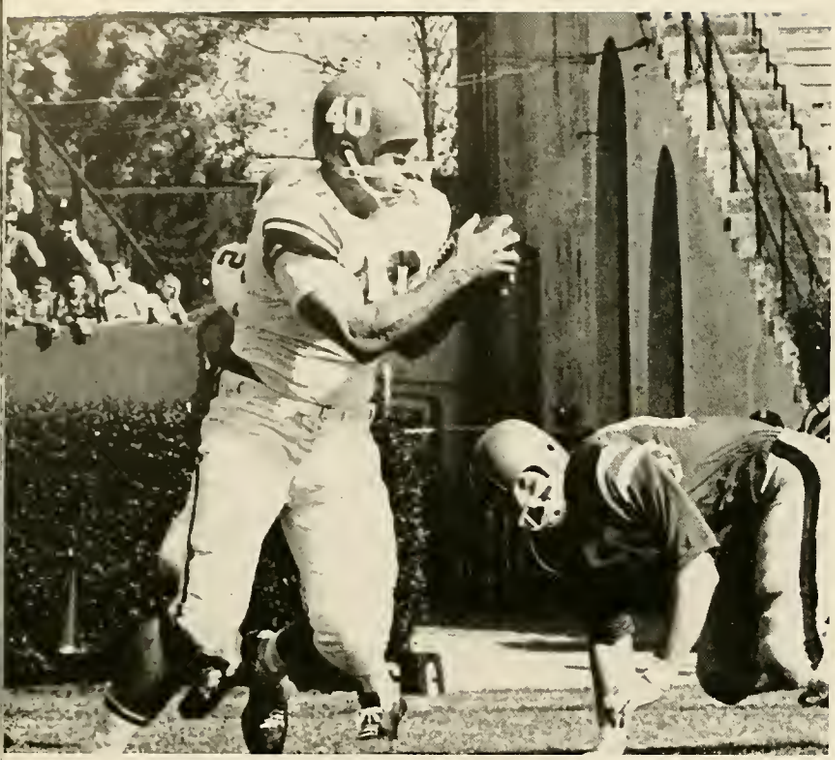


Senior end Clem Dellenger (82) is a split second too late to prevent Mississippi State from one of its 31 points.

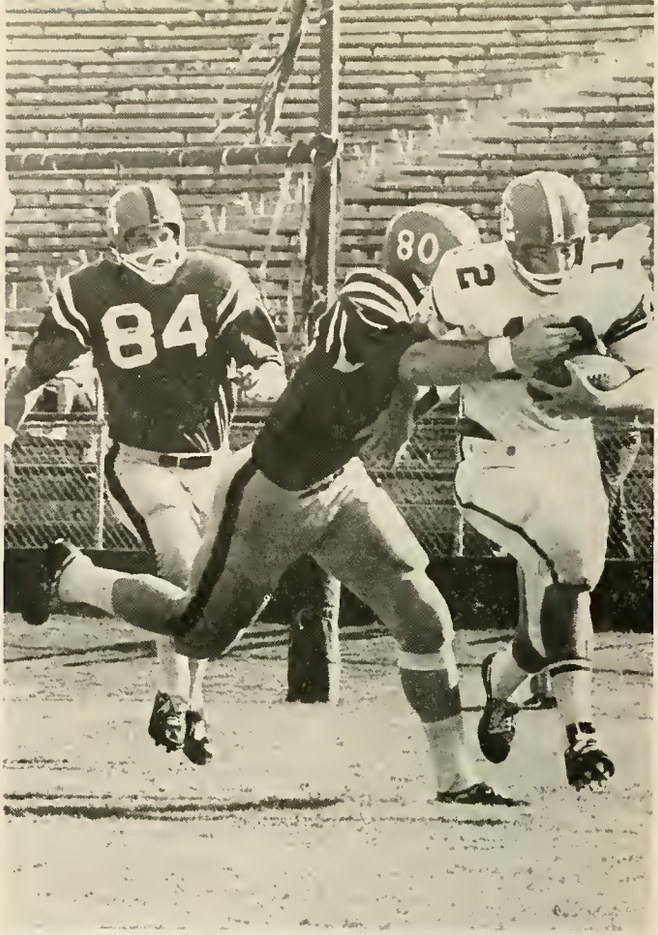
214 pound Dick Toups watches quarterback Burguieres throw another one that just missed the target.

High Morale

Kicking specialist, sophomore quarterback David East, seems to have picked the wrong object to kick, but actually punted 49 yards to the Maroon 15-yard line.



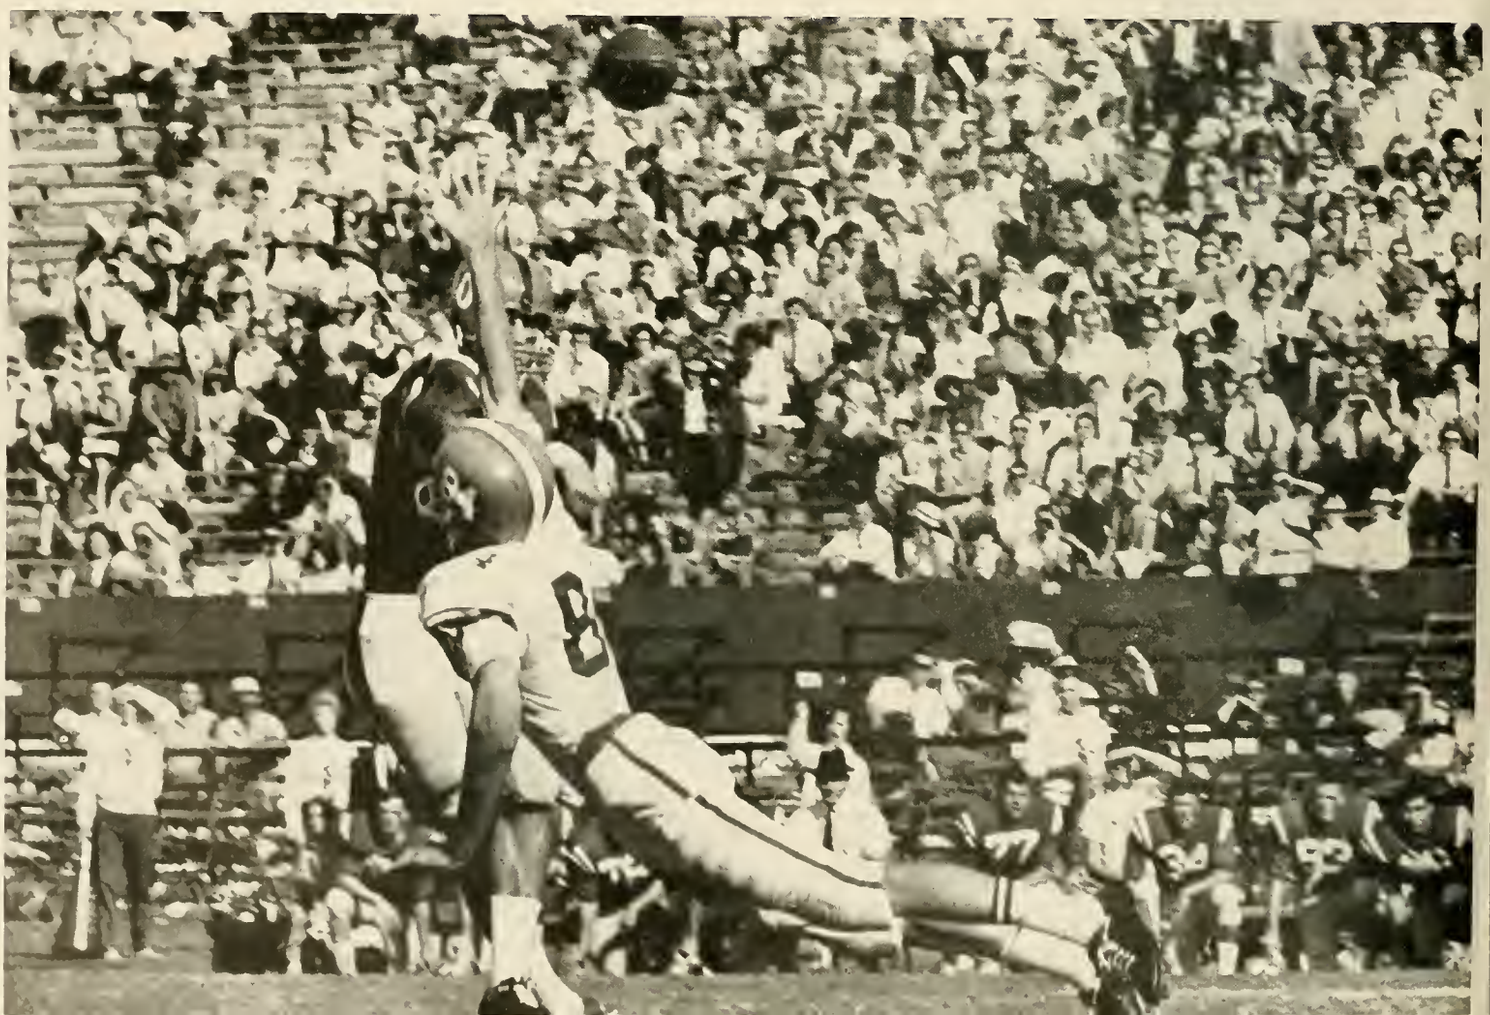
Fullback Larry McIntire tries to get the Greenies out of trouble against tough Ole Miss.



Quarterback David East picks up little ground, as the Mississippi defense kept the Green Wave in its own back yard all afternoon long.

Greenies Remain Stalwart

Sophomore end Jim Saxon just misses deflecting an Ole Miss pass that set up their third and final touchdown.

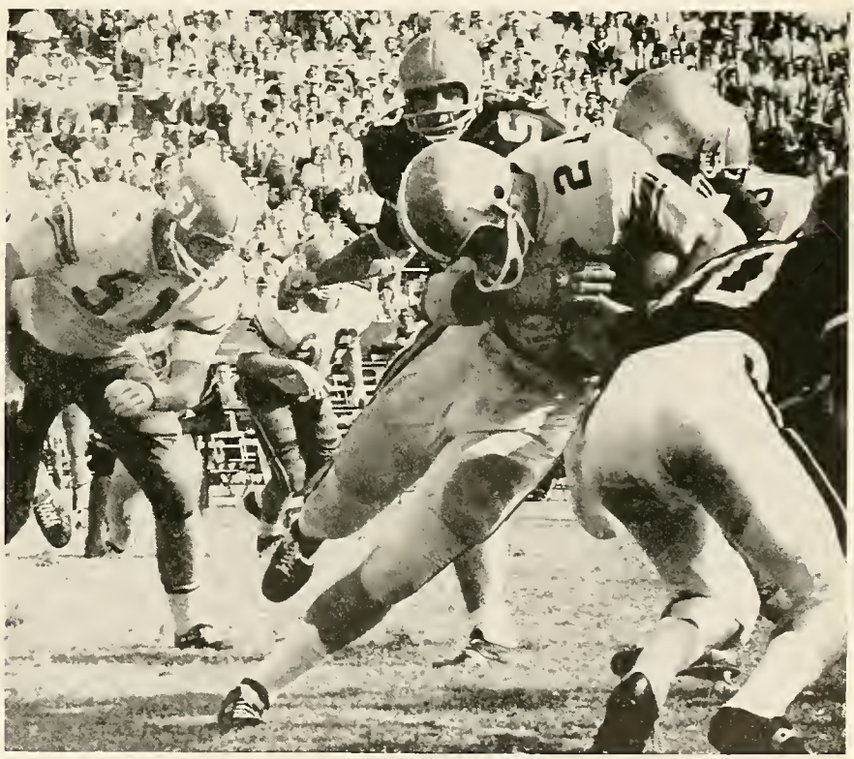


Jerry Graves, junior halfback, picks up one more yard toward being one of the top TU ground gainers.

In Futile Battles

Two Yellow-Jackets of Georgia Tech haul down 180 pounds of tough Tulane quarterback—Al Burguieres.

Carl Crowder's 180 pounds are brought to a standstill from both sides by two Tech men.



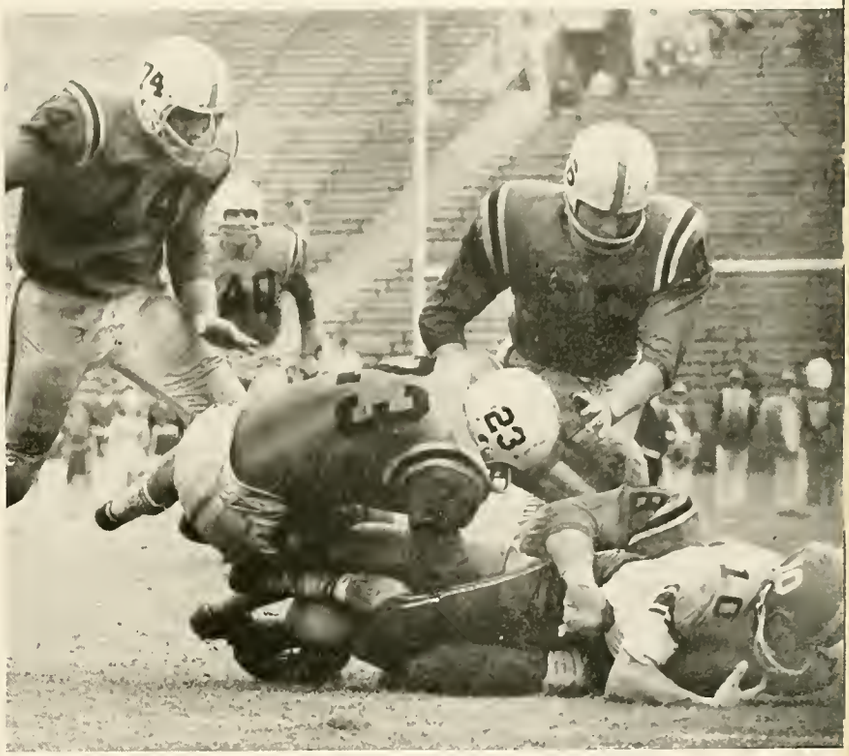
Stars of the first team—6'0" end Ron Krajewski (86), captain Mike Calamari (74), 205 pound center Jim Besselman (51), 180 pound halfback Ron Chapoton (34), 210 pound guard Leon Verriere (68), and 6-2 end Clem Dellenger (82)—get a chance to watch their teammates enjoy running up some yards in their victory over the South Carolina Gamecocks 20-7.

Green Wave Grabs Victory

Burguieres completed a long pass from deep in his own territory in the Green Wave's single sweet taste of victory.

Jubilant quarterback Al Burguieres, end Larry Nicholas, and guard Leon Verriere descend from the plane upon their arrival at the New Orleans Airport, after their victory over South Carolina—and even the stewardess was happy.

Everybody is in the action as a Tennessee player is stopped after a five yard gain good enough for another first down.

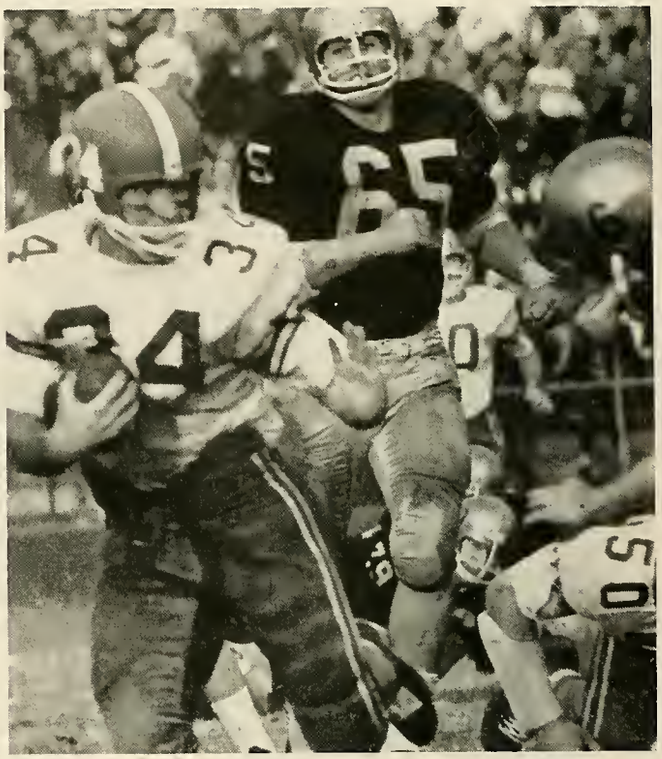


Quarterback Burgnieres picked up a little more mud in the Tennessee game when he had to eat the ball and suffer a seven yard loss.

—A First For O'Boyle

Halfback Graves is caught in a tough situation which resulted in no gain.

The outstretched hands of the Vanderbilt player never let quarterback Burgnieres get this one in the air.



"Choppy" Chapoton continues on his fifteen-yard jaunt, aided by a key block by 200 pound center Dick Steigerwald (50).

Outmanned Tulane Stays

All 208 pounds of senior fullback McIntire picked up three more yards on this play.

The long pass was futile as it never successfully reached 6'-0", 195 pound sophomore halfback George Smith.

Strong In Final Games

The score is kept respectable by junior halfback Jim Davis' (27) interception of an LSU pass on his own 7-yard line.

Senior end Dellenger's outstretched fingertips couldn't hold on to a pass that may have led to a Tulane score in the 20-0 season-ending loss to LSU.

Fighting Freshmen Brighten Green Wave Future

The Baby Bengal fake didn't work as alert, 6-0 Baby Billow end Lanis O'Steen (88) makes the tackle for another great defensive play for the Green Wave Freshman.

The Baby Billow displayed the same tremendous spirit and strength as the varsity during their 1963 season. The Tulane Freshman Greenies are certain to supply the Green Wave with needed depth next year.

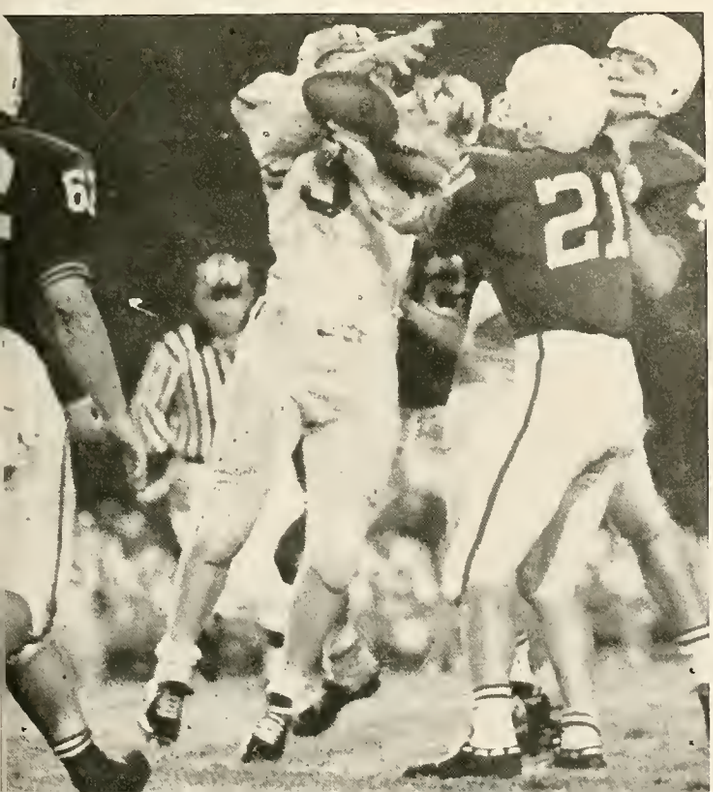
A touchdown within the last six minutes of the final quarter gave the Frosh a 12-7 victory over Marion Institute. A twelve yard pass from quarterback Mac Brousseau to speedy halfback and top Baby Billow ground gainer Butch Coco, gave Tulane their final six points and the victory.

The Baby Elephants of Alabama beat the Billow 3-0 with a field goal during the second quarter. It was strictly a strong defensive game for both teams.

Outstanding in the battle with the Freshmen of LSU was Brousseau, who kicked a stupendous forty-seven yard field goal, which was the second longest in Tulane history. Even though the Baby Billow lost to their arch-rival Baby Bengals 34-12, the future Green Wavers were very strong on both offense and defense in their final game of the season.

Quarterback Mac Brousseau kicks a tremendous 47-yard field goal, which was one of the longest in Tulane history.

Baby Billow halfback Louis Campomenosi (21) grabs the ball right out of the Baby Bengal's hands as he makes the interception.



Brousseau puts all of his 155 pounds into the ball for another three points for the Baby Billow in their loss to the LSU Freshmen 34-12.

Cheerleaders Help To Boost Green Wave Morale

The girls perform a special cheering routine for an excited, shouting crowd.

As thousands of students shouted and roared through another Greenie football season and cheered the Wave basketballers to a final victory, a group of eight hoarse, wildly enthusiastic cheerleaders were directing the enthusiasm into the proper channels. They had a hand in organizing the bonfire to arouse spirit before the Miami game. The cheerleaders presented Emile from Pat O'Brien's. Pep rallies were held to boost the morale of the football team and keep the students strongly behind them. They accompanied the football team to Jackson for the Mississippi State game, to Mobile for the Alabama game, and to Baton Rouge for the game with arch-rival L.S.U. Upon returning from South Carolina after their only victory the cheerleaders, along with the football team, were joyfully welcomed by school and city officials.

Head cheerleader, senior Jay C. Stone, juniors Colleen Spence, Susan Elliot, Blanche Newton, David Murphy, and freshmen Susan Gold and Al King lent their enthusiasm and spirit to the Cultural Attractions Fund "kickoff."

The cheerleaders boosted school spirit with their enthusiasm at pep rallies.

Keeping up a loud and steady chant, head cheerleader Jay C. Stone, encouraged the football team even during the bleakest moments.

And "Kickoff" City's Cultural Attraction Fund

Bursting through the gates and running beneath the goal posts as they led the team to the field, the cheerleaders gave rousing support to the players before each half.

Tulane Hoopsters Struggle Through Losing Season

Tulane's disastrous 1963-64 basketball campaign expired on a deliriously happy note as they outdid Cassius Clay in their upset of Louisiana State, 80-68, in their first win in the 23rd and last game of the season.

The roundballers started the season on the road getting whipped by Toledo, 96-60. Guards Dale Gott and Denny Shoup led the Greenies with 19 and 14 points, respectively. Against nationally ranked Michigan, to whom they lost 73-47, forward George Fisher was the only Greenie to hit in double figures with 13 points. In losing to the Texas Longhorns, 95-63, it was Gott and center Bob Davidson that stood out for the Wave with 20 points apiece. The Greenies lost to the Rice Owls 90-62 and it was Gott again with 24, while sophomore forward Charlie Brandt broke into double figures with 11. The biggest defensive home game loss in Tulane history came at the hands of North Carolina, 109-81. Against North Carolina State, Gott had 19, Davidson 18, and sophomore Dave Kendall 17, but it wasn't enough as the final score stood 104-88. In the Arkansas State Christmas Holiday Tournament, the Green Wave lost to Texas Western 76-59, and to the host team 84-77. Although Tulane led at the half over the Yale Bulldogs, they couldn't make it last and lost 97-85. Sophomore Dick Buckman was the only spark in the second half of this final non-conference game.

Things were no better for Tulane in conference play as they lost their SEC opener to Florida, 86-79. The court-men lost to Georgia in the last 45 seconds 87-83, junior guard Shoup led the Wave with 23. Tulane then got whipped for their 12th and 13th losses against the Tennessee Vols 82-55 and the Kentucky Wildcats 105-63. Their 14th came against intra-state rival Louisiana State 83-74. Buckman filled in adequately for injured Dale Gott with 14 points. The Greenies had serious second half problems in back to back home games as they lost to Mississippi 86-74, and Mississippi State 81-77. Nationally ranked Vanderbilt stung the Wave 99-64 for their 17th loss. Dale Gott was all the hapless Greenies had as they lost to the Georgia Tech Yellow-Jackets, 92-68. The Greenbackers spirit organization showered patrons with rabbits feet, but it was to no avail as Tulane lost to Alabama 86-73, although Davidson had 28. The Greenies full court press comeback in the second half fell short as they lost to Auburn 78-72. Losses 21 and 22 were to the Mississippi foes again as the Wave lost to Ole Miss in a 63-62 heartbreaker and to Mississippi State 78-71. In their season-ending home game upset over LSU, bedlam broke loose at the final horn and Tulane fans stormed the court and hoisted heroes Bob Davidson and Dale Gott on their shoulders just as if the Greenies had won the national championship, instead of their first game in 23.

Although the Green Wave will have lost their outstanding seniors, Bob Davidson, Dale Gott and Mike Kurtz, they will be trying to rebuild and rebound into a winning season next year with strong juniors George Fisher and Denny Shoup, and the year's experience of leading sophomores Charlie Brandt, Dave Kendall, and Dick Buckman. They also look forward to the 1963-1964 Freshman team for much needed depth.

Final words of instruction are given to the team minutes before the opening jump.

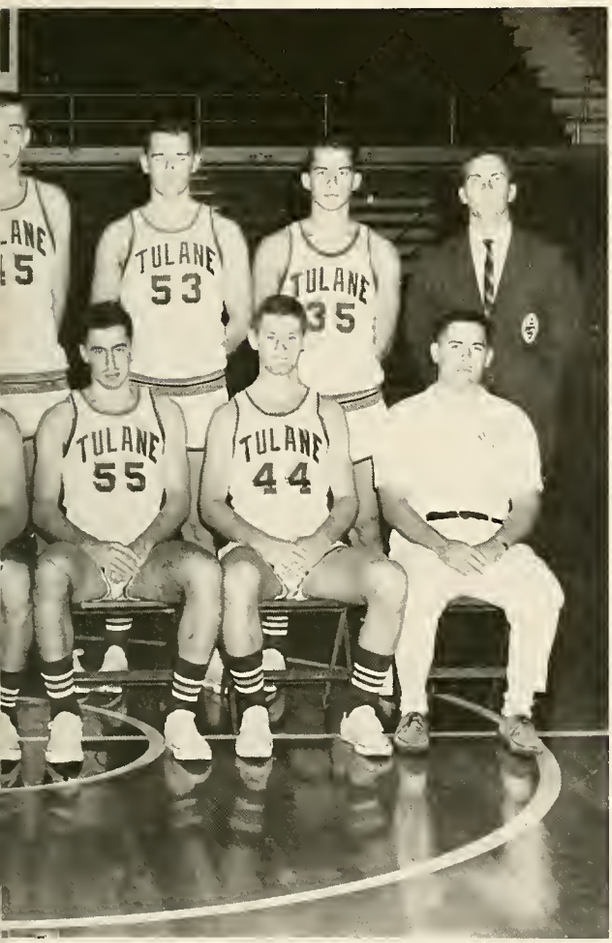
Start Optimistically

Outstanding senior guard Dale Gott (44) and 6-5 sophomore forward Dave Fisher momentarily slow down Mississippi State activity.



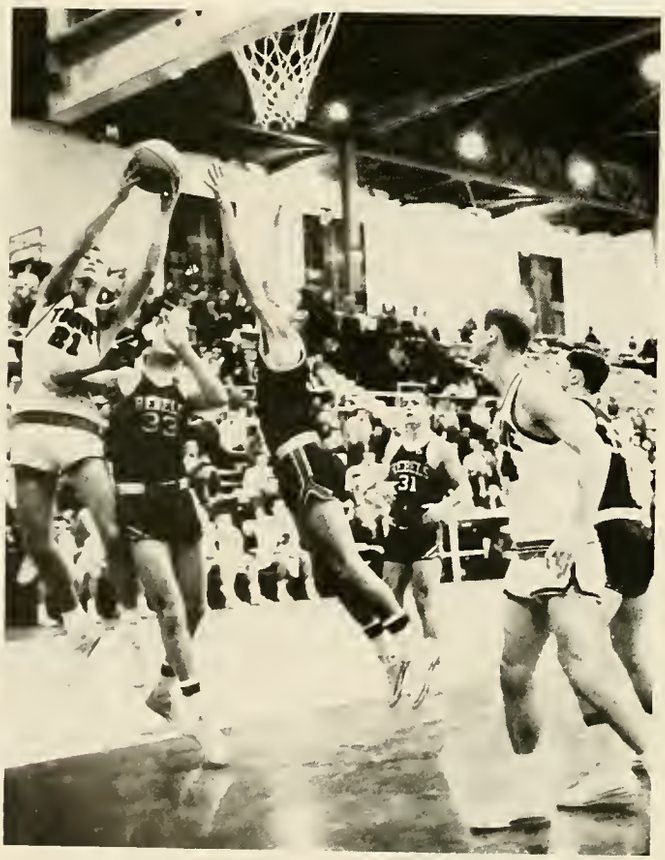
6-7 Cenior Center Bob Davidson lets it go for two more of his career total of 931 points for Tulane.

Davidson enables Dave Fisher to pop one in, as Gott (44) and 6-5½ junior forward George Fisher look on in the Greenies' SEC opener against Florida.

Senior forward Mike Kurtz boosts up the score after stealing the ball from State.

Tottering Tulane Team Saved By Victory Over L. S. U.

Tulane's leading scorers are at it again as Davidson puts it up and Gott is there to rebound, if necessary, against the Ole Miss Rebels.



Offensive "fireman" Mike Kurtz displays his defensive ability as junior guard Denny Shoup (3) looks on from mid-court.

Towering 7-1 Baby Billow center, Craig Spitzer, gives a young admirer a friendly handshake in front of Tulane Stadium.

Coach Tom Nissalke's freshman basketball team started the season real strong and then ran into a little trouble and had to settle for a .500 won-loss record of 7-7. The Baby Billow opened up with an 80-72 win over the Southwest Louisiana College frosh. The Tulane frosh then proceeded to trounce Pearl River Junior College 121-72. The frosh managed to get by Pensacola Junior College in overtime, 76-71. In the return match with Pearl River, the Billow found the going quite a bit tougher as it took them four overtimes to win, 45-44. Their first setback came at the hands of the Baby Bengals of Louisiana State, 85-77. Then 6-1 guard and leading scorer, Al Andrews, stole the Billow spotlight with 30 points as they whipped the Ole Miss frosh 113-77. After losing to the Mississippi State frosh 92-85, the Greenies just beat Perkinston Junior College 81-80. Pensacola got revenge on the Billow by a score of 76-62, but the Wave frosh rebounded with another win over Perkinston, 84-65. The remainder of the season turned out to be all downhill for the Baby Billow as they lost their last four games, the final one being a heartbreaker to the LSU Baby Bengals, 59-58.

Although things were a little tough in the second half of the season, the Tulane frosh should provide the much needed depth to next year's varsity with such boys as Al Andrews, who averaged 21.4 points per game, Jim Thiel—15.8 points per game, and John Schweers—12.3 points per game.

Emmett Pare, Tennis Coach.

Tulane's defending Southeastern Conference tennis champions opened their 11-match 1964 season March 13 in Tallahassee, Florida, and they were expected to have a good chance of finishing on May 9, undefeated; that date being the final day of the Southeastern Conference Tournament. Without having to contend with Trinity, the number one team in the nation last year, the Green Wave's greatest test was expected to come from Rice, whom they tied in their 9-1-1 season last year.

Veteran Coach Emmett Pare lost No. 1 singles player Lee Fentress and No. 5 SEC champ Ed Austin by graduation, but he expected to draw from his depth of superior netmen to fill in adequately. Returning lettermen were Chuck Bleckinger, the No. 2 singles champ in the league last season who posted a 9-2 dual meet record; Dan Rhodes, the big lefthander who went 10-1 and won the No. 3 crown in 1963; Bobby Hardcastle, 10-1 and the No. 4 conference champ; and David Moss, who went unbeaten in nine matches and captured the SEC No. 6 singles. Bleckinger, sophomore sensation Frank Lamothe and Rhodes were expected to rank 1, 2, 3 in singles. Other varsity players were sophomores Billy Banta and Ed Lewis, and junior Ray Lake. The Greenies' depth and continued bright future was enhanced by promising frosh netters, Richard Carter, Lee Kantrow, Stratton Overton, and Richard Peters.

One of big Dan Rhode's major assets is his powerful serve.

Chuck Bleckinger is the No. 1 man on the team and also one of the top players in the South.

Letterman Bobby Hardcastle displays form that helped him win 10 of 11 matches during the 1963 season.

Catcher Dennis Malpus throws back mask in his first step toward retiring another player on a routine pop-foul.

Ben Abadie, who coached Tulane's last winning baseball team (11-9 in 1957), returned as head coach of the Green Wave this year to try and turn the trick again. Although the team went 6-18-1 last season, things looked brighter for 1964. Bolstering the Greenies' chances are 11 returning lettermen and several promising sophomores. Last year's centerfielder and top slugger, Bob Neider, has been moved to shortstop. Sure-handed Dale Gott returned at third with hardhitting Clem Dellenger at first. Rookie Dave Flettrich was at second and letterman Seaborn Hunt started in the catcher's position. The other two-thirds of last season's outfield, Ray Nord and Ken Korach, were expected to continue their fine play. Dick Roniger, one of the best pitchers in the SEC, was expected to lead the pitching squad with the help of highly touted sophomore Richie Schmidt. Coach Abadie's chances with the Greenie diamondmen depended heavily on the strength of the five returning right-handed hurlers backing up these two men on the mound.

The Tulane charges looked forward to a twenty-five game schedule against the finest teams in the Southeastern Conference and nation and Coach Abadie was quoted as saying, "Maybe we can surprise a few people."

Greenie Cindermen Are

Coach John Oelkers.

Coach John Oelkers believed Tulane's track fortunes would pick up this year. The Green Wave had two tremendous athletes in quartermiler Bill Shapiro, who won the Sugar Bowl 400 meters in 47.6 seconds, and Bill Arsuaga, a 24-foot broad jumper. The Greenies also expected to get plenty of points in the mile relay, where the four-man duties were divided among John Kenney, David Crais, Louis Kapicak and Shapiro.

The young team, void of any experienced seniors, depended on promising sophomore sprinters, Bill Wilson, Arsuaga, Wade Schaubut, Bob Thweatt, and James Conner, but none appeared to be better than 9.8 in the "century" making it hard to get points in the dashes. However, the Wave had excellent potential in the middle distances. Shapiro could become one of the nation's best in the "quarter" and Coach Oelkers believed that in the future Bill would run a half-mile. Expected to be leading distance runners were Harry Belin and Bill Kerwin. Bob Buras and Mike Guerin, who had a 14.8 clocking in the highs, handled the hurdle chores. Top field performers were expected to be Arsuaga in the broad jump, Stann Kann, who had 200-foot potential in the javelin, and Ira Lee Sorkin, a promising shot and discus hefty.

The cindermen weren't expected to contend for many titles, but were counted on to score more points than Tulane teams of recent years.

6-1, 240 pound freshman Barry Wax puts a lot of muscle into the "shot."

INNES MILLAR, Golf Coach

Three-year senior veteran Bill Lee was expected to handle the No. 1 assignment on Tulane's golf team this year. The other members of the team along with Lee, were Ray Fontenot, Hank Corder, Bob Frankel, Walley Blessey, Charles Durham, Steve Schreibman, Steve Bellaire, Steve Abrams, Rodney Baine, Herman Crowder and Charles Foto.

Coach Innes Millar expected his golfers to better their .500 finish of last year, as they had a 4-4 dual match record. The Wave golfers started the season against Southern Illinois University and were expected to have a better than even chance of bringing in victories over such formidable teams as Alabama, Mississippi State and L.S.U. in their nine dual match schedule. The Greenie links-men also were expected to drive and putt their way to some trophies in their three tournaments, culminated by the Southern Intercollegiate Championships at Athens, Georgia.

With six sophomores and two juniors on this years team, Coach Miller can look forward to a very bright future.

Linksmen Tee Off Against Nine Strong Opponents

Senior Bill Lee displays putting skill that has made him the No. 1 man on the team.

Coach Lowell Damonte's "Mermen," facing one of the toughest schedules in the conference, failed to surface topside this year as they compiled an 0-7 record. The Green Wave swimmers dropped their opening meet of the season to Alabama 61-31, and then fell to Sewanee 53-35. Florida State University then beat them 57-35. In their first meeting with Miami, backstroker Dick Tyson was the only Greenie winner as they lost 61-33. The only Wave first places in their loss to Georgia Tech 62-28, were in the 200-yard individual medley and the 400-yard free style relay. Emory beat the Tulane tankmen 55-39, and then the Greenies lost their return match with Sewanee, 47-38. Although they lost to Miami again 63-26, Rick Bauer and Serpell Edwards came through with two strong victories.

The graduation of senior captain Chuck Murphy was a loss to the Wave; however, great depth remains for next season. The freshman swimmers should also add spark to next year's varsity, as they shattered six school records during their 1963-64 dual meet season. Led by Robert Jourdan, Wayne Kehm and Gwinn Murray, the frosh won seven of ten events against the Sewanee frosh. Coach Damonte is expecting these boys to help bring the Greenies to the surface in '65.

Intramurals Competition

Tulane meets the athletic needs of students who do not participate in intercollegiate competition by offering an intramural sports program that is unrivaled in the South. The program is directed by Ben Abadie and offers participation in events from football to bridge. There are two leagues: one is All-University, drawing participants from the schools and ROTC; the other is a dormintory league. with students competing for their residence halls.

Nine sports drew contention first semester. Touch football winners were Law School and Irby House; A & S and Irby garnered swimming honors; Army ROTC and McBryde were volleyball winners. Navy and Bechtel were tennis champions; Business School and Irby topped ping-pongers; Navy and Bechtel were victorious at badminton. Navy and McBryde won golfing competition; Army and McBryde were bowling kings; and Medical School and Irby won at squash.

Intramural competition was open in the spring in both divisions in basketball, handball, pool, horseshoes, free throws, track, bridge, softball, golf, and squash doubles.

Low hurdles competition is just one of the events in the annual intramural track and field meet.

"For what is your friend that you should seek him with hours to kill? Seek him always with hours to live." Kahlil Gibran. There seems to be a no more beautiful nor memorable structure than the Taj Mahal in any land, anywhere on the globe. Most intriguing of its features is the construction of the building itself. It begins with a wide, flat base and continues upward in a series of levels which are finally crowned by a very full and encompassing globe. Such a building with its various levels and intricate construction is analogous to the entire educational process. Let us call the wide, flat base high school and each succeeding level either college, graduate school, or the business world. The encompassing and topmost level is life itself and the overall edifice is friendship. With the passage of time, each of us climbs higher on the steps to the very top, life. We need the full series of steps and levels to gain all those bits of knowledge and experience that will culminate in our final self and will guide us to the topmost level. On our journey upward we share with others also striving to accomplish what we ourselves seek and learn to call them friends. Let us live fully at each level, giving and gaining and growing, and let us share our experiences with friends worldwide; then shall we be complete individuals enjoying the full friendship we gain from each of the . . .

Facing Prospect Of Their Coming Sophomore Year

Don't you think it's a little tight?

The Young Brunologist Society is considered to be the most active of the campus spirit groups for they come into contact with more spirits than anyone else at Tulane. The lively group has required meetings and although no attendance is taken, they usually meet on Friday afternoons for a laboratory session at Bruno's. The membership includes many of the campus personalities, but unlike the other spirit groups there is no limit on the number of nominees from each sorority or fraternity, and the group is completely open to independents. There can be no question that on Friday evenings the Young Brunologists are the happiest Tulanians.

Alma Mater...

For more than three-quarters of a century the Whitney, like Tulane, has nurtured the dreams and ambitions of young men and women. With these plans the natural and economic resources of our area have grown, and we have grown with them. We congratulate the University and its alumni on the important contribution Tulane has made in developing young men and women whose vision, courage and hard work have helped so much to build their country.

A WORD TO

College seniors and graduate students

You are on the threshold of one of the most exciting and important phases of your life . . . your career. Your reward for many hours of study will be a good position in your chosen field of endeavor. In other words, your future is unlimited. Why not protect it NOW?

PACE, Pan-American's College Estate plan, was designed just for you seniors and graduate students, to provide a fair amount of life insurance protection at an age when you benefit from lower rates. This is protection that will grow with you. And, we can guarantee that in future years we will sell you additional coverage regardless of health or occupational hazards.

Yes, we know you don't have funds enough to buy life insurance while in school. Most of us at Pan-American Life remember our undergraduate days when money was a scarce item. That's why we have built into the PACE plan a special deferred payment arrangement. It allows you to purchase a nominal amount of life insurance with the premium payment coming due after graduation, when you are located in that first big job.

There's a Pan-American agent near you. Why not give him a call, or write to our Special Plans Department in New Orleans for complete details of our unique PACE plan.

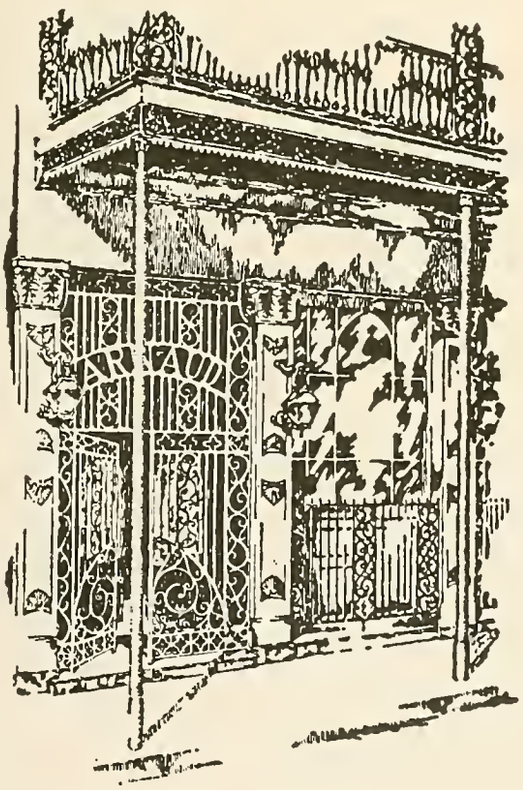
GERMAINE CAZENAVE WELLS

Owner of Arnaud's Restaurant, daughter of the late Count Arnaud, founder of the restaurant that bears his name, as well as creator of many famous Creole and French dishes famed throughout the world.

ARNAUD'S—Selected the best restaurant of the South for the 2000th anniversary of the founding of the City of Paris.



Few are the people who set foot on the sidewalk of New Orleans who do not seek to learn the location of Arnaud's and forthwith journey there to enjoy this famous cuisine. After partaking of a notable meal, guests frequently ask the derivation of a particular dish: "Is it French?" "Is it Spanish?" The answer is that it is a combination of the wizardry of the French with the art of Spanish to make Arnaud's masterpieces.

JAMB Staff Shares A Year Of Progress At Tulane

As the pages of the 1964 JAMBALAYA flip by and the world of Tulane slows its pace to let its graduating seniors step-off. memories of four, short, stimulating and fun-filled years are recollected momentarily into one valuable experience. Periods of depression and periods of happiness, "coffee-cup" bull sessions and strong fast friendships, all night cram sessions and Fridays at Brunos fuse into one panorama of Tulane and the days that we have come to know as "college."

The 1964 JAMBALAYA is not the effort of one or two individuals but a combined effort of many to record the days and memories of a year at Tulane. Heartfelt appreciation is expressed to Dr. Karlem Riess for his never ending desire to be of assistance in every way possible . . . Gratitude to Mr. Dan Eadie of Benson Printing Co. for helping to formulate ideas and offering encouragement when the "chips were down". . . Many thanks to Mushtaq Ahmad for the arduous task of compiling the Jambalaya's first student index . . . to Fred Backlond. Jacob Wilensky and to all of my friends who "dropped in" to lend a helping hand . . . to Mrs. R. L. Chambers, Mr. J. B. Morgan, Mr. Armand Bertin and Mrs. Phyllis Moore . . . to Roloc Corporation . . . to World Wide Photos, especially Mr. Jim Bourdier and Mr. Meyer Goldberg, for the picture of President Kennedy, and . . . to the Sports Department of The Times Picayune.

Each page of your yearbook has been stained with the sweat, tears or laughter of every member of the JAMBALAYA staff. To each of them individually and as a working unit I am deeply grateful for their efforts in understanding and in coorperating to make this years JAMBALAYA a treasure of memories and a true contribution to world understanding.
