Newcomb Senior Class History

The state of the s

HE Historian, pen in hand, sits down to write her class history in the timehonored fashion. And this is how she goes about it: She gathers together old JAMBALAYAS from years past, and anxiously and dutifully reads all the other class histories that have gone before hers. She decides to be original, but, upon due reflection, comes to the conclusion that her predecessors have stolen her thunder. It remains for her to be truthful, modest and exact. Moreover, she must hasten to complete the history before it is finished—which may sound like one of Oscar Wilde's parodoxes, but merely means that the JAMBALAYA, in its haste to go to press, cannot wait until the Senior Class has properly commenced and thus completed the most important part of its history.

The Historian, then, is confronted with various problems. Dare she affirm that 1920's invincible basketball team accomplished the unheard-of feat of winning the cup for three successive years, when the last victory is yet to come? Shall she boast of performances in dramatics, debating, and the like, when the story is yet in the making? Were it not safer to return to our Freshman year and, after a careful study of statistics, prove that we already showed signs of unusual promise; to meditate upon the glories of our Sophomore year, when we first won the basketball cup, had more people in Dramatic Club play, and every other activity, than any other class; and, finally, to rehearse the glories of last year? That, surely, is the accepted method of procedure. Still, statistics are boring, and 1920, no matter though we should like to believe it, is not the first class to achieve these things. We maintain that it is an exceptionally good class, but then there have been others, many others, and, of course, there will be still many more whose trail of glory will be as wide as ours. What we have done, we have done well; but, after all, the things we have done are not the things that count the most. It is what we have been. And that is where 1920 comes into her own. It is a good class because the girls are unusually fine. And there you have it. There's nothing the matter with the Senior Class. It's all right.

Senior Arts and Sciences Class History

HEN we came to Tulane four short years ago we wondered many times if we could ever master enough of our exams to be Seniors—and we wondered, too, if we would ever make a name for our class. But this state of wonder and doubt did not last long, for as soon as we had our first fight with the "Sophs," across that little lake in Audubon Park, we knew that we would in the end counsel Tulane to give us a place in her history which could not be forgotten.

In our Sophomore year we were again victorious in the tug-o'-war, and by virtue of that victory we have the distinction and honor of never having allowed "our end of the rope" to touch water.

The beginning of our Junior year started with Camp Martin, most of the members of our class being first-class "rookies." But Camp Martin and our duties as "kitchen police" did not last long, and we soon returned to finish our term as Juniors. We gave up the frivolities of our first two years and began to think of the time when we would say good-bye to dear old Tulane.

And here we are at the gateway of life, ready to say farewell to our Alma Mater; and as we leave we hope we have left behind us a great record for the institution we all love. We go, but we shall never forget that we owe much to Tulane, and we shall always hold close to our hearts the fond memories of our college days and of Tulane.

Senior Technology Poem

Friends, we gather forth in gladness, we have toiled four years away, And the light upon the morrow heralds forth a greater day.

Close the chapters of our struggle—close the toils the years have brought;

Close and never ask the reason—you have known the anguish wrought.

Oh, the wrath of warring nations, wrath of foe for warring foe,
Oh, the vengeance of the sages: they have struck the fiercer blow.
But we live, we breathe to say it, four long years have lived it through,
And the light points to a freedom, a freedom and a life anew.

Men, we laughed and drudged together, scorned together, you and I; We perhaps have forced a triumph, mostly we have gotten by. Oh, the thought that we have wagered toward the winning of our plan, We've converted into knowledge and a greater glimpse of man.

Techs of '20, we have struggled, nor have bent beneath the strain; Rouse, O rouse your hearts in gladness, rouse your love for old Tulane. Techs of '20, we have struggled—toiled the road through bitter years; We have merged at length to harvest—we have merged as Engineers.

Senior Law Class History

ND so it came to pass, in the sultry days of October of 1917, that this class began to bow before, worship at, and work in the lovely shrine of the "Jealous Mistress," the LAW. Four long years have the shoulders of its members been at the wheel, pushing ahead, and hoping thereby to conquer the task set before them. Sad to say, our great country entered the war; but we are proud to say that large numbers of our class and faculty answered the call of their country, throwing away their legal duties to uphold the swords of right and justice. There is consolation in reflecting that difficulties were overcome, and with dogged perseverance we have only done what our brothers have been required to do before us.

We have only passed our preliminary study of the law, and are now entering upon the practical side of it. The devotion of the most ardent worshipers of jurisprudence is passionate and envious; in the main, the men who win favors of our jealous mistress are they whom difficulties only brace to resolution. Given a certain amount of good sense, force and education, and—accident apart—the rest is a matter of perseverance, industry and courage. It may not be today, nor tomorrow—it perhaps may never be. We witness too many shipwrecks to endeavor to foretell a prosperous voyage. Still, we have the happiness to know that sooner or later, and with reasonable certainty, success comes when it is deserved.

We have been given the torch of legal light by men who have blazed the trail before us. Let us take it up with a vengeance and "carry on."

JUNIORS

Newcomb Junior Class Poem

I'll sing you a song of the classes—
Of the best and the worst of the classes!
Of those that have gone their way—
Of those that are here today.
I'll sing you a song of their deeds—
Of the good and the bad of their deeds!
Of the struggles they've fought and won—
Of what unfinished, of what undone,
But mostly I'll sing of the Juniors,
The Juniors of '21.

I'll write you an ode to the classes—
To the best and the worst of the classes!
To those that have reached the height—
To those that were lost in the fight.
And at the end of my ode to the classes—
To those odds and evens in classes—
I'll write of a race well run,
And of numberless deeds well done—
Of the highest place in the sun.
And the name that I write will be Juniors—
The Juniors of '21.

Junior Arts and Science Class History

ULANE did not realize on September 23, 1917, the day we affixed our names to the pink slips, that the class with the greatest amount of "pep" and life ever known to the university had been enrolled. Just like the hibernating bear, we kept quiet until that eventful day in May, 1918, when we kidnapped the president of the class supposed (?) to enforce the Freshmen regulations, namely, the Sophomores. So united and so well planned were our actions that serious trouble was encountered in locating the prisoner. However, for the sake of Tulane Night, and in order to permit him to see his class out-yelled, out-classed and out-fought, the captive was permitted to go free.

During the interclass contests we met with a few setbacks, but, like, the Allied Armies, we stuck out the fight gamely. Although the interclass contests of 1918 resulted in a tie, the Class of 1922 entered Tulane and beheld 1921 shining forth brilliantly amidst the glory of Tulane's pride and joy, Camp Martin. So convinced was the Class of 1920 that we were the better class, that they made no attempt to remove our numerals. However, later in the year, due to our respect of dignity and right, the flag of 1921 was proudly lowered (alas, for only a short time), and the numerals of our sister class, 1919, graced the tank in their stead.

Undaunted by the hardships of Camp Martin, the class returned to the University diminished in numbers, but more than doubled in fighting strength and spirit. So strict was the enforcement of the Freshman regulations that the Freshmen appealed to the faculty to take the enforcement of them out of our hands. This only made matters worse. We were a determined bunch, and Freshmanism to us was intolerable. During the year more than one hundred and fifty Freshmen were compelled to turn over their hats and replace them in our presence with the "Greenie." There was no such Freshman motto as "We wear green caps when we want to;" it was, "We wear green caps always because the Sophomores make us do so."

Tulane Night of April 3, 1919, will long be remembered in the heart of every undergraduate Tulanian. The Class of 1921 dashed forth in its full fury, armed with moustaches and goatees, surrounded by unsurpassable ingenuity, its fighting spirit keyed up to the highest pitch, their numbers overflowing with pep and enthusiasm, and swept the class of 1922 before them like mere pigmies amidst an atmosphere dignified by the presence of gowned Seniors and alumni. The glory and supremacy of the "Green and White" on that eventful night should and could never be questioned.

During these eventful months two members of the class journeyed to Atlanta and brought back the tennis championship of the S. I. A. A. In other sports we have always been to the front. In our Freshman year we furnished six men to the football varsity, one to basketball, and five varsity wrestlers. In our Sophomore year we furnished nine men to the major sports who earned the much-cherished "T."

The Class of '21 showed its real stamina in April and May of 1919. After losing three interclass contests in a row, it came back and won the last three, thereby placing its numerals on the tank amidst a different Tulane; a Tulane with more pep and life than ever; a Tulane with the best football team in its history; a Tulane graced with the liveliest class in its history, the Class of 1921.

Junior Technology Class History

HE Junior Technology students entered Tulane three years ago and began to make themselves known. They looked forward to the time when they would be able to call themselves Juniors and would have "Pop" and all the other big profs teaching them. Gee! They thought that they would know a lot and be awfully smart—. How true is the old saying, "Tis folly to be wise when ignorance is bliss" (Or "Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis wise to be foolish.—ED.)

Of course, the names have been sadly depleted, but those who are left can now begin to see the outline of a goal standing against the horizon. As they wrestle with the problems of beams, mechanics and other things which occupy their spare time, they realize that they have set foot upon the doorstep of their professional careers. They have started that part of their lives which has long been looked forward to and which will in the future be looked back upon, we hope, only with the most pleasant memories.

Each member of the class possesses sterling qualities, all of which should be mentioned, but on account of limited space the reader will have to content himself with the statement that they are a fine bunch of fellows working hard to fit themselves for life's battles.

Just keep your eye on 1921, and we prophesy that you will see great things come of these boys.

The History of the Law Class of 1921

May It Please the Honorable Court:

HE JAMBALAYA BOARD, having duly presented its petition that the history of the Law Class of 1921 be set forth, and that petition having been granted and an indorsement thereon signed by the proper authority, we now commence an impossible task. The history of our class is not a thing in esse, but a thing in futuro, and therefore not capable of reduction to writing save in broadest outline. However, it is not that which we have learned that may, in the State of Louisiana, be made the subject of a valid sale—a mere hope; nor is it, indeed, salable. It is an inalienable right of inheritance to which we, the forced heirs of Tulane's legal atmosphere, and our own association, one with another, have succeeded.

The fountain heads of all Louisiana jurisprudence—The Roman Law and the Common Law—are institutions sprung from the very bed-rock of antiquity; yet the stream lives and grows. For the brief instant that is given us in the pageant of legal history, we are to shape the course of this stream's waters, that it may make productive and pleasant the otherwise arid plains of the business of life. A justice of the Supreme Court, a learned jurisconsult, a famous public prosecutor, able advocates, cunning counsellors, shrewd solicitors—there you see us. "Ah!" you would remark, "this is a new day, indeed; there are three women in your band." There you see, there in the broadest illustrious outline you read our history. Its binding tie is our association in Old Tulane, a tie of sweet recollection and indissoluble friendship.

And, in closing, may it please the court, we defy such trifles as "cuts," lack of preparation for this or that day's class hour, and even a condition in a subject or two, to mar our history in futuro.

A. M. SUTHON.

Newcomb Sophomore Class Poem

Hail to the Brown and Blue,
All ye good folk and true.
Honor where honor's due!
Hail to our college!
Oh, ye of twenty-two,
Shout for the Brown and Blue!
Join ye of twenty-two,
All for the college!

First in work as in play,
No one can say us nay,
None our ends gainsay!
This is our story!
Then hail the Blue and Gold!
High our heads we hold,
Twenty-two, brave and bold!
Twenty-two's glory!

The Sophomore Arts and Sciences Class History

N allusion to the Class of 1922 is an expression of pep. Every great movement originates in its midst. It stands supreme, its nearest and dearest rivals being, of course, the Class of 1921. It controls the membership in the "Back-Steps" Club, especially the Arts and Science division. More sleepless nights for the upper classmen have been caused by its activities than any other class that has ever entered Tulane.

But really speaking seriously on our greatness, we have left a glorious record behind us, and foresee an even greater one before us. As Freshmen we won the major contests of the Freshman-Soph contests, namely, basketball, track, and baseball. Wrestling, which should always be an easy victory for the Sophs, was lost by only one match. We just missed being the first even numbered class to have its numerals on the tank for many years by just one contest. Just watch for them there the next year.

Again we proved our fighting prowess by winning one of the most glorious free-for-alls that has ever graced Tulane's campus. We also tried our best to put some pep in Tulane by taking a holiday on Tulane Night, but unfortunately we were worsted in this attempt and took the count from the faculty.

Looking to the future, I see 1922 as the coming class of the University. We have had rather an easy time with the Freshmen of this year, having won wrestling with no serious effort, tug-o'-war, and football. We hardly think, at the present time, that the contest will need to proceed any further than the fourth, as it is quite certain that the Class of 1922 will win that contest.

The Sophomore Technology Class History

HE Technology Class of 1922 first began to make its presence felt on the campus after the signing of the armistice and the subsequent demobilization of the S. A. T. C. Our class has been one of the leading factors in bringing back to Tulane that spirit and pep which had been partly stifled during the period when we were in uniform. We did not win the interclass contests of last year, but we were victorious in baseball, basketball, and track, the three most important of the seven events. In the early part of our Freshman year the Sophomores found that our class was composed of men who were loyal to their class and ready to support it even against odds.

This year we have profited by the experience gained during the past season, and we are perfectly capable of regulating the conduct of the Freshmen on the campus. Since November 1st we have expelled all Freshmen from the exclusive middle steps of Gibson Hall, and we have caused them to walk only on the concrete walks of the campus. With the determination to put an even numeral on the tank this year we have started off with a rush. The Freshmen were defeated in wrestling, tug-o'-war, and football, the only events which have taken place up to the writing of this history. Although the "Freshies" have a larger number of men to choose from, they are unable to stand up against the Class of '22.

The Technology Sophomores are proud of the Class of 1922, and are forever ready to uphold its honor, but never will we make the mistake of placing class spirit before Tulane spirit. We are here as a part of Tulane, and in the future, as engineers, we hope to be a source of great pride for our university.

History of the Freshman Law Class

NDAUNTED by the cold, hard facts that "most lawyers starve to death," and that four-fifths of the 1918-19 first year law class were victims of the faculty slogan, "Thou shalt not pass," September 29, 1919 witnessed the scene of a notable group of future greats, including war heroes, athletes, and ex-aviators, registering for the work of the Freshman Law Class. One naturally asks, "Why, then, in spite of the above stated facts, did so many promising young men begin the study of law?" I can only give some probable answers, since the registration blanks failed to contain the question.

Perhaps it was because of the desire to become members of the only existing bar since July 1, 1919; perhaps there was the inspiration to plead for justice; or there may have existed the ambition to become statesmen among some of the members of the class. Nevertheless, for one reason or another, we began to prepare for the honorable profession of a barrister on October 1, 1919.

Although only four months old, the class has already brought distinction on itself. So many of its members made the varsity football team that on a certain Saturday that the team was filling an out-of-town engagement one of the professors sincerely asked, "Do all the members of this class belong to the football team?" Of course, the answer was in the negative, but it may be said that the embryo lawyers who were not on the team were back of it, heart, soul and purse.

The football season was still fresh in the memories of the class when the first obstacle, the final examination on the history of Roman law, on the path to the coveted LL.B., caused many to stumble. However, with strong courage, the stumblers soon rose to their feet and worked hard right up to the day the university calendar said, "Christmas holidays begin."

The gay Yuletide season saw the society pages of the local newspapers covered with lists of names that resembled the class roll. The holidays were over only too soon, and without even the formal New Year greetings the class started back to work with a vim. Long hours were spent in the library in the diligent pursuit of that jealous mistress, the Law. And before anyone could fully realize it, the dreaded examination days were at hand with questions ending, "What would you, as the district atterney, do in this case?"; "A comes to you for your counsel as an attorney-at-law. What would you advise him to do?" Our answers were scrutinized by the professors and the term grades posted, in full public view, on the bulletin board. Heavy black mourning crepe served as a suitable frame for the board, which explains the sad fate of the aspiring would-be lawyers.

This is our past. Who can prophesy our future? Shall we, in the future years, guide the ship of state, sit on the benches of the highest courts, gowned in solemn black robes, and hold the scales of justice; or shall we sink into oblivion? Time alone will tell.

HERMAN WINSBERG.

FRESHMEN

Newcomb Freshman Class Poem

What puts pep into college life,
What delights upper-classmen?
What makes a Soph say,
"Let me show you the way"?—
Why, just a green little Freshman.

All hail, then, to the Freshman,
With her colors of white and gold,
Who loves '23
As a prof loves his fee,
And swears, tho' young, to be bold.

You ask me, "Have these Freshmen spirit?
Are they all jolly fellows well met?
Do they take the girls' chaff
With a whole-hearted laugh,
And say, 'Oh, our goat's hard to get'?"

It's a thousand to one that they do,
And here is the reason why—
They're the best to be found
On Newcomb's ground—
They pass any other class by.

On the famous fifth of November
Green caps for the first time they wore,
Then snake-danced, of course,
And yelled themselves hoarse,
To prove to the Sophs they weren't sore.

Then the Juniors gave them a party, A rare celebration, I'll say; From beginning to end All wild women and men. You see, 'twas a real cabaret.

Next a party from Freshmen to Juniors
The day before Valentine Day,
With a kname of hearts,
And a tray of tarts,
And a court with queens and maids gay.

So you see they've had plenty of fun,
And love Newcomb as much as they can.
They've never been shy,
Nor have wanted to die—
It's the result of the "big sister" plan.

Freshman Arts and Sciences Class History

HERE is an essential difference between being a Senior at high school and a Freshman at college. If any incredulous ones wish to doubt that statement, I refer them to two hundred Freshmen of the Class of '23. In our last year at "High" we were wont to rule; NOW, others are wont to "over" rule us. Still I think I express the sentiment of the entire class when I say that the Class of 1923 has met with creditable success in studies as well as in athletics. We hope to continue the good work. All the efforts of '22 to subdue us have failed beyond the enforcement of faculty regulations. During the first month we defeated the Sophs in hand-to-hand encounters resulting from the futile attempts to break up our class meeting. The victory of the Sophomores in the tug-o'-war and the method in which it was won are known to all. We point with pride to the resistance that we, an unorganized class, were able to offer our organized rivals, and promise only that after the last interclass event will we acknowledge ourselves as beaten.

With three or four members of the Freshman Class on the varsity eleven, we feel that our class is not to be scorned at, especially when said football team proved itself to be one of the best that has ever represented the university. We would not be content, however, to allow anyone to say that four Freshmen alone helped fight the battles of the university on the gridiron. Two hundred and twenty Tulane students—Freshmen—were conspicuous by their presence at all football meetings and contests. The first year we entered the university an unusual amount of much-needed college spirit was instilled into the student body, a spirit which characterized all the activities of the year. We of the Class of '23 claim our share of the glory of arousing this enthusiasm.

In concluding this short history of the Freshman Class, 1923, the largest class yet to be enrolled at Tulane, we can best use the maxim of one of Harvard's Freshman Classes, "Tulane has waited eighty-five years for us."

Freshman Technology Class History

HE Freshman Tech Class, comprising seventy-five per cent of the entire Freshman Class, is the largest that has ever entered the university, and it is therefore fitting that some sort of history be written about it.

As Tug-o'-Warmen, the Sophs proved themselves adept politicians. It was a war, but one more in the form of words. It is evident that the Freshmen would have been easy victors had they placed their debating team on the ropes instead of their regular tug-o'-war team. We won two pulls, the Sophs one; yet the Sophs won (Good logic.—Ed.). Apparently the first two pulls were considered as setting-up exercises or as practice, while the last one, which the Sophs won, was the real tug-o'-war. Of course, the Sophs did not hear the signal whistle in one of our victories, but, as we said before, the Sophs were accompanied by their Ciceros and Websters, and the judges were finally convinced that they did not hear it, although it was audible to everyone else within seventy-five yards.

We are compelled to wear green caps by the faculty, but this does not signify that we are green. At any rate, the Sophs must have thought so at the taking of the JAMBALAYA class picture, when they attempted to give some members their Saturday night bath on Tuesday. (They must have tried to convince you that that day was Saturday.—Ed.) As a result, a meeting of protest of the Freshman Class was held, which meeting the Sophs made a feeble attempt to break up. Upon the discarding of coats and glasses, the Sophs soon wished that they had not started what they had, for the stormers suddenly became the stormed.

Our first months at Tulane were such as to even remove the Sophomores from our thoughts. The schedules invariably followed the routine of arriving at school at eight-thirty and leaving at four-thirty, and then study half of the night. Besides, there was the class attendance on Saturday, an entirely new thing, to add to our misery. Test-less weeks were indeed scarce articles. Now, however, we have become accustomed to the college routine. The mechanical drawing sheet no longer has to be remade a dozen times before acceptance, nor does the "graft" paper have the tendency of grafting our marks downward. The future of the Freshman Class is entirely a matter of conjecture, but, having overcome the obstacles so far, the survivors have gained sufficient courage to keep them to their determination of becoming Sophomore, Junior, and, ultimately, Senior Techs.

In Loving Memory of the Medical College of Tulane University

After a useful life covering over three-quarters of the past century, M.D. entered into happiness everlasting November 1, 1919.

It is hard to write an obituary. It is hard, in any case, because the warm friendship and hearty admiration, sentiments which grip one's heart and lock the muscles of the throat, come out just cold trite phrases when on paper. How hard is it in the case of M.D., whose bright and cheerful smile and careless chuckle were so long the guiding light and star of Tulane campus, whose ever-ready hand was at the heart of every student enterprise—tears welling up and words abolize in the throat forbid we continuing choking in the throat forbid us continuing.

Born in 1839, the Medical College of Tulane University became great beyond all expectations, coming to rank among the very foremost medical institutions of the country. It reached the height of service during the Great War, when one of the most complete medical units ever assembled in America was sent overseas to serve on the battle fronts.

Ah, what wailing and gnashing of teeth was there when it became known at the beginning of the 1919-20 school session that a manton and foreign hand was doing to death such an institution; when it became known that after all these years M.D. was to turn Bolshevik, red and radical, and withdraw from the JAMBALAYA to put out a year book all of his very own.

We will not rehearse the struggle of the other colleges to save M.D.—suffice that everything possible was done to "keep the Medical College in the University."

But, though death and oblivion have taken his loving face from our midst, it will live ever green in our memory. Amen.

Jambalaya Contests

N the fall of 1919, in spite of the warning afforded by history that "beauty contests" brought trouble, the 1920 Jambalaya Board set about the task of discovering the prettiest, the most popular, and the wittiest of Newcombites. A spirited ballot contest was carried on for a period of two months, the winners of which you have no doubt already cast your eyes upon—perhaps several times. (The Jambalaya Board does not blame you in the least for this.) The final standing of the contestants is submitted below:

The Tulane Council of Fraternities

HE Interfraternity Council of Tulane University is the cutgrowth of the old Pan-Hellenic Societies and is a result of the desire on the part of the fraternities and university authorities for a medium through which the various chapters in the university might come into closer contact for the discussion of all matters conducive to the best interest of the fraternities and the university. It is composed of two men from each fraternity represented at Tulane, and a Chairman, the last named being a member of the faculty. Its main objects are to fix rules and regulations relative to fraternity activities and conduct, to promote inter-fraternity activities and contests, and to foster a better student spirit in the university.

Kappa Delta Phi is a Junior-Senior Society organized for the promotion of college spirit at Tulane University. It seeks to obtain its object in two ways: First, by holding forth membership as a reward to those who have done more than the average man for their University; and, secondly, by binding together those who have made unusual effort, thus becoming a force for great good by securing unity of action.

The war held back many college activities at Tulane, but not the Glendy-Burke Society. Year before last, amidst an apparent indifference for debating among the students, and contrary to all expectations, the Glendy-Burke had a most successful season, which ended by Harold Newman, Jr., and James Monroe winning a bitterly fought debating tournament.

But still greater was the past year's success. Never before had there been such an eagerness on the part of the members to prove their merit in forensic skill, and never before had there been so many men craving to become part and parcel of the Glendy-Burke, whose name, when mentioned to many of the most prominent and influential men of our state, brings back fond recollections of their debating days at good old Tulane.

The past reputation of the Glendy-Burke is known to many, and we propose to continue the present and future Glendy-Burke as the best known debating club at Tulane, so that (as it is now) anyone admitted to its membership will consider it a privilege and distinction conferred upon but a select few.

The Y. M. C. A. has long been in existence on Tulane campus. The moral, mental and physical needs of the student which are not cared for in the other phases of college life are the particular field of service of this student organization. It acts as a clearing house between the student and such vital matters as his church, living accommodations, employment in spare time, and social life. It is the center of campus life, fostering those things of interest which too often are everybody's business and, therefore, nobody's business. The financial support of this organization comes from the student body and the faculty through voluntary subscription.

Football at Tulane in 1919

EST this be the only archive, outside the memories of a fleeting generation, to rest the record of a stalwart tribe during one open season for scalps, let this deviate from the tendency of local historians and go down free from bias and prejudice. Without any striking of flags to charity, the spoils of this rampage can be reckoned as the most delectable of all brought back to the village. These returns to be measured perhaps, not in the presence of complete victory, but in the recognition of the University as a factor in Southern football, the financial recoupment, the impetus given to the student support, and, ascendant over all, the hope held out of a team and a spirit that will bear the future fall athletic endeavors beyond a one-game season.

Among the novel features to be remembered for the season are: the comparative abundance of material and earnest competition for the positions; the presence of a scrapping, fighting aggregation of yannigans, and a student and faculty support hitherto unparallelled. All of this, construed as a confession, may reflect on the veracity of past guardians of Tulane's gridiron; but be that as it may, future claims are now assured of a precedent.

But to write of events in detail—it was the best baseball weather football has ever seen at Tulane. The initial games with Jefferson and Southwestern were disposed of with the ease anticipated. Springhill, the next opponent, was something else again. That game, in the minds of the players, was the hardest game of the entire schedule. "Ole Miss" was another team that did not run true to form, to the near-disaster of the Olive and Blue. The more "Ole Miss" played, the better she did it, but a big lead taken by

SHAUGHNEES IN ACTION

Tulane at the contest's inception was too great to be overcome. Mississippi College was of little trouble, even as Florida, although the 'Gators came here with a confidence born of achievement. The Florida victory was the strategic victory of the year. Evidence of real merit was exhibited in the Georgia mill. Far from home and in a colder clime, the Georgia Smokehouse came near being devastated. Even though it was not a victory, it left the team's record unscathed.

And now let this be printed in black, for we deal with tragedy. Shades of Hamlet! On that day someone neglected to satiate Noridirg, the guardian of Tulane football destinies, in his craving for the encasements of the pig. His wrath was let loose and a good team lost. There is no place here for recounting the excitement, the vast throngs, or the fortunes of battle. But why all the tears? Another year and a sweeter memory!

The final chapter came in a beautiful game with Washington and Lee, with the scoring ability on a par, and, but for a penalty, the score. The result was a vindication of Tulanian claims, even though not a balm to dashed pride. The season has passed away. Let its epitaph be read below:

E. E. TALBOT.

SMITH (Second Year)
"Bennie" passes and punts with perfection. Has admitted catching the ball in the Southwestern game on the 65-yard line and running ninety yards for a touchdown. He has been challenged as a "Tweet-Tweet."
LINFIELD, CAPTAIN (Fourth Year) Right Guard
"Toby" is as light as a cork and just about as useful when it comes to stopping up holes—especially in a line.
NAGLE (First Year)
"Pinkie" bears out his sorrel-topped disposition in the game. He proved himself a marvel in speed and shiftiness throughout the season. His wingspread is restricted, but he turns up about 1,500 R. P. M. when wide open. His amorous inclinations are the only drawback to his being a crack quarterback.
BROWN (Second Year) Quarter and Left Half
"Bennie" works best at both places (B. T. and K. B.). Dust troubles his eyes on a slushy field.
DWYER (Second Year)

WILLIAMS (Third Year)
McGraw (Fourth Year)
WIGHT (Third Year)
BARNES (Fourth Year)
TALBOT (Second Year)

LEGENDRE (First Year)
SUTTER (First Year)
MALONEY (First Year)
RICHESON (Second Year)
"Lyle" is said to be the best interference man on the squad. He is a member in good standing on the squad cradle roll.
TALBOT, H. (First Year)

REED (First Year)
"Eddie" is few in pounds for his job, but has a great inclination for disturbing All-Southern and All-American ambitions. Ninety-five dollar watches are nothing in his young life. He is a pronounced prohibitionist.
FIELDS (Second Year) Left Half
"Dick" is the acknowledged speed merchant of the squad and the best offensive man behind the line. For particulars, get in touch with Florida U. He is W. C. T. U. on the question of football banquets.
QUINN (Third Year)
"Harold" was another to see much service on the bench, due to a fractured leg. He passes as pleasingly plump, and is the delight of Newcomb.
BOOKOUT (First Year)
"Bookie" once captained "Ole Miss," and did yeoman work for the Olive and Blue this season. He goes into trances if hit hard enough on the head. He is pugilistic at times.
Stewart
"Lucy" proved to be the best of his species in many a day. He is learned in learning and fickle of heart.

Basketball of 1918

When the college year commenced "Peewee" Gentling's presence was missed, and as he was Captain-elect, his failure to appear left the good ship "Basketball" without a field helmsman. But little "Boots," our manager, was not to be discouraged, and a call for candidates was issued, which resulted with but little response on the part of those men of varsity calibre. Johnny Wight was chosen Captain, and real serious practice was only begun about the first week of January. Things looked bad with this kind of a start, but we were not to be discouraged. When such men as McGraw, Dwyer, Farnsworth, Cohen, Nagle, and Legendre put in their appearance, the dark clouds hurried swiftly away. The road trip was extremely disastrous, we having won none of the major games. Sweet revenge was forthcoming, however, and when Alabama gave us its return game we defeated that team to the tune of 17 to 12. But the unkindest cut of all was the loss of four games out of the four played with our dear friends from up-state. We have no excuses to offer; they just had a better team. Our record follows:

Baseball Season of 1919

HE 1919 baseball season at Tulane was more a question of finances than anything else. The T. A. A., after being petitioned by the students, refused to support the sport financially, so Student Manager Adolph Scharff started to work up spirit enough to get a team. The result was that Tulane had a team, financed, however, at a loss. The deficit was partly covered by contributions as follows: Tulane Alumni Association, $150.00; Tulane alumni, $95.00; and Tulane students, $90.00. The students failed to contribute as was expected, only one-third of the sum pledged from this source having been collected.

Aside from finances, the season was a great success. Ten games were played, of which seven were won and three lost. L. S. U., our most hated rival, was beaten two out of the three games Tulane played them. To Manager Scharff is due the credit of giving Tulane one of the best "nines" it has ever had, and the first to play for the Olive and Blue in four years. Coach Gondolfi is greatly responsible for the great showing made, due to the earnest and hard work he put into the team.

Several very good players were uncovered, especially noticeable among them being Leroy Schwartzkoff, who pitched four games, none of which he lost; and, besides, he led the team in batting. Captain Duffy played a star game at third base and saved many taps that ordinarily would have gone for hits. Others deserving mention are Abbott, Brown, Snow, Wight, and Campbell. The work of Landry and Gentling in the field is also commendable. The men who received their letters are: Abbott, catcher; Schwartzkoff, pitcher; Bienvenue, pitcher; Snow, first baseman; Campbell, second baseman: Wight, shortstop; Duffy (captain), third baseman; Landry, left fielder; Gentling, center fielder; Brown, right fielder; and A. Scharff, manager. The record of the games played follows:

Tulane .		3; St. Stanislaus	. 1	Tulane .		8; Alumni.		2
Tulane .		1; L. S. U	. ΰ	Tulane .		5; Springhill		0
Tulane .		4; Springhill .	. 3	Tulane .		3; Springhill		1
Tulane .		4; Springhill .	. 12	Tulane .		1; Springhill		3
Tulane .		3; L. S. U	. 2	Tulane .		5; L. S. U.		1

The students have shown the T. A. A. that they want baseball, and if a team is not financed this coming year, the whole of last season will be considered unsuccessful, since the 1919 team was financed with a view to the future promotion of the sport.

1919 Track Season

Following closely the signing of the armistice, track at Tulane was subjected to the same havoc suffered by basketball as a result of the war. Intercollegiate athletic relations were still estranged, and a normal track season could not be expected.

The Greenbacks, however, were not to be deprived of the opportunity to humble the Tigers. An early call was issued for candidates, but it appeared as if Coach Shaughnessy would have insufficient material for building a team capable of taking the measure of L. S. U. The gloom which was experienced by some was soon to be dispelled with the appearance of a number of former "T" stars who were tardy in being released from the service. Simpson, Colee, Tycer, Marsalis, and O'Reilly greatly augmented the chances of the Olive and Blue to down the Tiger. Among the newcomers to represent Tulane on the cinder path, Brown, Snelling, Hustedt, Wight, and others began to display form and speed under the direction of Coach Shaughnessy.

It was a pleasant surprise when the wearers of the Olive and Blue were returned victors in a contest which was spirited, but never in doubt, after the first few events. O'Reilly, Colee, Simpson, Tycer, Marsalis, Todd, and Hustedt were the principal point-gainers for Tulane. The relay team, composed of O'Reilly, Snelling, Ebaugh, and Wight displayed so much form that it was decided that Tulane send a team to Philadelphia to take part in the intercollegiate games to be held there in 1920.

An intermural contest between the Law Department and the remainder of the university was the outcome of a bold challenge issued by certain promising young barristers, (the names of these men we have withheld for legal reasons.) With a number of "T" track men in their midst and several ineligibles, the lawyers promised a close meet. In a spirited contest, the result of which was in doubt until the final event, the Law Department was defeated by a few points.

The track season was ushered to a close when Tulane became the host of a large and representative field of athletes from all over the South, who came to compete in the Southern Interscholastic Games. A number of future college track stars were to be seen among the contestants. Kramer, Troyer, Covington, EDWARD LEE GLADNEY.

Phillips, and Collins displayed excellent form.

1919 Wrestling

THE wrestling game, the baby sport of Tulane, has only recently taken on the aspect of a major athletic activity, due mostly to the excellent training and enthusiasm of our gym coach, Carl Hanson. Last year its only scope was the picking of the annual wrestling team by a series of elimination matches open to every Tulane student who had not already won a wrestling title in previous years, and the winning of more matches than all other athletic organizations put together in the annual Southern Amateur Athletic Union Tournament.

For several years it has been the hope of Coach Hanson to arrange for intercollegiate matches, but, due partly to the indifference of the athletic association to the sport, this hope has not materialized. However, it is sincerely hoped that these matches will take place in the near future, so that Tulane will become known as the leader of the Southern colleges in the furtherance of the wrestling game—the finest in existence for the even development of the entire body.

Gymnasium Notes

Listen, all ye readers,
To a tale of Freshman woe;
The Gym's the last place on this earth
To which Freshmen like to go.

All jokes aside, aren't they wonderful specimens of American manhood? Our little coach, Carl, has produced them all by himself by that secret muscle-developing formula of his. As far as we have been able to ascertain, it runs something like this: Spend half of every day in the gym; skin up all your knees, arms, face, and body on the wrestling mat; let the other fellow knock the stuffin's out of you in a boxing match, etc. And to think that all of them were once muscleless. A pretty Newcombite was once heard to ejaculate, "Ain't he wonderful." She was alluding to the physique of one of the aforementioned Carl's pupils who was prancing around the floor clad in a gym suit during one of the Inter-Frat Basketball games. Just three months previous he was nothing but a bone, a few rags, and a small hank of hair. Now I'll say he deserves credit.

Freshmen have received a greater amount of individual attention this year, due to the appointment of student assistants in such lines as wrestling, boxing, basketball, calisthenics. The assistants this year were James J. Morse, T. W. Garrett, J. F. McLoughlin, J. R. Venza, W. B. Burkenroad, J. P. Marks. Keep up the good work, coach, they will become men some day.

Confidential Guide To The Faculty

ALBERT BLEDSOE DINWIDDIE, A.B., B.A., PhD., LL.D., A.M., P.M., P.D.Q. President of the University, Chess Shark, and Lotto Champion.

EDDIE AMBROSE BECHTEL

Father of George. He has great difficulty keeping servants, as he insists on ordering them around in Greek.

CHARLES BEIN

Prominent as the Premier Leap-Year Dodger of Society Circle Belles. Nickname, "Chelly-bean."

WILLIAM HENRY P. CREIGHTON, U. S. N.

Alias Willie Horsepower, Velvet Joe, Pop, ——— (Censored by Editor). Author of "Little Roosters Come Home to Roost."

MINNIE MARIE BELL

Objects to shirtsleeves; whistling, feet or heads on table, and annoying the statues in "Minnie's Mountains of Mouldy Manuscripts." (Ed's note:—When we asked what "Minnie" stood for, we were told "For no noise in the library.")

HAL WALTERS MOSELY

The best chairman the Inter-Fraternity Council ever had.

ELLIOTT JUDD NORTHRUP

"Well fellers, I don't want to be dogmatic about it, but I can't see the distinction." The Law School is to give him a "Shower" on Saxie's tenth (?) birthday.

AUGUSTE JOSEPH TETE

Unsophisticated—just graduated from High School.

MORTON ARNOLD ALDRICH

Wait just a minute, this is very confidential. He is known for his efficiency (?), soup-strainer, smoke-screen, secretaries, and illustrious friends.

WILLIAM WOODWARD

Where is he when he isn't at Tulane—practicing up the latest steps in the new dances? He may look old, but he has young ideas.

MELVIN JOHNSON WHITE

The third man in the ring in the Freshman-Sophomore scraps—settles Tug-o'-Wars according to Debating Rules. He thinks he works the Freshmen hard.

STEPHEN I. LANGMAID

We wonder what "l" stands for in his name. (Maybe "Me".) The students call him "Daisy" because he is such a cracker-jack.

LIONEL C. DUREL

He felt at home on his first day at Newcomb—probably from Summer School experiences. Too bad he is married.

FELIPE FERNANDEZ

"Senor's" 1921 model moustache is setting the pace in jellybean circles. Charged with violating student regulations by compelling the co-eds to hand in their work.

JAMES E. WINSTON

Newcomb's unanimous candidate in the "Candy Kid" contest. Tea Room's best customer. Most eligible Leap-Year candidate.

Raisin' Hell With Pan-Hellenic

Kappa Kappa Gamma—A key that fits 'most any door. "Variety is the spice of life." They will be awarded the "Blue Ribbon" for numbers.

Pi Beta Phi—Nobby and snobby. Social buds, but unfortunately bearing some thorns. If you want to get shot with an arrow, just look prosperous and talk about the Country Club.

Kappa Alpha Theta—They won the five dollars for having their JAMBALAYA pictures finished first. How could they help it? "Kats" are all more or less homely, and any kind of picture would do.

Alpha Delta Pi—Have you ever seen an Alpha Delt who was not good-looking? They pride themselves on the exclusiveness of their chapter. Their chapter is small because "beggars are not choosers."

Alpha Omicron Pi—A bunch of "bones." They have kept Pan-Hellenic quiet this year—it is as inconspicuous as their chapter.

Phi Mu—Making is debut this year. Breaking right into society with dances 'n everything. They rush Freshmen until the poor things are foolish, and then they are not responsible for their actions.

Chi Omega—Better known as the "Newcomb S. A. E.'s." They wear glad rags during the "rushing" season, but seem satisfied with bloomers the rest.

Alpha Epsilon Phi—The "fashion-plates" of the college. Their pledges "scrub" for them. They bid you if you can support them sufficiently in a financial and social way.

Pi Kappa Alpha—Formerly the Pi Kappa Hammetts. The smallest chapter in existence since its existence. Started by the four Hammetts. It will soon end by common consent.

Phi Delta Theta—Most prolific chapter on the campus. If you are a jelly bean, a society bum, or if you are "broke," you can get permanent quarters with them out State Street.

Alpha Tau Omega—Did you ever see such a bunch of retiring old maids? Nearly all of them own oil wells in North Louisiana, which explains (?) why so little is seen of them on the campus. If we thought this was the real reason, we would give them a few more wells.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon—Social (ists). There are some good fellows amongst them, but they keep quiet so as not to let anyone know they are S. A. E.'s.

Delta Sigma Phi—The Dollar-Sixty-Fives pride themselves on being athletically (?) inclined. They won the basketball cup last year. They gave a dance this year. What will they do next year? (Recuperate!)

Sigma Chi—If you are fair-complexioned, this bunch will get you; if you have a dimple, they will rush you to death. They bought a house this year, and it's telling awfully on their pocketbooks. We trust it will not bring wrinkles to their handsome brows.

Kappa Alpha—They get so many transfers that they can't afford to pledge anyone. Probably it's a good thing, for who would want to stay in the same house with that crowd?

Kappa Sigma—If you are a bootlegger you had better steer clear of these fellows—they are all Secret Service men in disguise. Look at their jeweled police badge if you don't believe us. They try to be politicians, but they only smoke cigars.

Delta Kappa Epsilon—Their banner bears a lion, but we think a donkey would be more appropriate. They are slipping fast—scholarship rating not quite up to football ability.

Sigma Nu—Transfers and conspicuous pledging saved these birds. About three men returned from last year. Being with that bunch is enough to keep anyone from returning.

Zeta Beta Tau—Composed of financiers, "would-be" jelly beans, Ed Marx, and the two Scharffs. If there's money in it, there's a Zeta at the head of it—baseball and the JAMBALAYA, for example.

Phi Kappa Sigma—A few deserving country lads contaminated by a bunch of Medics. Blood pressure very low. Suggest as a remedy any obtainable stimulant, and then fewer Medics and more men.

Beta Theta Pi—They showed the acme of foresight in the placing of their frat house—right in Newcomb's back yard. Bloomer girls are indeed a familiar sight to them; we wonder why they don't wear them themselves.

Delta Tau Delta—Had their picture taken in a group so as to attract less attention to any individual—or, maybe, because it was cheaper. They rest on Johnny's laurels (bless his heart!). They are extremely quiet—they can't be otherwise.

A Lawyer's Lament

A fool there was, and he studied law; He went to class, and he heard and he saw Arguments given without a flaw; And he asked fool questions that made "Judd" raw, Even as you and I.

Oh, the marks he got in that awful rot Made Charlie sore and "Daisy" hot; But then with a slam came the final exam, And he took up his pen with many a damn, Even as you and I.

And the next year he sat with the first year men, And when exams came by he took up his pen, But he couldn't answer the questions ten, So next year he'll take it over again,

Even as you and I.

-Frank McLoughlin.

From a Law Student's Notebook

Did you ever conceive of the impossible? Did you ever sit and wonder what would happen in the Law School—

If Burke came on time?
If "Red" McClendon was ever serious?
If Suthon didn't fold his handkerchief? If Dan and Lois sat on opposite sides of the room? If the ladies gave up their seats by the window?

If Freddie forgot to cut up. If Levitan didn't know it all? If LeBeuf lost his sarcasm?

lf Lowy didn't ask questions? If Fritz got an LL.B.?

If McLoughlin had all the paper he wanted?

If Porteous' eyes weren't red?

If Kline remembered that he had a class?

If Talbot agreed with Judd? If anybody understood Helmecke? If Gladney didn't run for an office? If Langmaid didn't say "Sup-poose"?

If Williams didn't chew gum?

If Judd missed a class? If O'Leary were as conspicuous in class as at a football game?

If Judd bought a new hat?

If Marx forgot to part his hair?

If LeCompte and Fuller didn't have a cigar? If Newman kept quiet for a whole period? If Grace and Ford had a case (law case)?

If Winsberg didn't have a case?

If the exams were corrected within three months?

If the students struck for less work and more rest?

Hitting 'em Hard

GUESS WHO?

Tall and good-looking (so he thinks). He charms her when he plays football; he "vamps" her on the street; he wins her heart, and then breaks it. The most conceited man on the campus.

A Sophomore with a fishy name. Noted for her indifference. She just learned her frat whistle.

He is the tallest man in college, but he also carries the biggest feet. Rumored that a sweet little "Kidd" was wearing his fraternity pin.

Everywhere—always. Forever doing something; rarely anybody. Runs everything—come into the ground. Best space-killer the Hullabaloo has. Did you ever hear her being witty?

Noted for his financeering projects. His methods clearly indicate that he is not a new man at handling money. The JAMBALAYA is safe, financially.

"Alexandria Joe, The Nickel Beer King," has lost his crown. Joe, have you no aspirations in Bevo territory?

One of the smallest Freshmen at Newcomb—a social lioness and popular pet—almost as cunning as her name. She made a beautiful style model.

He used to love Lucy—he hails from Minden—he nearly starved the football team. Ed Talbot knows him and all his secrets well.

He writes poetry as no one else at Tulane can; has amassed a great fortune selling motor stock; far-famed for his fighting prowess and funny necktie.

Queer girls with queer pins, solemn processions, swimming parties in the gym. They never know what you are talking about—they are blind.

Willie! The last of the Hammetts! (Thank the Lord!)

They wear olive and blue ribbons on their coat lapels—they do not wear shoes—they carry suitcases—they push baby carriages—they wear full dress suits to class. Where did they get the idea?

He made his debut on a house party last spring, and has been trying to rush society ever since. He plays violin. Where did he get his line? (Maybe working for the JAMBALAYA.)

A curly-haired blonde who is tall and somewhat heavy-set. Naturally a musician, but trying to become an artist. She is conceited and affected. As she is still young, she has lots of chance—to reform.

A nice little fat Tech jelly bean named after a prominent brand of automobile. "Making love" is about all he is good for. He makes a h— of a president.

A Junior who is always "fishing" for some officious position—she has landed a few already. Very averse to secret societies; in fact, she's an authority on "how to destroy them."

"Freshmen may come, and Seniors may go, but he stays here forever"—to see that the JAMBALAYA comes out on time.

An Arts and Science Freshman noted for his dangerous ways with the ladies found himself lost in the football field of Loyola. He thought it was the way to Newcomb.

Those Double O. S.'s are certainly the school cut-ups. When gelatine salad was served at luncheon by the refectory they bought it every day and shook the dish to see it shimmy.

The university's fat boy and Lothario from the Yazoo Valley is the very essence of conceit. He said himself that he was the answer to a maiden's prayer.

It was very nice of the maiden aunt of that young Bienville Hall cut-up to surprise him with a personal inspection of his room—but, then, that "Helene at the Bath" picture hanging on the wall demanded such an explanation.

Edge-Grain, Southern Pine Flooring is quarter sawed. Only the edge of the grain is exposed to the tread, making it very durable under severe usage. It will not sliver, buckle or curl; wears slowly and evenly: it is not affected by frequent wettings.

Edge-Grain and Flat-Sawed Southern Pine Flooring may be obtained anywhere east of the Rocky Mountains. Its lower cost is due to the fact that the wood is so very plentiful.

The Oath of Hippocrates

I swear by Apollo the Physician, and Aesculapius, and Health and All-Heal, and by all the Gods and Goddesses, that, according to my ability and judgment, I will keep this oath and this stipulation,—to reckon him who taught me this art equally dear to me as my parents; to share my substance with him, and relieve his necessities if required; to look upon his offspring in the same footing as my own brothers, and to teach them this art, if they shall wish to learn it, without fee or stipulation; and that by precept, lecture, and every other mode of instruction, I will impart a knowledge of the art to my own sons, and those of my teachers, and to disciples bound by a stipulation and oath according to the law of medicine, but to none others.

I will follow that system of regimen which, according to my ability and judgment, I consider for the benefit of my patients, and abstain from whatever is deleterious and mischievous. I will give no deadly medicine to anyone if asked, nor suggest any such counsel; and in like manner I will not give any woman a pessary to produce abortion.

With purity and with holiness I will pass my life and practice my art. I will not cut any person laboring under the stone, but will leave this to be done by men who are practitioners of this work. Into whatever houses I enter, I will go into them for the benefit of the sick, and will abstain from every voluntary act of mischief and corruption; and, further, from the seduction of females or males, of freemen and slaves.

Whatever in connection with my professional practice, or not in connection with it, I see or hear, in the life of men, which ought not to be spoken abroad, I will not divulge, as reckoning that all such should be kept secret.

While I continue to keep this oath unviolated may it be granted to me to enjoy life and the practice of the art, respected by all men in all times. But should I trespass and violate this oath, may the reverse be my lot.

VOLUME I

Edited by the Students of The College of Medicine Tulane University of Louisiana NEW ORLEANS, U.S.A.

FOREWORD

It has been said that there is but one excuse for the writing of a book, and that is that there be a message to deliver. The students of the Tulane College of Medicine feel that they have a message, one of such scope and importance that this modest volume can only suggest it in a general way.

The message is of the great work that is being quietly and unobstrusively done by our beloved Alma Mater. We believe that there are few colleges in the nation that have done as much to raise the standards of medical education and send out young men and women with an equipment of the highest degree of excellence. For almost a century these have gone out as missionaries over the land, and from the very nature of their high calling have been able to wield an untold influence for good. They have been able to establish such a reputation for thorough professional training and for a high standard of professional ethics and sense of personal obligation that the Tulane graduate commands respect wherever found.

It is hoped that this volume will be the beginning of an endless series that will gradually unfold to the world some part of the multifold activities of this great institution.

In presenting this book to the public the editors beg to acknowledge many shortcomings and plead for recognition of the fact that they are laboring against the handicap of inexperience, limited time, and a multiplicity of other demands incident to preparing themselves to become worthy members of the great body of Tulane Alumni.

The Editors,

RUDOLPH MATAS, M. D.

The degrees granted in March, 1836, were the first scientific degrees ever conferred in Louisiana or the Southwest.

Up to June, 1919, 4936 were graduated from the School of Medicine.

The Tulane School of Medicine is the oldest medical school in the Southwest, the fourth oldest in the South, and the fifteenth to be established in the United States. It has survived many other schools of New Orleans and of the South.

Tulane trains young men to be ready to practice medicine. Research is not neglected as the record of the Faculty in the past and present will show. Chaillé and P. E. Archinard had much to do with the history of yellow fever, and Nott, sometime Professor at the Medical College of Louisiana, first announced the mosquito theory of this disease (1848). Riddell and Carpenter were botanists of note; Warren Stone, Richardson, Logan and Miles were surgeons of more than local repute. James Jones, Frank Hawthorne and S. M. Bemiss were masters in the theory and practice of medicine. More modernly, among the living teachers at Tulane, Matas' genius in surgery, and particularly with annerisms, stands out. Bass has made history with his growth of the malaria organism, one among many achievements accomplished. With Johns he has published texts on hookworm and on laboratory technique. Souchon (E.) has created a great Museum of Anatomy and has standardized the solution for preserving specimens in anatomy. Allen has developed large interest in local anesthesia and has published an authoritative text on the subject. Bethea has presented a text on Materia Medica which is standard in many medical schools in this country. Halsey has translated and expanded a text on Therapeutics. Duval and Couret, Gurd and Harris, of his staff have done large experimental work in leprosy and pellagra. Dyer is responsible for the legislation which created the Louisiana Leper Home and he has standardized the treatment for leprosy, so that it is no longer an incurable disease.

Tulane furnished the personnel for the first Base Hospital Unit from the South and Base Hospital No. 24 was in the field before any other base hospital was even organized.

The Faculty of Tulane had in service 59. Of these there were at the time of the Armistice (or promoted since)—

Colonel	1
Lieutenant Colonel	-7
Majors	15
Captains	17
First Lieutenants	19

to which must be added those members of the Faculty who served locally with the Red Cross activities or in Board work, which included practically all of the faculty excepting those on active duty with the Army and Navy.

Tulane has received in the 85 years of its existence:

From the State of Louisiana (prior to 1884) about$	83,500
Endowments and bequests, about	985,000
With an outstanding bequest yet to mature of	60,000
*1	.128.500

This is represented by real estate and securities totaling approximately:

In College Buildings-

Th College Difficulty
Richardson Memorial Building with its equipment$	180,000
Richardson Chemistry Building	50,000
Richardson Dormitory	40,000
Hutchinson Memorial	280,000
Real Estate set down at cost, about	225,000
	775,000
On securities bearing interest, about	500,000
Making a total of $1	,275,000

The net result is a first grade medical school with a potential Faculty.

In the ten years ending June 1, 1918, the Tulane School of Medicine spent upon equipment and the instruction of its students $400,000 over and above what the students paid in that period.

The Tulane School of Medicine is a member of the Association of American Medical Colleges.

Tulane is classed as an "A" School.

The graduates of Tulane are eligible for the examination of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons in London and England.

The Graduate School of Medicine of the Tulane University of Louisiana

First organized in 1888 as the New Orleans Polyclinic, and continued as an independent institution up to 1906. In that year by the action of the Board of Trustees of the University, it became a department of Tulane, consequently it is now over thirty-one years old, while this is the thirteenth year that it has formed a part of the great southern University.

Since its establishment there have been over three thousand physicians in attendance at the Polyclinic, and the sessions, originally of ten weeks duration, have been gradually extended until they are now held during nearly nine months of the year.

The course of instruction is intended, as the name of the school indicates, only for legal practitioners of medicine, and physicians from nearly all States of the Union have attended at different times as well as matriculates from many foreign countries. No degrees are conferred by this school, but a certificate of attendance is awarded for the branches studied, specifying the length of time during which these studies have been followed. The courses are arranged so as to enable the physicians in attendance either to take up a general review in medicine or surgery, or to limit themselves to one branch in which they are particularly interested, thus facilitating those who desire to specialize or limit their practice to a given line.

All instruction is entirely practical and the greater part of it is given at the bedside or in outdoor clinics. In addition to the Hutchinson Memorial in which laboratory and cadaveric work is done, as well as some didactic teaching, the wards and clinics of the Charity Hospital and the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Hospital are utilized by members of the Faculty, all of whom are connected with one or other of these well equipped hospitals where material is available to a very large extent. Lectures, clinics and laboratory work take place daily, except Sundays, from early morning until late in the afternoon, and physicians in attendance can utilize their entire time, during many of the hours they may even have their choice between the lectures or clinics of several different professors in various lines.

About thirty of the younger and more progressive physicians of this city act as assistants to the Professors and Lecturers and in that manner increase the advantages to be derived by the matriculates of the school. While the majority of the physicians come from the surrounding States, the number coming from the North and Northwest is steadily increasing as the advantages available here become more generally known, and as it is better realized by doctors living in the cold sections that it is far more pleasant to be here in the winter, and that they can combine recreation with fruitful study in a region which gives them relief from their rigorous climate.

ALFRED LEWIS ADAM

New Orleans, La.

Phi Rho Sigma.

"Red' has that "Lean and hungry look" of Cassius; the medical knowledge of Hippocrates; a flow of words and liquid smoothness of delivery that would have turned Cicero green with envy, and above all he has an unmistakable consciousness of those rare qualities of which he so unreservedly admits being possessed. He gladly enlightens the ignorant. Only a perfect realization of future responsibilities could have led him to amass his amazing store of knowledge.

FRED ADAMS

Austin, Texas.

University of Texas, '16-'17; B.S., University of Mississippi, '18; Kappa Psi, Texas Club, Statistics Committee Year Book.

"Chief" has collected enough miscellaneous information from his various colleges to be ranked as one of our liberally educated members. While at "Ole Miss" he was a football player of repute and prominent in athletics generally. During his last two years with us he has done uniformly good work, but his technic in the laboratories, (never the "height of laboratory awkwardness") has been so much above par as to be noticeable. We have an idea that "Chief's" success in the future will be like so much of his work here—above the average.

WILLIAM OSCAR ALLEN

New Orleans, La.

Ph.G., Atlanta School of Pharmacy, '12.

After receiving his first degree in '12, this youth practiced his profession until 1916, but, thirsting for further knowledge, began the study of medicine. The possession of a marked propensity for attending class and answering roll calls on his off days may be mentioned as his one great asset. However, with his unlimited energy he should not fail to reap a big harvest of success.

JOHN ALEXANDER KLEIN BIRCHETT, JR. Vicksburg, Miss.

B.S., University of Mississippi; Statistics Committee Year Book; Mississippi Club; Delta Tau Delta; Nu Sigma Nu.

"Jew" is not of the Chosen People, as even a casual glance at his likeness would lead one to believe. "Jack" is blessed with such a happy disposition and infectious laugh that unless one knew him well he might never get down to the second ore bearing stratum of his character, which is made up of the hard grit of enduring perseverance. Jack's specialty is Pediatries, though he intends to live and die a bachelor (?). In spite of a weakness for the fair sex we predict for this pseudo-Hebrew a successful career.

FRANCIS BURTON BLACKMAR

Columbus, Ga.

Secretary Class '16; Secretarial Committee Year Book; Alpha Kappa Kappa; Kappa Alpha.

In "Dilly" true worth is exemplified, and it is all too seldom that we meet a man who shows such constant and zealous attention to duty; Blackmar is a synonym for thoroughness. His attention to details, his orderly, exact and at time verbatim notes, and his unfailing regularity at lectures have been, in a scholastic sense, the outstanding features of his five years with us. In other ways we find him a good friend and companion to everyone—he is an all 'round man, one of our best.

HOMER RAYMOND BLINCOE

Columbus, Kansas.

A.B., and M.Sc., University of Kansas, '15-'16; Instructor Anatomy Tulane, '18; Phi Beta Kappa; Sigma Xi; Phi Chi.

Blincoe brought an enviable record with him from Kansas, and will leave Tulane with another equally as good. After instructing our class in "Tope" for a year he decided that it would be impossible to find a better class to graduate with, so cast his lot with us. All Homer has to do to be sure of success is to keep traveling at his present gait.

EUGENE LAWSON ARMSTRONG

New Orleans, La.

University of Florida, '14-'15; Chi Zeta Chi; Advertisement Committee Year Book.

One of us who has the questionable advantage of going to school in his home town.
"Gene" is the salesman of the class; cigars, "ads" for the Year Book, anything, they all look alike to him when it comes to making a sale. Though a home product he is both well known and well liked by the pilgrims to Tulane, and if he will but sell his ability as a practitioner as well as he disposes of ordinary merchandise he is sure to make a success of his venture in medicine.

GEORGE CLARENCE BATTALORA

New Orleans, La.

Chi Zeta Chi; Picture Committee Year Book;

S.O.S., What have we here? We lay no claim to being a split second watch or ultra rapid camera, and "Red" moves too fast for an ordinary description to keep up with him. His ability to write an examination paper while the rest of us are thinking about it is only an example of his speed, but this rapidity in no way detracts from his thoroughness. With his happy disposition and whirlwind methods he should go a long way in the "City that Care Forgot,"

TERRY LEE BENNETT

Jonesville, La.

St. Louis University, '15-'16; University of Mississippi, '18; Phi Rho Sigma. "Nucki," as his friends call him, came to Tulane in his Junior year, from Jonesville, via University of Mississippi. When questioned as to his future he doesn't know where he is going, or why, illustrating thereby the famous line, "He comes from nowhere, going nowhere, and has nothing on his mind." Slow in action and words, he has the endurance which counts in the long run. Whether he hangs his shingle in Jonesville or elsewhere, we can safely say that there resides a good doctor.

IRWIN JAMES BOULET

New Orleans, La.

Subscription Committee Year Book; Delta Sigma Phi; Kappa Psi.

"Gash' has been with us four years, and has been pounding us in the "ribs" and telling us to "cough" for the last two. One of the sort who always looks on the bright side of things and helps the rest of the world to do the same. Boulet has both brains and good looks, the latter much enhanced by a certain hirsute appendage, and it takes a lot to keep that combination away from the top rungs.

ROBERT LESLIE BOWLIN

Nettleton, Miss.

University of Mississippi, '16-'17; Mississippi Club; Kappa Psi.

We are not sure, but think Bowlin was the man who discovered America, shortly after he had finished coaching Hippocrates for the State Board of Exams. At any rate his works on Digitalis at the Rowland Laboratories will insure him fame. Leslie has a mania for loud ties and pretty girls, but he is a diligent student and has the making of a scientist.

CHARLES LAFAYETTE BROWN

Delia, Texas.

North Texas State Normal College; University of Chicago; Year Book; Texas Club, President; Phi Kappa Sigma; Kappa Psì.

Through two years Brown drifted along in our midst creating searcely a ripple, but when the storm broke in our Junior year we came to know him as he really is—a born Sergeant. It is said that "Mixed drinks will sink the ship," but in this ex-soldier we have an example of versatility rarely equaled and never surpassed. In class, in the political arena, on the parade ground, Brown is always in the limelight, but we must admit that the calcium ray has often fallen on less deserving men than "Sergeant Brown."

JOSEPH CLYDE BRUNER

Rayne, La.

A.B., University of Louisiana, '15; Honor Committee, '17-'19; Pi Kappa Alpha; Alpha Kappa Kappa; Alpha Omega Alpha; Stars and Bars; Instructor in Anatomy, '16-'18; President Class '18; Historian, '19.

President of the class, and "Top" of Company 12 during the disastrous year of '18-19; he handled a trying situation in a way that won the respect of every man who knew him. Bruner sidestepped one year, serving on "Buddy's" staff as instructor, joining our class in the Sophomore year. Bruner is a convincing speaker, a brilliant student, and a man in every sense of the word.

FELIX REVILLE BRUNOT

Pittsburg, Pa.

Editor in Chief Year Book; Class Prophet, '19; Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Alpha Kappa Kappa; Alpha Omega Alpha; Stars and Bars.

Felix 'Reville Brunot, better known to his many friends as the "Count," a name that he should be justly proud of, for not only does it designate his birthright, but that all hail him as a "Prince of a Fellow." Felix has been with our class since pre-medical days and his unusual ability coupled with studiousness and sincerity have won the esteem of faculty and student body. This could have been shown in no better way than his election to both honorary societies and his unanimous selection as Editor-in-Chief of our first Medical Annual. Nothing but success could come to such a man and we may here prophecy that the medical world will hear from him both from a practical and scientific standpoint.

JESSE DE WITT BURKHEAD

Opelika, Ala.

University of Alabama, '14; University of Virginia, '15; Alpha Tau Omega; Alabama Club.

Back in the State of Alabama there is a small town patiently awaiting the day when J. DeWitt Burkhead, M.D., or "Burke" alights from the train. With dignified and solemn mein he has gone about his preparation for Medicine. Burke takes life seriously, but will carry back with him a fund of hard-won knowledge to place at the disposal of those who are lucky enough to be among his clientele.

JOHN HARDIN CARTER

Pensacola, Fla.

University of Florida, '15-'16; Organization Committee Year Book; Alpha Tau Omega.

John came to us from the sand-hills and lagoons of the Peninsular State, receiving his preliminary education in the University of Florida. Steady, dependable, sure of purpose, he tackles things as they come, letting nothing worry him, and proving beyond a doubt that common sense and persistence, though less spectacular, are more to be desired than the most brilliant and erratic flashes of genius.

OSCAR THOEDORE CHRISTOFFER

Mart, Texas.

University of Texas, 13-'16; Texas Club; Phi Delta Theta; Kappa Psi.

"Chris' is the gay Lothario of the class. Few are the feminine wishes he cannot gratity, and many are the fluttering hearts that he has stimulated to a symptomatic tachycardia. Whether at Katz's or the Louisiane we can always be sure of finding "Chris' somewhere in the giddy throng. In spite of his multitudinous social obligations he has found enough odd moments to devote to work to enable him to keep well abreast of his fellows.

BROOKS AMEDEE COLOMB

Romeville, La.

Statistics Committee Year Book; Beta Theta Pi; Nu Sigma Nu.

For a good many years we all thought Brooks or "Amps" was just a good-natured, studious, not over-energetic member of the class. Later on his horrible secret came to light, and we discovered that Colomb is one of the Minor Poets. But he has ability in other lines, and even with this handicap we believe he will land on his feet wherever he falls.

JULIUS MEYER DAVIDSON

Greenwood, Miss.

Wit and Humor Committee Year Book; Mississippi Club.

"Laugh and grow fat" Davy has been laughing and growing fatter every day since he came here a Pre-Med. five years ago. He is proficient in tennis, billiards (African) and in the regular course offered to students of medicine. In Davidson this year's class presents to the profession of Northern Mississippi one of their best products, and in the near future we expect to hear that more than the usual casual notice has been taken of the entrance of a new physician among them.

ROY EDWARD DELAHOUSSAYE

Franklin, La.

B.S., Springhilt College; Historian, '17; Beta Theta Pi; Phi Rho Sigma,

"Daly" is one of our valued acquisitions from the southern parishes. Throughout the past four years he has pursued his work with considerable attention and care, though, being from Franklin, he has been forced to maintain that city's reputation as the social center of the State with some loss of time from other duties. It is rumored that "Daly" "can whip any man from any land with one foot or either hand," and we feel certain that he will make a name for himself not only as a pugilist but as a doctor when he goes back to Bayou Teche.

NEVIN J. DIEFFENBACH

Tulsa, Oklahoma.

B.S., University of Oklahoma; Phi Chi.

Dieffenbach joined us in the last lap, so we have not had the pleasure of knowing him as intimately as we would like. The little we do know, however, is all good, for, in addition to having a ready and captivating smile he has apparently had no difficulty in adjusting himself to his new surroundings, and reflects no little credit on the Medical Department of the University of Oklahoma.

THADDEUS ALVIN FEARS

Pineland, Texas.

University of Texas, '14'16; Texas Club; Subscription Committee Year Book; Sergeant at Arms, '17-'20; Chi Zeta Chi; Delta Sigma Phi.

"Texas" had certain aspirations that could not be achieved by riding the plains of his native State. He began his medical career at the University of Texas, where they smoothed over some of the rough spots, and sent him to Tulane in 1916, a promising looking Freshman with plenty of determination and a wonderful knowledge of all games of chance. Fears has been Sergeant at Arms of our class for four years, and it is a credit to his ability to remark that during that time no situation has ever arisen which he could not handle with perfect ease.

RICHARD JENNINGS FIELD

Centreville, Miss.

Mississippi A. and M. University of Mississippi, '16-'18; Mississippi Club; Varsity Football; Sigma Chi; Nu Sigma Nu.

Dick's early striving for the simple life of a farmer soon gave place to higher things, and he left A. and M. to follow the steps of Galen. After two years at "Ole Miss" he came to us. The same courage and skill that made him a star at Mississippi put him in the front rank of football heroes here at Tulane. But Dick is more than an athlete, he is just as good a man in the class-rooms as on the gridiron, and we can think of no higher praise.

SAMUEL EUGENE FIELD

Centreville, Miss.

University of Mississippi, '16-'18; Mississippi Club; Sigma Chi; Nu Sigma Nu.

In a quiet village located in Southern Mississippi, Sam received the fundamentals of his now extensive education. He is wise, having perused the books of learning at "Ole Miss;" he has absorbed what Tulane has to offer in Medicine; he has studied city life and accustomed himself to its diversification. Truly is he a man of the world. His reputation is unassailable, his ideals are high and his friendship to be coveted.

HENRY ARTHUR FOLSE

Klotzville, La.

B.A., Jefferson College, '16; Phi Beta Pi.

If you like puzzles, then look for Klotzville, which is "somewhere in Louisiana," and his home town. While at Jefferson he made such a record that it would take a wheelbarrow to carry the medals he won. He has not only found time to study the Red Book each month, but has kept up with his work as well, since he never gets caught napping. Even though he seems matrimonially inclined we predict great success for him in his chosen profession.

HARRY JOSEPH FRENCH

St. Martinville, La.

Phi Rho Sigma.

French has that rarest of good qualities—Modesty, and his guiding principle is to avoid being conspicuous in any way. He is a worker, however, and is one of the small group who started together as Pre-Meds five years ago. We believe that modesty never hurts a doctor, and expect to see the death rate of St. Martinville go down rapidly after he gets located.

JOHN MARSH FRERE

Franklin, La.

University of Virginia, '14.'16; Honor Committee, '18-'19; Statistics Committee Year Book; Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Phi Chi.

This absent-minded and ever-toiling son of Franklin began his scholastic endeavors at the University of Virginia. After spending two years mingling with the residents of the Old Dominion he decided that he had acquired the necessary polish and entered Tulane in 1916. Marsh is a very prominent follower of Terpsichore and is regularly at the Gym dances, a spectacle of unconfined Jaz-Joy. Marsh is slated to be a good doctor, and the community in which he locates will be very fortunate.

FRANK GALLO

New Orleans, La.

Secretarial Committee of Year Book; Mu Alpha Mu.

With such a name it is obvious that our friend comes from 'Italia.' This is his fifth year at Tulane, and we can say that there is no harder worker in the class than Gallo. Although he is not married, we take pleasure in announcing that he is the Father of Mu Alpha Mu Medical Fraternity, born about November 5, 1919. His good nature and natural ability to make friends spells for him—Success.

WALTER PETERS GARDINER

New Orleans, La.

B.S., Tulane, '17; Subscription Committee Year
 Book; Beta Theta Pi; Phi Chi; Alpha Omega Alpha; Stars and Bars.

This lanky Neophyte, after having successfully climbed "over the top" with all the knowledge of the Academic Department, began the study of the art of Aesculapius. His efforts in the latter were marked by his election to the two honorary fraternities in the College of Medicine. On those who are diligent in their work and serious in their attempts, Dame Fortune confers that lasting degree—Success.

EPHRAIM SPENCER GARRETT, JR.

Mount Willing, Ala.

Alabama Club; Phi Rho Sigma.

Spencer, or "Fuller" as he is more commonly known pulled away from the unbroken ranks of the less fortunate, and became a real Eenedict, taking advantage of that old "Oslerism," "Marry Early." After settling the major portion of his affection on one, he is still big enough to be a friend to every man in the class. He is a good student, though a trifle reserved.

WAYNE GILDER

Linden, Ala.

A.B., Southern University; Alabama Club; Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Alpha Kappa Kappa.

Wayne is abundantly supplied with that variety of sense commonly called "Horse." He is practical to the end of his long and dexterous fingers. His presence in the clinics creates a feeling of confidence among the patients and nothing short of a riot among the nurses. Whether this is due to his winning smile, or whether it is just another "outward and visible sign of an inward and spiritual grace" we cannot definitely say.

JOHN DAVIDSON GLADNEY

Homer, La.

L. S. U.; Honor Committee, '18-'19, '19-'20; Lambda Chi Alpha; Phi Beta Pi.

Gladney is afflicted with a mania for work; he contracted this disease while at L. S. U., and has never fully recovered. In the balmy summer days when the brain-weary Medical student should do nothing more strenuous than sleep, our friend Gladney took up the real estate business and now has extensive business cares; as our old professor of "Things in General" used to say, he is a "glutton for work."

LEWIS MELVIN GOOCH

Paris, Texas.

University of Texas; University of Virginia; Texas Club; Picture Committee Year Book; Phi Kappa Sigma; Phi Rho Sigma.

A handsome Texan who is pleasing to gaze upon and who is endowed by nature with a shock of straw-colored hair which naturally parts in the middle. Not satisfied with being a Medical Student he has joined that great fraternity of married men, who do so much to make a great nation greater. A man who exhibits his qualities is bound to hold throughout life a position in the profession as great as the one he holds in his class.

SAM VINCENT GRANATA

Berwick, La.

Mu Alpha Mu.

Sam has had pugilistic aspirations in addition to his Medical ambitions, and carried off honors more than once during his stay at Tulane. We look for his Medical attainments to make a second Rochester out of Berwick. Sam once said that his main reason for studying medicine was because he wanted something different. We wonder if he has been satisfied.

CARL ELLIS GRANBERRY

Canton, Miss.

B.S., University of Oklahoma, '14; University of Mississippi, '14-'16; Mississippi Club; Phi Rho Sigma.

This neat, quiet and unassuming junior member of the firm of Bowlin & Granberry joined the class in our third or war year, proving the truth of that famous Sherman epigram, "War is Hell." The I. C. Hospital where Granberry is serving as an undergraduate intern is to be congratulated on procuring the services of a man who combines hard work with the other qualities that add so much to the man who is marked for success.

IKE MARION GRAVLEE

Emory, Miss.

University of Mississippi, '16-'18; Mississippi Club; Wit and Humor Committee Year Book; Sigma Chi; Nu Sigma Nu.

"Tke" received his early college training at "Ole Miss" and entered here last year as a Junior Medic., just in time to participate in the pleasures of life at Camp Martin. With his bright face and loyal ways he has become one of the best liked men of the class. A man with his qualities cannot help but become prominent and as a physician his sympathetic nature will manifest itself in a never-ending effort to relieve his suffering brothers.

JULIAN HAWTHORNE

New Orleans, La.

President, '16, Statistics Committee Year Book; Kappa Alpha; Alpha Kappa Kappa.

Julian is a combination of Beau Brummel and Lord Chesterfield. His distinguished appearance and snave manner are irresistible, especially among the ladies. The excellent training in "Squads Right, Hump," which he received at Staunton, was demonstrated on the bloody field at Camp Martin. Any man who can drill a company of his friends and still hold their friendship is bound to succeed.

GUY WILKERSON HEATH

Troy, Ala.

Alabama Club; Kappa Sigma; Kappa Psi.

Guy is one of the few who has traveled the whole long road here at Tulane. He has always been an ardent supporter of the Olive and Bluc teams, and in his Freshman year took enough time from the serious business of passing Buddy's anatomy to win the champiouship belt as a wrestler. Heath is a hard worker, and apparently has secured a "seissors hold" on medicine.

SAMUEL HOBSON, JR.

Brandon, Miss.

Mississippi Club; Picture Committee Year Book; Vice President '18, Phi Kappa Sigma; Chi Zeta Chi.

Sam is another one of our dignified members, but there is no camouflage about Hobson, and his calmness and confidence rest on the firm basis of knowledge. He has been a consistent performer since Pre-Med days, not only in ordinary class work but in all activities connected with the college. Added to an excellent thinking apparatus he has a certain classic beauty of face and form which endears him to all members of the gentler sex.

JAMES MORTIMER HOFFMAN

New Orleans, La.

B.A., St. Aloysius, '15.

Our infant prodigy. He received his first degree at the tender age of fifteen and now will graduate in Medicine while yet hardly more than a babe in arms. Hoffman carries an old head on young shoulders, however, and in the laboratory he makes his elders sit up and take notice, for at the age when most children are playing with a rattle he handles the deadly haeilli with a faultless technic which is the pride and joy of ''Malaria Bass.''

JAMES ERNEST HOWELL

Roelbeingham, N. C.

B.S., Davidson College, '15; Columbia University, '15-'18; Phi Rho Sigma.

One of the five good men added to our roll in this last year. Howell would have made football history for Tulane had he come here earlier, for he was captain for two years of the best football team in the South—Davidson. Howell is a credit both to Columbia and his first college, and we are glad to claim him.

ISAAC CLIFTON HUGGINS

Waynesboro, Miss.

Secretarial Committee Year Book; Mississippi Club; Phi Kappa Sigma; Kappa Psi.

"'Ike" is certainly the neatest little package to be found in these parts. He is the smallest man in the class by several inches, but is a giant in the class-room. While "Ike" is by nature a cheerful and easy-going gentleman, with a sunny disposition, it is only necessary to mention Camp Martin to see the clouds of wrath darken his brow, and hear the thunder of the Gods roll from his throat.

JOHN D. HUMBER

Greenville, N. C.

B.S., Wake Forest College; Yale, '17-'18; Business Manager Year Book; Alpha Kappa Kappa.

Behold, the father of our Year Book and the man responsible for the business success of this first venture of the Medical College in the field of literature. John has had a wide experience in his college training; after graduating at Wake Forest he took his first two years of Medicine at Yale, joining us in his Junior year. Humber is an unusually capable man, good at anything he undertakes, and a natural leader.

Sam Jaeggli

Moulton, Texas.

University of Texas; Texas Club; Phi Beta Pi.

Though Sam hails from Southwest Texas, he is far from being wild and wooly. Even before he joined the Married Men's Club he was as sedate and circumspect a Texan as one could wish to see, and now of course these traits are accentuated. Due to his name being unpronouncable he has been practically immune from quizes, but has never taken advantage of this and has the reputation of being one of our most diligent students.

FRANCIS LEON JAUBERT

New Orleans, La.

Loyola University; Art Editor Year Book; Phi Rho Sigma.

The most technical man we have. At times it is almost impossible to understand him at all without reference to the text-book. In his capacity of Official Photographer for the class he is frequently seen snap-shotting his victims when they least expect it. He presides at times over the projector in the lecture room and gets more of the slides upside down than either Alfred or "Alvino," or both combined.

CLIFFORD URLAH JOHNSON

Monroe, La.

Wit and Humor Committee Year Book; Chi Zeta Chi; Stars and Bars.

When Johnson was elected to the honorary fraternity, Stars and Bars, in his Senior year, he received exactly what was his due. For the past five years he has been a most indefatiguable student. Does he belong to the Katz Club, or the Green Room Gang? Emphatically not. Yet Johnson C. U. is no book-worm, and is always among those present when anything of a festive nature is in the wind.

CURTIS WHITTEMORE JONES

Little Rock, Ark.

Arkansas Club; Leader Camp Martin Orchestra; College Night Representative, '15; Glee Club, '16; Chi Zeta Chi.

If Jones had lived in Nero's age burning Rome would have enjoyed a duet instead of a solo, for Curtis is an able and ubiquitous violinist. His musical tendencies have not interfered with his practical traits, for he was the first man in the class to see the wisdom of marrying early. Just how Jones manages to keep up his music, a wife, and still rank among the best in the class is a mystery yet to be solved.

PHILIP HAROLD JONES

Baton Rouge, La.

A.B., Louisiana State University, '16; Faculty Statistics Committee Year Book; Secretary and Treasurer '20, Nu Sigma Nu; Stars and Bars; Alpha Omega Alpha.

This silver-tongued sage from L. S. U. has been with us four years. The record "P.H." made at the State University is unsurpassed, his past at Tulane is without reproach, and when he enters upon his life as Rhodes Scholar to Oxford we feel that Louisiana will be well represented in the halls of learning in England, and that he will not only be a credit to his Alma Mater but an unquestionable asset to the medical profession.

THEO. AUGUST JUNG, JR.

New Orleans, La.

B.A., Loyola, '16; Stars and Bars.

After Jung completed his academic course at the Jesuits' University he jumped the fence and started Medicine with us as a Freshman. During the four years he has been with us we have never heard him say a word outside the line of duty, but all this while he surely has been "sawing wood" and the end of his Senior year saw him elected a member of the Stars and Bars.

DOUGLAS LEDBETTER KERLIN

Homer, La.

Historian, '18; Phi Kappa Sigma; Chi Zeta Chi.

Not a shark, but the kind of man the professors call a good student. Kerlin is not a man of one idea only, however, and occasionally lets the lighter phases of existence lure him away from the bulky tomes which usurp the major portion of his time.

JOHN MOORE KITTRELL

Laurel, Miss.

Washington and Lee, '14-'15; University of Mississippi, '15-'18; Mississippi Club; Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

John spends half his time in Biloxi, a quarter at the Southern Depot, and the rest attending lectures. He is the best posted man on train schedules and Public Health work in the class, and is accounted the most handsome of our embryo doctors. In some mysterious manner he finds the time to do enough work to stand very near the top of his class, and we have every reason to expect great things of this big, capable Mississippian.

FRANCIS ERNEST LEJEUNE

Thibodaux, La.

B.S., Jefferson, '14; Picture Committee Year Book; Beta Theta Pi; Phi Chi.

Emile August Pere Numa Fustin Bobilo Leonee McDuff Bossard DeGrima Pollicarp LeJeune, Duke de Thibodeaux, joined us after two unsuccessful attempts to make an engineer of himself. His physical beauty and winning ways have endeared him to the hearts of womenkind, and in spite of these natural aecomplishments he has come through with a level head and studious mind. The engineers loss has certainly been our gain in this case.

EDWIN HARPER LINFIELD

Biloxi, Miss.

Varsity Football, '17-'19; Captain, '19; Honor Committee, '18; President V. M. C. A., Davidson College, '14-'16; Beta Theta Pi; Nu Sigma Nu.

"Tobias" is a person that Biloxi might well be proud of, for it is not every man who is a combination of ladies' delight, football hero and Medical student, and can yet hold to certain ideals which characterize the man wherever he is. His smile and good nature will go a long way in helping him cope with the many problems of the Medical Profession.

Louis Bernard Long

Appalachaeola, Fla.

B.A., Mount St. Mary, '16; Phi Beta Pi.

The little city of Appalachacola in the land of the Everglades, gave him birth, but truly the Muses reared him: Louis is the kind of man who will always be happy no matter under what circumstances you place him. However, we are sure his artistic temperament will in no way be to his disadvantage, but rather work to a fuller appreciation of the woes and plaints of his future numerous patients.

THOMAS STAFFORD LOVE

Dallas, Texas.

University of Texas, '14-'16; Washington University, '16-'17; President '20, Honor Committee, '20; Student Council; Texas Club; Beta Theta Pi; Phi Beta Pi.

A son of the Golden West, and of the type one expects to meet from "God's Country;" straightforward, fearless, energetic, generous to a fault. In Stafford the Class of 1920 elected to their biggest office their biggest man. Wherever he goes he will carry with him the best wishes of the entire class, and we feel confident that he is destined to become a shining light in modern medicine.

HOSEA WEBSTER MCADOO

Texarkana, Ark.

Advertisement Committee Year Book; Arkansas Club; Alpha Kappa Kappa.

"Mae" has the seeds of Bolshevism in his soul, for in a political way, everything that is, is wrong. For a time we all though he was going to make a sepcialty of Minor Surgery, but when last questioned in regard to this he refused to speak for publication. He is a hard worker, not afraid to fight for his convictions, and we all wish him the best of luck when he goes back to the hog-haunted wilds of his native State.

DON S. MARSALIS

Rnston, La.

Track Team; Delta Sigma Phi; Kappa Psi.

It is with wonderful facility that the smooth and unceasing flow of the "Bull" artist falls from "The Greek's" lips. His persistent encounters with the Goddess of Chance and his surpassing knowledge of the technicalities of the art has done much to further his prominence. As osteologist or pole vaulter, "Greek" yields the palm to no man.

MARTIN OWEN MILLER

Grand Chenier, La.

Vauderbilt University, '14-'15; Delta Sigma Phi; Chi Zeta Chi.

Miller comes from Cameron Parish, where life pursues the even tenor of its way, unruffled by the locomotive, telephone or other modern aids to nature; where calmness and a belief that the future will take care of itself is so impressed that it becomes second nature among the inhabitants. Miller drifts along as smoothly as one of his native bayous, and as steadily.

JOHN MORGAN MOORE

Bartlette, Texas.

Texas Club; Phi Rho Sigma.

Moore joined us in our Sophomore year, but as far as we know he has never committed any crime since. He attends classes, has very little to say in the "Mass Meetings" held between times and retains the right to pass everything without apparently making any great effort, at least we have never heard his voice lifted to high Heaven in the groan chorus so regularly heard from during the "cramming season."

ALBERT REYNAULD MORGAN

Crowley, La.

A.B., L. S. U., '16; Advertisement Committee Year Book; Lambda Chi Alpha; Phi Beta Pi

During the course in Medicine he has not only taken the prescriled courses but has very diligently and capably looked into all the principles and practices of nurses. Morgan is whole-hearted and genial and is without doubt one of the most popular men in the class. We feel assured that with these traits together with his marked natural ability, there is no cause for worry regarding his future.

SAMUEL OLIPHANT MOSELEY

Monroeville, Ala.

A.B., Furman University, '16; University of Mississippi, '16-'18.

Though born a Tar Heel, "Cuban" has spent most of his life in the island from which he derives his name. For the past two years he has done much to relieve the tedium of lectures by covering the blackboards with drawings of laughable incidents and persons, including the faculty. To him the Year Book owes the major part of its cartoons, and the interest and activity he has shown in connection with this work accounts in a large measure for whatever success it may have achieved.

OLIN WINN Moss

Lake Charles, La.

Vanderbilt University, '10; Honor Committee, '16-'19; Faculty Statistics Committee Year Book; President, '17; Historian, '16; Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Stars and Bars; Alpha Omega Alpha.

Olin is one of the Old Guard. His is an enviable record, and one based on more than his two most notable external characteristics—sartorial perfection and blondness. Moss is our most reserved and dignified member. The end of his Junior year saw him crowned with laurels for scholarship, and that he will leave Tulane as a doctor, to win laurels in a broader field, is beyond question.

HILAIRE D. OGDEN, JR.

New Orleans, La.

Advertisement Committee Year Book; Kappa Sigma; Chi Zeta Chi.

We were all afraid that marriage would change "Red," and we wanted him just as he was. "Red" is the only man in the class who can stand against Adam in an argument. This brilliant and loquations product of Warren Easton is without the shadow of a doubt one of the brightest stars in that glittering constellation—the Class of 1920.

JULES BRUNET RATEAU

Ponchatoula, La.

Chi Zeta Chi; Stars and Bars; Alpha Omega Alpha.

"It is the constant dripping that wears away the stone," and the rocky heights of medical lore are not unattainable to those who have both faith and works. "Rat" is the kind of man who succeeds at anything he attempts, for he puts his whole soul into his work. Horatio Alger, Jr., will pardon us if we say, "He is Bound to Rise."

OWEN COMPTON RIGBY

Beach, Miss.

Organization Committee Year Book; President Mississippi Club; Class Poet, '20; Phi Rho Sigma.

Owen Compton began his search for a Medical education at the University of Mississippi, and did not give us a chance to know him until the Junior year. Since he has been with us we have found him to be a steady and hard worker in the class-rooms and clinics. He is not exactly what we would call a "man about town," but in his own bucolic way manages to put up a very fair imitation of a politician. Rigby is one of those who will most surely "get there" and deserves to.

LAUCHLIN MCKINNON ROZIER

Opp, Ala.

A.B., University of Alabama; Statistics Committee Year Book; Alabama Club; Kappa Sigma; Kappa Psi.

A canny Scott, with all the good qualities and none of the bad ones of his Highland ancestors. During the past four years our sandy-haired class-mate has peered through his high power spectacles to such good purpose that he will graduate close to the top, and we all congratulate him, for he has never been too busy with his own affairs to refuse to play the Good Sanaritan to his less fortunate friends.

FRANK SAVOY

Eunice, La.

Louisiana State University; Phi Beta Pi.

Frank is a sturdy son of South Louisiana who is emphatic in his beliefs, and exceptionally well qualified when it comes to maintaining them. His actions are decided, his application marked, and his movements swift, as more than one can testify. "Savy" was the pride of the Navy and still has tales to tell of his experiences on the "Boundless Blue" (Algiers Naval Station).

THOMAS PLOWMAN SPARKS

Jackson, Miss.

Millsaps College, '13-'16; University of Mississippi, '16-'18; Mississippi Club; Picture Committee Year Book; Kappa Alpha, Nu Sigma Nu.

In the summer months "Tommy" has spent most of the time very profitably doing public health service among the denizens of the Delta, and if he wished, we are sure he would have no difficulty landing safely on those political coat-tails flapping about in Jackson. He has a bearing of frankness, an air of deliberation and an attitude of studied calm that will go far in helping him become one of our number known to fame.

HOLLIS ANSIL STAFFORD

Bogalusa, La.

University of Tennessee; Phi Rho Sigma.

This distinguished son of a distinguished family began early in life to develope a craving for knowledge. For the past five years he has done nothing other than pursue his task of absorbing all that lies between the covers of unnumbered volumes. His perseverance and dignity have won for him both our confidence and esteem.

JAMES HOOPER STILES

Annona, Texas.

Texas Club; Phi Delta Theta; Kappa Psi.

"Piggy" started off as a wild Freshman, but after a short time tamed down into a regular Medical Student. No doubt the sleepy little village of Annona out in the desert wastes of the Lone Star State will be eager to recognize its son when he returns a finished M.D., with the air of aplomb and "Savoir faire." that is so characteristic of "Piggy."

JAMES LESLIE TAYLOR

Mobile, Ala.

Wit and Humor Committee Year Book, Alabama Club; Ship Builders' Union; Beta Theta Pi; Phi Chi.

James Leslie, known to an admiring circle of friends and acquaintances as "Shag," started his early educational efforts at Mobile's West Point. He has been so successful in his efforts since that time that he is now about to step out into the world as a full-fledged Doctor. With his extremely pleasing and agreeable personality, and his, if possible, even more prepossessing appearance, the limit of his success will be marked only by the extent of the field he chooses.

EUGENE DAVIS THORPE DeFuniak Springs, Fla.

A.B., Southern University; Kappa Alpha; Phi

A man of few words and large actions. As far as his personal appearance goes he could readily be mistaken for a Deacon or a Judge, but in this case looks are surely deceiving, for "Gene" is a regular fellow in every way. He has been known to attend classes, but has never let this thing become a habit or permitted it to interfere with the serious things of life. Whether he selects the turpentine forests of Florida or decides to cast his lot in some less dreary section, we do not doubt that he will come in winner, lengths ahead of his field.

ALFRED DENT TISDALE

Ellisville, Miss.

B.S., University of Mississippi, '18; Secretarial Committee Year Book; Chi Zeta Chi; Mississippi Club.

Tisdale joined us in the Junior year. To hear "Tis" on the subject of Physical Diagnosis is better than reading Cabot, but it is in Pediatrics that he really shines; here the youthful patients of the Free Clinic bring him bouquets each morning as a tribute of his skill and care. We have heard rumors that Tisdale has another specialty, but we only know positively that the class of '20 is proud to claim this attenuated Mississippian.

EARL B. TURNAGE

New Hebron, Miss.

Mississippi College, '09-'11; Millsaps College, '11-'12; Mississippi Club.

Another of our last-lap additions. The only possible complaint we have to make of Turnage is that he failed to join us earlier in the game.

HERBERT RANDOLPH UNSWORTH

New Orleans, La.

Subscription Committee Year Book; Phi Chi; Phi Delta Theta.

We thought Randolph would have joined the ranks of the Benedicts long before this, but he has managed to devote his attention to the 'Jealous Mistress.'' We are, however, making no predictions as to his actions in the near future. In any event it is a safe bet that he will follow in the footsteps of his father and rank among the best of New Orleans' medical men.

WILLIAM ALFRED WAGNER

New Orleans, La.

Phi Rho Sigma.

Better known as "Wee Willie," the name being applicable only to his size physically, as he has shown himself to be the mental equal of any man in the class. He is a good running mate for the two "Reds" and will argue indefinitely on a point or will recite word for word the text-books view on any subject. We only hope he can put into practice even a fraction of his book knowledge of medicine.

CHARLES ROSCOE WALTON

Benton, Ark.

University of Arkansas, '15-'19; Kappa Alpha; Arkansas Club; Phi Chi.

Walton joined us in our Senior year after three strenuous sessions at the University of Arkansas. Although he may be considered more or less a stranger in our midst, his quiet, easy going manner has won him a place among the men of '20. The son of a doctor and having a natural bent for the profession, we believe ourselves safe in saying that he will be a credit both to Arkansas and Tulane.

MAURICE S. WHITESIDE

Anniston, Ala.

Presbyterian College, '14-'16; Sigma Nu; Phi

Maurice has very little to say for himself or anything else. If you did not know him you might think he was a pessimist, but this would be an entirely false impression, for the gloom that enwraps this favorite son of Anniston is not due to misanthropy but to love, and it only requires a letter from the North to dispell the clouds. In spite of this serious heart lesion Whiteside is one of the hard and consistent workers of the class, whose efforts are certain to carry him a long way forward.

BRYAN WATKINS WHITFIELD

Demopolis, Ala.

B.S., Auburn; Assistant in Chemistry, '17-'18; Alabama Club; Kappa Psi; Stars and Bars.

"Whit' hails from the famous "Black Belt' known for its fighting cocks and fertile soil. In medicine he has upheld the traditions of his section, for he is a hard fighter and has a well-tilled and fertile mind in which to sow the knowledge gleaned from books. For the past year "Whit' has been serving as intern at Presbyterian Hospital, going to school at the same time and doing justice to both tasks. Whitfield is characteristically in a hurry, and no doubt will be among the first of us to "arrive."

CLARENCE JOHN WICHSER

New Orleans, La.

B.S., College of the Immaculate Conception, '09; Secretary and Treasurer, '18; Vice President, '20; Advertisement Committee Year Book, Ph.G., N. O. C. P., '13; Phi Rho Sigma.

As well as having several degrees already to his credit, Wichser also has the distinction of being the father of three robust children. In our Sophomore year, due to the fact that he was familiar with the smell, taste and color of drugs, he was made instructor in Pharmacology. As a result of his activity and ability Wichser has been a consistent and able office-holder.

MILTON WYATT WILLIAMSON

Bremen, Ga.

University of Georgia; Emory University; Secretarial Committee Year Book; Phi Rho Sigma.

Williamson came to us fresh from the A. E. F., bringing with him an extensive medical knowledge and a fund of experience. He is the sort of man we regret failed to see the true light earlier.

FRANK CUNNINGHAM WILSON

Birmingham, Ala.

B.S., V.M.I., '12; Alabama Club; Phi Chi; Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Stars and Bars.

Frank graduated from V. M. I. and was certainly one of the civilest engineers they ever produced. But he never practiced his profession, giving it up in favor of a position as President of one of Birmingham's largest banking institutions. Even this was too narrow a field, so Frank brought his smile to Tulane and turned his attention to medicine. That he has succeeded here is no surprise to Frank or anyone else, for as he often quotes "you cannot keep a good man down."

GERALD GINNESS WCODRUFF

Anniston, Ala.

A.B., University of Alabama, '16; Honor Committee, '17-'20; Faculty Statistics Committee Year Book; Alabama Club; Phi Chi; Alpha Tau Omega.

Nobody ever knew what the "G. G." stood for, but every man in the class knows "Fuzzy." Generous, cheerful, warm-hearted, always ready to help, "Fuzzy" is one of our best. Although he devotes half of his energy to answering telephone calls from the victims of his charms, he has enough left to enable him to overcome all the impediments in the way of a seeker after knowledge. Wherever Woodruff goes we can guarantee his happiness; he carries it with him.

SAM BEE WOODWARD

Oxford, Miss.

B.S., University of Mississippi; Mississippi Club; Phi Rho Sigma.

The "Irishman" joined us in the third year after two sessions in medicine at "Ole Miss." Sam is as big in heart as he is in body, and has a pleasant word for everyone, particularly the ladies. Woodward has surely kissed the Blarney Stone and will go back to Mississippi carrying the best wishes of the entire class.

ROY WILLIAM WRIGHT

Winnfield, La.

Louisiana State University, '15-'16; Senior Statistics Committee Year Book; Honor Committee, '18; Alpha Kappa Kappa; Kappa Alpha.

"Pop" long since gave up the idea that "Herpicide would save it" and accepts with characteristic philosophy the loss of his crowning glory. Wright is one of the most popular men in the class, and in the clinics where there is a constant demand for Dr. Wright. We believe that his genial, friendly manner will share an equal victory with his prescriptions.

MARION NICHOLAS YORK

Nashville, Ark.

University of Arkansas; Arkansas Club, President; Phi Chi.

York's passionate devotion to his native State and his red whiskers are the predominant features of his short stay among us. He is, however, a hard worker, and we expect to hear more of him in the near future.

EDWIN LIONEL JOSEPH ZANDER

New Orleans, La.

Assistant in Physiology and Chemistry, '17-'18; Secretarial Committee Year Book; Chi Zeta Chi.

Zander has the good fortune to be the last man on the roll, and consequently has very little to worry him on quiz days. He was one of "Daddy Metz's" assistants but managed to survive the ordeal and join our class, much to our advantage. "The first shall be last, and the last shall be first," and we believe Zander will be far up on the list of good doctors in the Crescent City.

Senior Medical Class History

The path of the modern Medical Student is by no means one strewn with roses. The journey is a long one and in the way are numerous hills, rugged, steep and high, which must be climbed; many obstacles which must be overcome before progress can be made.

Four years ago the Class of 1920 became a definite, organized unit, composed of individuals from various sections of our great country, all of whom flocked to this mighty center of Medical Learning seeking the knowledge which would enable them to live lives of service in accordance with the Oath of Hippocrates.

The opening scene found the anxious, determined group gathered around the office of the Dean, who carefully scrutinized our entrance credits, and having found them satisfactory, pronounced us members of the most insignificant corps of human beings that ever inhabited the earth, viz: "Freshmen Medical Students."

We were then hurled into the Laboratory of Gross Anatomy, where we were introduced to the remains of those poor unfortunates who had fallen by the wayside and given up the ghost for one reason or another, and as it was too late to administer aid to them it became our task to thoroughly familiarize ourselves with the minutest detailed structure of their physical make-up, in order that we might thus be enabled to more accurately locate diseased parts and to render relief to the sick and suffering in later years. This required scores of agonizing hours spent in the tedious technique of dissection, for we were expected to trace nerve filaments, blood capillaries, muscle fibers, lymphatics, etc., from their origin to their termination, even after they had become ultramicroscopic. This we earnestly endeavored to do to the best of our mediocre ability inspired with hope, energy and enthusiasm by daily quizzes which we seldom succeeded in passing.

Next we were honored by an address from our Professor of Anatomy, who after carefully examining our countenances reminded us of the great demand for labor in the corn and cotton fields, barnyards and barber shops. But Dr. Hardesty is an excellent teacher and has at all times a helping hand to extend to the beginner in Medicine whose intentions are sincere. Under his able guidance we were thoroughly drilled in the minute microscopic structure of the human organism, and we soon learned what a wonderful piece of mechanism man represented, far more beautiful in construction than the blending of the most delicate rays of a setting sun.

We then swarmed into the Laboratory of Chemistry, where we enjoyed the privilege of personal association with our good friend and teacher—Prof. Metz, who familiarized us with various chemicals, their properties, compounds and reactions, the changing of water into wine and vice versa, etc. So often we were impressed with his words, "Chappies, use your God-given gift of reason, power of observation and discernment so that he who runs may read."

Eight fleeting months soon hurried by and we found ourselves entrenched for the most terrible wage of warfare that ever Faculty launched against Student—the tasks of the Sophomore Year. Bravely we marched into the engagement timing our steps and tuning our voices to standard selections from the Organ of Corti (accompaniment by Spinal Cords), keeping pace with the most rapid beating of the Ear Drum. Fiercely we charged into the Laboratory of Physiology, where we were greeted by loathsome reptiles, fowls, dogs and other forms of animal life; but armed with ether, gas masks, knives, saws, scissors, hemostats and forceps we successfully ravaged these less fierce and more unfortunate individuals, and relieved them of their hearts whose final beats were recorded on cardiographs.

Then we dashed ourselves against all the Micro-organisms that the Department of Bacteriology had in captivity, and having gained immunity to these, we sought to decipher the various pathologic lesions that these mischievous little beings inflicted upon man.

Next the cyclone swept us into the Laboratory of Physiological Chemistry, where burry, confusion and tracing of crumbs of bread and bits of meat from the oral cavity to their formation of the most beautiful black hair and charming brown eyes were the crowning features of the course. And so the battle raged on from daylight till dark, day after day. Then at night our recreation periods were spent in dancing on the Floor of the Fourth Ventricle (Music by the Ilio-Tibial Band) chasing nerve impulses in and out of the Foramen of Magendie and the Aqueductus Cerebrii, moonlight picnies and motor boat trips along the Central Canal, slumber parties on the Hippocampal Gyrus, and at bedtime taking the Internal Capsule, facilitating deglutition by the secretion of the Pacchionian Bodies. As months rolled by we became sufficiently trained in this type of warfare to assume the obligations of the third degree.

The opening of this stage of the game found us wearing the regulation Khaki Uniform, busily engaged in building cinder roads, digging ditches, peeling potatoes, scrambling eggs, washing dishes and all the other duties of the rest of the Soldiers in the U. S. Army. For more than two months the bloody Battle of Camp Martin, that great Decisive Battle of the recent World War. the tragic scenes of which shall never fade from our memories, raged without an intermission. But in the midst of all this turmoil never once did our midnight oil cease to burn, never did our honest intention to become worthy to serve the sick lose its prime. Onward we marched shouldering two tremendous burdens. On the one hand, that of our bit in defeating the forces of the Kaiser: on the other hand, that of mastering the third stage of our chosen Profession. Here for the first time did we come in contact with sick and suffering humanity. Only then did we begin to realize what our duties in life would be. Our hearts began to grow big and tender for the sick and helpless just as a mother's heart does for her babe. We began to have a deeper insight into the nobleness of our Great Profession, and to develop unlimited respect for its worthy mission. With the coming of the new year peace had returned to the world and our undivided attention was given to the interest of our Medical work. Daily in the wards, clinics and lecture rooms we enjoyed personal contact with, and instruction from, some of the most eminent members of the Profession today. We were introduced to every imaginable type of disease, thoroughly drilled in their symptoms, course, diagnosis, treatment and prognosis, saw these actually demonstrated in the wards and were invited to read all the literature that has been published on these diseases since the days of Hippoerates—(450 B. C.). But the work was so thoroughly fascinating and so intensely interesting that we eagerly devoured all phases of it.

But when our noted Professor of Surgery would step into the operating room and find there, with outstretched arms pleading for help, some poor unfortunate individual whose acoustic organs were already tuned to enjoy the music of the next world and with a masterly sweep of a keen-edged knife followed by the elicking of hemostats, would excise the faulty part with a demonstration of Modern Surgical Technique to the degree of perfection, and in a short time the patient be enjoying perfect health, as if healed by a magician waving his wand, then we realize that the road we must still travel was a long one and that we had searcely started on the journey.

A few short months soon passed, all too quickly, and the curtain was up for the last act of our Medical Melodrama. We have fought our way from the very bottom. At last we have reached the point where we can look just ahead and see glistening into our faces that enthusiastically coveted goal. But the privileges enjoyed during the Senior Year, the excellent instruction received from all the Departments, repays us many times for the bitter sacrifices that have been undergone in an attempt to qualify for the last aet.

As an organized unit the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Twenty shall soon cease to exist. Its individual members will scatter over various parts of the globe to assume the responsibilities of their life's work. But before leaving this grand old Institution, which we hope to be able soon to proudly call our Alma Mater, we wish to express our heartfelt thanks and extreme gratitude to each and every member of our splendid Faculty, both individually and collectively, for the untiring efforts that they have put forth in our behalf, for the many acts of kindness and courtesy that they have extended to us, for their earnest endeavor to impart to us the fundamental principles of the profession, for the excellent training they have given us and for the many sacrifices they have undergone for us. We shall always point to them with pride as our teachers. May our lives and practices be so guided that they may know that their earnest efforts in our behalf were not in vain. May success, happiness and prosperity be the lot of every individual member of the class, may the close bonds of friendship that have bound us so intimately together for the past four years never fade dim in our memories, and may each and every one of us so conduct himself in later life that he will reflect honor and credit upon his Alma Mater and that excellent corps of Doctors of Medicine comprising her teaching staff, and in the end, having lived useful, honorable lives, lives of service for the sake of humanity, be happily prepared for the summons of the Great Physician. "Historian."

The Last Will and Testament of the Class of 1920

We, the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Twenty, having plumed our wings for flight preparatory to our departure from this sphere, and being in possession of more or less sound mind, memory and intelligence, do make, declare, and publish this, our Last Will and Testament, hereby revoking and making null and void any and all other Wills made by us at any time heretofore.

First—Do we enjoin and request that the last sacred rites of our funeral services be conducted by our good and patient friends and well-wishers, the Faculty, with all the dignity, pomp and ceremony they may deem our station in the College scale to have merited.

As to such estate it has pleased the Fates and our own tireless energy, zeal and perseverance to give us, do we dispose of as follows, to-wit:

ITEM: To the College, their heirs and assigns forever, we do give and bequeath from our vast storehouse all the startling information and discoveries made by our most brilliant members in the course of our diligent and ceaseless search after knowledge.

ITEM: To our beloved Faculty do we give and bequeath respite from our numerous and imploring petitions. No more will they be pained to refuse our humble wishes, nor with ill-concealed emotion to thwart our fondest hopes.

ITEM: To the Class of 1921 we do bequeath the following most sacred of our possessions, enjoining that they be most reverently used and cared for:

FIRST—Senior Dignity, which they have so long striven to emulate. We realize that this will entail a severe strain on the nerves and muscles of these youthful aspirants, however, we do entrust it to them with the sincere hope that they may attain the proper dignity and poise and still keep their heads within the confines of their hats.

Second—Senior Privileges, which they so early threaten to assume. No longer will they be forced to sit miles high in the Amphitheatre and gaze upon the proud bald occiputs of their elders.

ITEM: To the Sophomores do we give the distinguished honor of becoming "Downtown Men." With the new duties of course go privileges also, as for instance, the special though somewhat questionable compliment of being addressed by Alfred, Landladies and others, as "Doctor."

ITEM: To the Freshman we would give and bequeath the following:

Furst—Our most heartfelt congratulation on their emergence from that protozoal stage of their existence in which they did live, eat, sleep and dream naught but "origin and insertion," and did reek with the ethereal odor of those who nobly gave themselves to "Science."

Second—An appeal to their keen sense of humor that they may understand at last what has been puzzling them for nearly a year; in their Sophomoric stage they must turn back and view the first year men beneath them (for there will be men beneath them), and see themselves as they have appeared to us.

All the rest and residue of our property whatsoever and wheresoever it may be, we bequeath to our Dean for his use and benefit solely, to be disposed of as he sees fit, and in addition we hereby constitute and appoint said Dean sole executor of this our Last Will and Testament.

In witness whereof we, the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Twenty, testators, have to this Last Will and Testament set our hand and seal, this Ninth Day of June, in the year of our Lord, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Twenty.

The Ivy

To day we come together To observe a custom old, The planting of the ivy,-How many times it's told; We've worked through many an hour, Waited patiently and long To plant this little token That grows so slow and strong. The tiny tendrils climb and climb The branches grow and grow, It covers soon the whole gray wall With lovely foliage,-so Tis thus we stand at morning On life's eventful day With but a sprig of promise To cheer us on our way; Yet like the ivy may we grow Steadily on and up Until we reach the summit, And drink from wisdom's cup. And when standing on that hilltop Looking backward to this hour The planting of the ivy green Will still be source of power.

History of the Junior Class

Never was the fact that mysteries can happen and are happening better brought out than it was two years ago last October when the present Junior Class was organized. Such a class; men and women from every section of the Western Hemisphere, from the wild and savage regions of Mexico to the frozen deserts of Canada. Who would deny this being a miraele—that such a body of men and women as we proudly boast of today, would have decided upon the same school, the same course and at the same time. With Seventy-five members and Dr. Hardesty to lead us we started out in our effort to master the theories, principles and facts that lead to an M.D. The work was hard and the encouragement small, as we were constantly being reminded that about twentyfive per cent of us would not be back after Christmas. To some the start seemed rather speedy, but as days went by we began to realize that our path was not so bad, not nearly as bad as that of those who were the first to study Histology and did not have the aid of "old books," And Dr. Metz was kind—he threw only chalk erasers at those who went to sleep in one of his famous three-hour lectures.

Before the year was half over there came the eall to colors, one of the greatest calls to arms the world has ever witnessed. Realizing the future need of the government for doctors, all of the class that were eligible joined the Enlisted Medical Reserve Corps. A few, however, feeling the immediate need of men, stopped school and went into active service. The year finally came to a close, but a few remained to do research work in the summer courses—searching for a few things they failed to find during the regular session. This was a great year for the entire class and to many will furnish material for fireside stories throughout their lives. Such memories as the happy faces of their fellow-classmates as they greeted each other in "Tom's" or the "Pup" will never grow dim. nor the sad expressions of these same faces when in that year the cabarets were thrown into darkness and the peppy music was heard no more.

September, 1918, and we all assembled again, and what a situation—no one knew what to do or what was going to happen, but that something very unusual was going to take place was evident as our good and trusted friend, "Dr." Belfield, refused to accept our tuition money. After several weeks of uncertainty and constant inquiry we were informed that we were all to become soldiers, yes, sure enough rookies, no doctors at all, not even Second Lieutenants. Within a few days, to the call of a whistle and the commands of one of Uncle Sam's lowest creations, we lined up and began the battle of Camp Martin. For the next few months we performed all the duties of a rookie very diligently and some of the class even became sergeants. But finally The Day came, the one we had been wishing, praying and cussing for, for some time. October 12, 1492, was a great day, as was November 11, 1918, but neither meant so much to us as December 6, 1918. That was our day of Independence. With the assurance that we were not soldiers and never had been, we were ordered to turn in all army clothing and to immediately leave camp. In spite of the injustice done this order was cheerfully carried out. With and without civilian clothes, but with a satisfied countenance we left camp and all officers, free once more to rest our feet on any old brass rail we might so desire.

The Christmas holidays then being close at hand we decided to call off all college activities until after the New Year. Every one went home and recuperated from the fast and strenuous life we had been leading in Unele Sam's army. Upon returning to college everybody got down to hard work again and practically the entire class completed the Sophomore year successfully.

At the sound of the gong on October 1, 1919, all of the old members answered to roll call and for every old man there was a new face. They came from the North, the East, the West and the South, and for a time it was hard to find the old men among the new fellows. Whether it was the class that atracted them or the college or that they were dissatisfied with the colleges from which they came we cannot say, but about forty-five men from other schools throughout the country and Arkansas joined our ranks this year. We welcome them and feel that they will help make the class of 1921, not only the largest ever graduated at Tulane, but also one that will furnish suffering humanity with many a good M.D.

Sophomore Class History

About fifty-six accounted for at our present stage of the Life Game. Our Class returned somewhat diminished in numbers, but notwithstanding the ragged ranks, we are back at work this year passing the physiological ordeal (we hope we are passing it), and putting the finishing touches to our pictorial courses, the artistic phase of our career so necessary to soothe the ailments of suffering humanity.

To the ordinary anatomical and chemical ordeals which every class meets with at the beginning of its journey, a few more obstacles were added to test the mettle of 1922. The first of these was life in barracks and three months in the S. A. T. C. The influenza epidemic was ordeal No. 2, which we embryo doctors had to face. The third eame when Dr. Metz, after displaying a true spirit of "Brotherhood," finding that his health would no longer permit him to instruct his "babies" in the use of their "God-given gift of reason," turned us over to Dr. Garrey. In the process of changing hands much valuable time was lost, resulting in a concentrated course in Physiological Chemistry. Several good men were not equal to the struggle of last year, but a few of these were replaced by an influx of war veterans.

Whether "Buddy's" voice seems less harsh and merciless because we are Sophomores or whether he has recognized our real worth, we are not certain, but it is perfectly evident that, although we are still "so far behind" in our work there is a little note of respect which we, as Freshmen, knew not. Running up and down spinal tracts we felt we would surely get wrecked at some time or other. Very few among us, however, have met with disaster "in that country."

We emerge from the Sophomore stage of our development with imaginations developed to the highest degree.

To eerebrate facts emanating from "King" Duval's store-house of knowledge seemed at first to be bordering on the impossible, and some of us concluded we possessed a natural immunity. We have, however, after due exposure, aequired "Bugs" and Pathology.

Ours is a banner Class. What we lack in quantity we make up in quality. In spite of our small numbers, we are creditably represented in every student activity. Intellectually we have proven ourselves. To put it in another way, our Class is composed of men of true worth destined for great things—it is not in the province of the historian to prophecy, however, and I shall let the future unfold itself.

HISTORIAN.

Freshman Class History

On October 1, 1919, the Medical Class of 1923, 87 strong, started on its uphill and arduous career. Some of its members, who had their pre-medical work at Tulane, realized the importance of their promotion from "Pre-Meds" to real medical students; others coming to Tulane for the first time felt their freshness even more than during their first year in college. However, only a few days had passed before the feelings both of importance and freshness were lost as we became engrossed and almost engulfed in the intricacies of the human body seen both in the dissecting room and under the microscope.

Two remarkable feats of dissection during our first week deserve special mention. Dr. Bayon's instructions were to reflect the skin from a certain region. After cutting away the skin and all else down to the underlying muscle, the embryo surgeon meekly asked, "Doctor, am I cutting deeply enough?" The other student was directed to "clean up" a certain muscle. He quickly cut it off, took it to the sink and after scrubbing it very carefully took it to the instructor with the question, "Did I clean it enough?"

But in spite of such brilliance, we have been greatly cheered and encouraged by our professors commending our attitude toward our work and our progress as a class. We are not such Bolshevists as to wish to upset earefully and scientifically prepared statistics, but we believe our class will not suffer the usual 25 per cent loss due to "flunking."

Our past history is of necessity brief, but as time passes it will grow, not only in length but also in importance and interest, as it portrays the deeds and discoveries of the class of '23. The sincere interest and desire to learn shown by many members of the class leads us to believe we are working not only for an M.D., but that we may fit ourselves for the service to mankind which the medical profession must perform.

The Second Year Pre-Medical Class History

On finishing high school, with all the dignity of a high school graduate and the high ideals usually possessed by such young men and women, about twenty of us gathered together and organized the present Second Year Pre-Medical Class, all resolving to enter that ancient and mysterious study of medicine. Of course, we all knew the very branch in which we would specialize and where we would practice. In fact, it was rumored that certain ones of us had already consulted landlords with regard to office rent. But, after several days of constant striving, we finally found the place where we were to register. Then, after due instruction, we were able to report to classes. Much to our amazement, we were not called "Doctor" as we had expected, but were known by the name of "Rat." The Sophomores were very kind to us and made us wear green caps in order that they would be able to recognize us. They even forbade our smoking because they were afraid that smoking might injure our nerves; and this would lessen our professional skill.

Everything progressed smoothly, until Uncle Sam, in his search for good men, delivered to us the call. Practically every man answered; some enlisting in the Students' Army Training Corps or Naval Reserve. We all made wonderful rookies; and had it not been for the signing of the Armistice, no doubt, many of us would have established for ourselves great military careers. While we were in the Army, we learned a great deal, but very little of this knowledge concerned medicine. After we were discharged from the service, we began anew, with the determination to study; and, finally, most of us completed a very successful year.

After being scattered to many parts of the country for the summer, practically every one of us answered roll call on the first day of October.

We found that several new members had joined our class, seeking the same career. With a great deal to do in helping to take care of the Freshmen, and enough work to occupy our spare time, we began another year. Now realizing the importance of the course which we are pursuing, we predict the very best of a year's work, and untold success in our years to follow.

Freshman Pre-Medical Class History

The present year's Freshman Pre-medical Class brings into Tulane a group of students who can do, and who can show themselves willing to do, as much for this institution as any previous student body.

The increase in attendance at the University has been felt in the pre-medical department equally as much as in other departments. In our class, there are two women and forty-three men—the largest first year pre-medical class in the history of the college. This increase in number of pre-medicals can probably be attributed to the fact that many of the men were inspired to study medicine by what they observed during their enlistment in the various branches of the military service. They saw the importance of adequate medical attention, and realized the necessity of coupling medical efficiency with military effectiveness in order to have a complete, well organized army of satisfied men. There has been an unprecedented influx of out-of-town men representing most of the Southern States.

Many of the students have just been released from several years of army service, and, for this reason, they have lost the study habit; nevertheless, they have set themselves to the task of picking up the threads of their old student life.

Since the medical course extends over a period of six years we are not really in the class of '23; but, we are going to help the present Freshman Arts and Sciences and Technology classes, might and main, to deserve the right to put their numbers on the tank.

History of the Senior Class

As most people say that history only repeats itself, it would seem egotistical on our part to declare that history did not repeat itself with the Pharmacy Class of 1920. In the vernacular of the modern American street we do not conceive of our being in a class by ourselves, but we do maintain that there are some features of our two years of college life which are somewhat different from the characteristics of the many classes that have preceded us.

Our enrollment at the outset was eleven students, and as our university career ends, strange to say, we are again eleven.

Great difficulties faced us as we started. Tulane University had, for all practical purposes, become the voluntary property of our National Government. In the stress of a World War, America had called upon Tulane to help save civilization, and she in response, with her customary enthusiasm and patriotism, appealed to her valiant sons and daughters the instant America's cry was heard.

How Tulane could best help the Nation in its hour of peril became the prime consideration of her administrators and faculty, and everything else was subordinate to that patriotic duty. The problem as to whether or not the Pharmacy course could be continued without interfering with the military regime in effect at Camp Martin (this name having replaced that of Tulane University) caused a considerable amount of worry and agitation.

On November 11, 1918, the war ended, and with it the military idea that had dominated Tulane for a period of time. The remaining time spent in College as Juniors was practically uneventful.

The roll call at the start of our Senior year found two of our former classmates absent, but there were added to it two others to take their places, socially as well as numerically.

The first and only Pharmaceutical College Fraternity at Tulane was established for the men of the class during the early part of the year. H. C. Richards, our Instructor in Materia Medica, being the prime factor in making the "Frat" a realization.

Happily, our class history was devoid of any internal strife. We pursued the even tenor of our way with everyone enjoying mutual friendship. Pit parties innumerable and "gondoliering" on the lakes of Audubon Park furnished just enough play for each and every one of us to keep Jack or Jill from becoming a dull boy or girl.

The kindly co-operation and good fellowship of the College Authorities played a big part in the success which our class achieved and has aided in filling our hearts with a Tulane spirit that will be everlasting.

When the session of 1919-20 opened and the Junior Class of Pharmacy had enrolled, Dr. Dyer handed to each student the above prescription, which has proven to be as nice a dose as could be prescribed.

The Junior Class is the largest class in recent years enrolled in the School of Pharmacy at Tulane. It consists of twenty-one energetic young men and one fair "Desdemona;" they came from all parts of this continent and Algiers. With "Shorty" O'Shee as our central figure, this class works for one great ideal—"Success."

The ideal student of the mind of one of our Professors has been typified to a great extent by the majority of our class. As for punctuality, promptness, and application we are seldom equaled and never excelled.

"Spirit and Application" are the by-words of the class of '21. While some of the more energetic students are looking for a "valence glass" in their spare time the others are in the Gym or on the athletic field striving for honors in the world of sport.

Remember, all ye readers: "Success" is our motto and-

All the rest can go to—— join the Dental ranks.

History of the Senior Class

After our preliminary work in widely scattered colleges and universities we have, during the past year, been first welded together in the bonds of a common interest and ambition and can only regret that our first year at Tulane is also our last.

With one exception, Charles Davidson, we commenced our work at other schools, but have chosen to receive the coveted D.D.S. at Tulane, believing, in common with other Sons and Daughters of our University, that a degree conferred here carries with it the hall-mark of real distinction indelibly impressed by the character of the classes which have preceded us.

Bidding farewell to Tulane, we, the members of the class of 1920, leave filled with the determination to maintain the high standard set by our predecessors; to uphold the dignity of our profession; and to keep ever green the fond memories of our Alma Mater.

Junior Class History

When the class of nineteen hundred and twenty-one matriculated in the fall of nineteen hundred and seventeen, several States in the Union and also a few foreign countries were represented. We were the first class to begin the four-year course in Dentistry.

Our class has achieved no wonderful things, nor has it established any great records, except that of doing less studying, and cutting more classes than any other in the history of Tulane University. We have not looked up the records of attendance of other classes, but we feel certain that in this respect we are nonpareil, and it is foolish for any class to question our record at all.

This is a lazy class, just like all the rest. So lazy, in fact, that we haven't taken the trouble to make any history to speak about. However, we have resolved to do better next year, to make history, to study enough to get by with a comfortable margin, to never again deliberately leave a final examination without written permission from our Dean, to never again question the sincerity of our instructors, to do our work every day as though we enjoy it.

The class has stood together through thick and thin, and will continue to do so, to work as one during all conflicts and trials of our college career.

We have both strong and weak men, some of which we hope to see standing at the top notch of the Dental Profession and we trust that the future holds success in her grasp for every man in the class.

Sophomore Class History

"Veni, Vidi, Vici," so quoth the gallant Roman of yore, and in like manner we, Tulane's Dental Class of 1922, emerged from our embryonic surroundings in June, 1919, to the second degree in Dentistry.

To be sure, our career was somewhat checkered, but with courage undaunted, and by constant application and perseverance, even Chemistry and "Bullological Whisperings," were to us but obstacles of small magnitude.

Thus it was that we advanced, and technically speaking, Crowned ourselves with success. Filled our minds with knowledge, Ground Down our Rough Edges; and after carefully Carving and Polishing our aims for the future year, Burred our way across a Non-Removable Bridge, into this, our Sophomore year.

Our Professors have been jubilant; our answers have been correct and quick, Painful Extraction is a thing of the past.

Our precipitous, long, long trail was but a trifle. Those who were socially inclined gladly cast aside these things of minor importance so as to achieve the highest summit, namely—Success.

So here we find ourselves with the consensus of opinion that the end of this present Sophomore year will possess no cases of "Fearopassitus."

We are altruistic, and, as often remarked by our worthy instructors, no egoism exists in our midst, but on the contrary, a true, keen feeling of fraternalism binds each member of the class.

Hence, it is that we expect to Brave the Flames this year again, ever aiming at success and graduation.

IRWIN ISAACSON, Historian.

CLASS POEM The Dents of Twenty-Two

Half the night is over now,
And we have passed the test
To work until the daylight hour
Shall crown our first success.
The time of play has passed ns,
And all of us mnst do
The things that will progress us
To be Dents of Twenty-Two,

There are sterner things ahead of us;
The work that only men can do;
And it will make the men of us
That honor the Olive and the Blue.
May our ideals never waver
From the light that holds us true,
To the thoughts that old Thlane
Has left the Dents of Twenty-Two.

We are ready for the next test
That will bring us from the night,
And put us on the home-stretch
To the hour of dawning light,
And once our life's work's started
May its every deed be true,
Until from life we've parted,
And the Dents of Twenty-Two.

Freshman Class History

Dear reader, we, being the Freshman Dental Class, have as yet, but little history. The short weeks we have been a class have not afforded us opportunity. But ere the next few years have passed, and the days of our college associations near an end, we shall have made history-much history.

With pardonable pride, permit me please, to state briefly something about our class. The 1919 Freshman Dental Class totals thirty-four; thirty-three of the best fellows in the world and an only co-ed, whose gentle, womanly virtues radiate about us an atmosphere of sweetness and refinement. Quite a few of our number have come from far-off lands, across great oceans; which attests the fact that, to a student, we are possessed of seriousness of purpose and ambition. We are going to let Tulane have the best there is in us, and in return, receive all she can give.

Others say we are the biggest Freshman Dental Class Tulane ever had.

It is true, and in addition thereto, we admit we are the best.

HISTORIAN.

A Freshman's Idea of His School

Tulane University, New Orleans, La. December 1, 1919.

DEAR OSCAR:

I got your letter this morning, and I guess you forgot about owing me five bucks. Well, you could give it to me when I come home Christmas, only I ain't coming. No, Siree Not since me and Mary had that bust-up. I ain't the kind of a guy to suck around after no girl. Independent, that's me all over, eh, Oscar?

The work they have piled on me is awfully hard and scientific, but I guess its worth the trouble. 'Cause after I have finished this dental course, I will at least be able to make a hand to mouth living, and if I happen to have a good pull, I ought to mop up.

I am taking English, but that ain't nothing in my young life—I been talking the stuff since I were a baby. And drawing: I been trying to draw pretty little flowers and birds and things ever since I been here, but the only thing

I could ever draw, I reckon, is flies.

Biology (bugology is the right name for it) is great stuff; that is providing if you don't care what becomes of you no more. You have to look through a microscope and find little bugs. They're real cute and some of them are trained. I couldn't see them very well at first, but since my imagination has improved, it's easy. I'm so good now, I can tell they're there without seeing them—I can hear 'em. But honestly, Oscar, it's powerful hard to see them tiny, little bugs these prohibition times. Remember that time we didn't even have no microscope and saw a whole animal parade? But that's another story; eh, Oscar?

The thing though what knocks all the joy out of life is gross anatomy. Imagine a dent having to dissect the whole human carcass—stomach and all. Good gosh! I never dreamed before that teeth had such long roots. There's one good thing about it—if a patient ever swallows any of my instruments

I'll be able to get 'em out and not lose anything.

Along with all this I am taking dentistry. There is dental anatomy, prosthetic work and a whole flock of things. I won't mention them all here.

They're too tecknickel for you to understand.

I'd write more but I ain't feeling well since the other night when I had to take a hair brush and show a bunch of sophs who was boss in this dormitory. Since then I feel a whole lot more comfortable when I stand up.

Yours long as school keeps.

STARS AND BARS SOCIETY

THE CREED OF THE STARS AND BARS SOCIETY

Founded at Tulane University, 1907.

We believe in the tenets of abiding truth which is the guiding star of our Order. We believe in the helping hand which is the bar which binds us in our calling. We believe in the unity of service to one another which lends to the weary a word of cheer, to the poor a portion of our share, to theweak a meed of pity, to the stricken a voice of comfort, to the old a memory of youth and to the wayfarer a help along to the journey's end.

Our emblem will always be an inspiration to duty, remembering it stands for excellence in all things, purity of purpose and honesty of method and effort, with the blessing of an Alma Mater upon each who wears her badge of honor. May our lives lie among the stars which light the way to the great mystery and may we so live that when we reach the end of the road we may find the veil, which parted leads to the heights of everlasting peace.

INTERNE QUARTERS CHARITY HOSPITAL

UPTOWN LABORATORIES

A Brief History of Charity Hospital

The hospital is 118 years old, having celebrated its centennial or diamond jubilee on December 9, 1911.

THE FIRST HOSPITAL

Founded by a sailor, Jean Louis, who dying in New Orleans in 1723, left a legacy of twelve thousand lire (about $4000.00) to found a hospital for the poor, during Bienville's administration. This was an old residence, a wooden structure situated on North Rampart street, between Toulouse and St. Peter streets. Destroyed by harricane in 1779, fifty-nine years after it had been founded.

THE SECOND HOSPITAL.

Was erected during the Spanish domination and was built at the expense of Don Andres Almonaster y Roxas, a wealthy and noble Spaniard. This structure was of brick and was completed in 1784, five years after the destruction of the first hospital. It was built on the site of the first hospital at a cost of $114,000 with an endowment of $1,500 per annum from rental of property on St. Peter street. The administration of the hospital was vested in Don Almonaster and his heirs by authority of the Crown. This hospital was destroyed by fire in 1789.

THE THIRD HOSPITAL.

Was not rebuilt until 1815—twenty-six years after the fire. A new building was erected by the territory of Louisiana and occupied the square bounded by Canal, Baronne, Common and Dryades streets, which subsequently became the site of the State House and University of Louisiana. (Now Crescent and Tulane Theatres and Grunewald Hotel).

THE FOURTH HOSPITAL.

Is the present building, which was erected by the State of Louisiana in 1832 and was modeled after Guy's hospital in London. It cost $150,000. The following year, the Sisters of Charity were invited to take charge of its domestic and commercial management. They entered the hospital in 1834 and have been uninterruptedly connected with its administration since, i. e., eighty-five years.

The hospital has gradually added to its capacity by the crection of various annexes which have been contributed partly by the State, but chiefly through the donations and legacies of several generous benefactors, including among these, the Milliken Memorial for Children, 1898; the Hutchinson Memorial for Nurses, 1901; the Delgado Memorial (surgical pavillion), 1909; the present amphitheater, named after one of the most honored surgeons of this city, Dr. Albert B. Miles, built in 1895.

Since 1832 to 1916, inclusive, the hospital has cared, in 84 years, for 717.050, with a gross mortality in 1916 of 10.19 per cent, and net death rate of 8 per cent. The total number of operations performed in 1916 amounted to 7.541. The capacity of the indoor department was 1195 beds, which accommodated in 1916, 18,651 patients. The daily average is 925 patients, who were cared for at a per capita cost of ninety-two cents in 1916, probably the lowest per capita cost in the United States.

The accident cases amounted to 16,682 per year. In the outdoor clinics 41,882 patients were treated in 1916, who were given a total of 130,642 consultations.

With assets in 1832 of $150,000.00, the estimated valuation of the plant in 1911, at the centennial celebration, was placed at $1,600,000.00, probably $2,000,000.00 today.

TOURO INFIRMARY

The hospital was founded by Judah Touro, who built the Bunker Hill monument in Boston and whose grave is cared for by the State of Massachusetts—but whose great memorial lives in the South. It was started in 1854, in a house at Gaiennie and Celeste streets, as a private institution. In 1868, it was transformed into a Jewish hospital and opened to the public, with a capacity of 24 beds, and in 1874 the Gentlemen's Hebrew Benevolent Association was consolidated with Touro.

Three years later the District Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of B'nai B'rith, which to this day remains a loyal supporter of the hospital, arranged with the Touro for the care of sick members. Since that time the institution's growth has kept page with the growth of the city.

In 1880 Julius Weis, then president of Touro, directed the raising of a $60,000 fund, and the following year a new building was started on the present site. The old hospital was closed and the new one opened in 1882. The board decided in 1883 to admit non-Jewish patients into the free wards—a policy which continued. Today less than 5 per cent of Touro's patients are Jews.

Touro's great out-door clinic has been in operation since 1888. Close to 100,000 treatments are now given annually without charge.

During the administration of E. V. Benjamin, who has been president of Touro since 1910, many improvements and additions have been made. The hospital's capacity has been increased from 175 to 265 and the social service department has been put into operation.

PRESBYTERIAN HOSPITAL

The Presbyterian Hospital of today is the direct outgrowth of the New Orleans Training School for Nurses, organized by a small group of public-spirited women in 1889.

The site of the original building was St. Joseph Street, and in spite of the inferior location and financial handidcaps this first effort succeeded fairly well. Later on, the same group of women, who were largely responsible for the establishment and success of the Training School, founded, in connection with a number of prominent physicians, the Woman's and Children's Hospital. In 1893 both institutions came under the management of the physicians and became known as the New Orleans Sanitarium and Training School for Nurses.

In response to a growing demand upon the new institution removal to a better location became imperative, and the site finally selected was on Carondelet street between Girod and Julia streets. It progressed and increased rapidly in importance. New buildings were erected as the necessity arose, until in 1910 another change in the direction of the hospital took place, the property was purchased and the old New Orleans Sanitarium and Training School for Nurses became the Presbyterian Hospital, by which name it is known today.

The present building is a well-equipped, modern brick structure, contains ninety-six beds, and could serve as a model for medium-sized hospitals. During the past year 5,019 patients were registered, while in the Corinne Casanas Free Clinic, connected with the hospital, nearly eight thousand patients were treated in 1919.

HOTEL DIEU

The Hotel Dieu was one of the first private sanitariums erected in the Southland. True to its mission of helping the sick from the year 1859 it has kept pace with medical progress, and when in 1914 its "new wing," designed by Architect Andry, in collaboration with Dr. Marion Souchon, was erected at a cost of $200,000.00, this building represented the last word in hospital construction.

In ventilation, heating and lighting systems, with telephonic communications from private rooms and every hall, with bathrooms attached to suites, every possible convenience is furnished the sick and convalescent.

The fourth floor is devoted to the surgical department and has six operating rooms, modern in every detail, and affording unsurpassed natural and artificial lighting facilities. With ample provisions for those who cannot pay for such, the Sisters of Charity, in true Vincentian spirit, have and give accommodations free to the less fortunate. With a modern X-Ray department in charge of Dr. A. L. Fortier, with its pathological department under the supervision of Dr. M. Couret, and with a large staff of visiting surgeons and physicians, the Hotel Dieu stands in the first rank of modern hospital institutions.

Base Hospital Unit No. 24. (Tulane Unit.)

TULANE UNIT-BASE HOSPITAL NO. 24

Ten month; before America entered the war, the task of organizing and equipping a base hospital had been laid before the first Red Cross meeting held in New Orleans, in a speech by Dr. Matas, setting forth the program of the Director-General, Col. Jefferson R. Kean, for co-operation of medical men with the Red Cross.

In response to this suggestion, Base Hospital No. 24 began to form. Its medical officers were all either members of the teaching staff of the Medical Department of Tulane University, or graduates of that school. The nurses and enlisted men came principally from New Orleans and the surrounding country. The funds which provided for the equipment were raised in New Orleans by the local chapter of the Red Cross.

Dr. Rudolph Matas, Major, M. R. C., directed and organized the Unit. He appointed Dr. J. T. Halsey, with the rank of Captain, acting Adjutant, and Dr. I. I. Lemann, Captain, acting Quartermaster. A. B. Tipping, superintendent of Touro Infirmary, was purchasing agent; Major J. B. Elliott, Jr., Assistant Director, as well as Chief of the Medical Staff, became Director in June, 1917, when Dr. Matas found that grave illness in his home would oblige him to relinquish his hope of going with the Unit overseas.

By the end of May, 1917, organization of the professional personnel was so nearly complete that enlistments were authorized and by July 15 the ranks were filled. Recruits were sent to Jackson Barracks for organization, where Dr. W. H. Seemann, Captain in the Medical Reserve Corps, took charge of them.

After five months of training at Camp Greenleaf, the unit entrained for Camp Merritt, N. J. The nurses had been mobilized at Ellis Island. All sailed from New York February 16, 1918.

The hospital was established in the "Usine Mas-Loubier," the Haviland china factory. The capacity, originally 500 beds, was increased to 650, and by June, 1918, 911 patients had been accommodated at one time; and by November, when the armistice was arranged, the hospital had had as many as 1741 at one time.

The fact that Tulane was chosen to replace the Yale unit at the important base of Limoges was a notable recognition of the Southern Corps. Lieutenant Colonel Elliott was appointed group consultant in general medicine for the Bazoilles and Vittel-Contrexeville Hospital Centers; Lieutenant Colonel Maes was appointed assistant surgical consultant of the First Army Corps, and later of the Second Army. Major Lanford was assigned to duty at the Central Medical Department Laboratory. Major Halsey was thus made Chief of Medical Service in place of Lieutenant Colonel Elliott, Captain (later Lieutenant Colonel) Smyth succeeded Major Maes as Chief of Surgical Service, and Captain Rand became Chief of Laboratory Service in place of Major Lanford. Other promotions and changes were made from time to time.

One nurse, Miss Katherine Dent. died June 18, 1918, of broncho-pneumonia. When the unit returned to New Orleans, April 28, 1919, the Executive Committee of the New Orleans Chapter, American Red Cross, entertained officers, nurses, and personnel at a luncheon in the Grunewald Hotel. St. Clair Adams, as toastmaster, welcomed the men and women who had done so much for suffering humanity. Mayor Martin Behrman, in the name of the people of the city, also welcomed them. Frank B. Hayne recounted the history of the organization, and Dr. Elliott congratulated his fellow-officers, the nurses, and the men whose patriotic services had contributed so much to the success of the unit in caring for sick and wounded in the great war.

WIT AND HUMOR

STAFF POEM

The world's now old, but likes to laugh
New puns are hard to find.
The greatest Editorial Staff
Can't tickle every mind.
So if you read some old-time joke,
Patched up in modern guise,
Don't fuss and say the thing's a fake,
Just laugh—don't be too wise.

THE FINAL VOTE

'Twas in the Doctors' room that the Profs all gathered, Around a table their mouths frotled and lathered, To decide if the Seniors from then should be Each a polished and finished M. D.

There was Dr. Hume and Old John B. Urban Maes and S. M. D. Smooth-tongued Bel and Bernhardt near And "Pinky" DeBuys and Fat Blackshear.

There was "Malaria" Bass and "Typhoid" Johns And "Big Boy" Fenner with his derby on, And McIlhenny, neat and trim, By "Fatty" Newman with whiskered chin.

The meeting had started, the Seniors discussed, Whether they passed or whether they'd bust. Garrey was mad, Gessner grinning, Gentle "Sis" Hopkins surreptitiously singing.

The "Chief" walked in, his goatee twitched, The Dean arose, "Izzy" Cohn's palm itched, Hardesty jumped, made Hakey start, C. Jeff Miller nudged his friend Van Wart.

"Flowery" Guthrie fell asleep,
"Hard Boy" Eshleman shuffled his feet.
Lyons pulled at his mustache thin,
Carroll Allen sucked his stomach in.

Lucien Landry tied a surgeon's knot In "Kid'' O'Kelly's luxurious locks, "Tubby'' Bloom tugged at his underlip While "Brudder" Feingold murmured "isn't it."

The Seniors were voted on, all of them passed, Souchon snoring like one who is gassed. "King" Duval rises in a dignified way, Suggesting plans for Commencement Day.

Old "Doe" Belfield shuffles in, But leaves in disgust on account of the din. The discussion was wild but Chillingworth slept, While wise J. A. Lanford snapped at Couret.

All business finished in the usual way, Dr. Metz rises and tries hard to say That it is time for the end of the tiresome session, But the Dean ealls him down for too much aggression.

A wild stampede follows, the doors broken down By the faculty's mad rush for cars into town. The lights are put out, the curtains are furled, And a new bunch of Medies have been thrown on the world.

B. A. C.

5.48 AM Fall Out II Shake if up baye! On the double

Dr. Miller: How would you make a diagnosis if this patient spoke Russian?

Howell: Call an interpreter, Doctor.

Curious P. G.: Why do they call this the Miles Amphitheater?
GROUCHY JUNIOR: Because you are Miles away from the Operation.

"Now," said the Nervous old lady to the Druggist: "Are you sure that you have mixed this medicine right?"

"No, Ma'am, I would not go so far as to say that, but I have mixed it the way the Doctor ordered it."

AND NOW THEY CALL HIM "PSEUDO-BRAIN"

Dr. Duval (The one and only King): Mr. Adam, what is the process called by which a leucocyte passes through the wall of a capillary?

ADAM (Sotto Voce): "Watch me make a ten." (Then loudly and confidently): "Phagocytosis, Doctor."

Dr. Halsey: Give the symptoms of aortic regurgitation?
Folse: Sudden death is one of the most prominent, Doetor.

THE MILLENIUM

Strong blew the wind—yet quiet was the air;
Dark was the morning.—yet the day was fair,
A heavy shade, a murky mist hung like a pall,—
The sun was bright, with brilliance lighted all.
We shivered, frightened, trembling in the knees,
Thermometers stood still at 6 degrees.
All gazed, surprised; astonishment was there;
A sense impending, unaccustomed filled the air;
Even the clock did stop, as if it found
No time to wish to turn itself around.
The air was fraught with wonderment enough,
Because the Junior Class was quizzed and did not bluff,
And all was silence midst that gathering of men
For each had answered rightly, and was marked 10.

Dr. Miller: How does the bony pelvis of the female differ from that of the male?

Macheca: It is a lot prettier, Doctor.

A physician found one of his patients sitting in his bath and swallowing a dose of medicine. "What are you doing in there instead of in bed?" inquired the astonished practitioner. The patient quickly responded: "Well, you told me to take the medicine in water an hour after meals, and that's what I'm doing."

TIME: The Proper.

The Omentum rises, disclosing Queen Hernia, disguised in Peyer's Patches and a Submucous coat, scated upon a stoot. (Anterior Horns are heard).

Enter The Kink of Heum wearing the Royal Tunica.

The Queen: How camest thon here?

THE KINK: By the levator, from the ventricular fold to the pelvic floor, so please Your Majesty.

THE QUEEN: Thou liest! When Polly Urea was feeding the ducts I saw thee hiding in the crypt.

The Kink: Ach Mein Leiberkuhn. (He staggers against the Internal piller).

THE QUEEN: Aha! Thou are the Kink!

The Kink: Aye, every inch a Kink. (Seizing a spermatic cord he strangulates her, tying a Gimbernat. As he sloughs away she breaks down and ulcerates. Cardinal Symptoms rushes in and reads a Blue Mass).

 $(Omentum\ Falls).$

Prof: Young man, I saw you kissing my daughter last night.

STUDENT: Yes, and I suppose you noticed how she struggled.

Little Willie from his mirror,
Sucked the Mercury all off,
Thinking in his childish error,
It would cure his whooping cough.
At the funeral Willie's Mother
Smartly said to Mrs. Brown:
"Twas a chilly day for William
When the Mercury went down."

As J. Birney Says: "The mumps is nothing more than a specific infectious febrile disorder characterized by a non-suppurative inflammation of the parotid gland."

Instructor: Name some of the fuels used in Dentistry?

Garcia: Alcohol, gas, petroleum, etc.

Instructor: Correct, but who in the h——I cares to use alcohol for fuel these days?

TO "RED" NEELY (Premature '20)

When you've bats in your belfry that flut, When your comprenez vous rope is cut, When there's nobody home In the top of your dome

Then your head's not a head—it's a nut.

Dr. Thuringer: Dot drawing is incorrect.

RATLIFF: It is just like the text-book, Doctor.

Dr. Thuringer: Draw vot you see unter der microscope and not vot is in der book.

It isn't the cough that carries you off—it's the coffin they carry you off in.

THE DOCTOR IN THE MOVIES

Rolls his gauze out on the ground before bandaging the wound.

Makes an infallible diagnosis in two minutes.

Arrives in time to pronounce the mother of the poverty-stricken family dead.

Wears a frock coat and a Van Dyke.

Puts the ear pieces of the stethoscope in the wrong way.

Speaks of pregnancy as "her interesting condition."

Never visibly collects a fee.

Does his own dispensing.

Arrives promptly.

Always advises that the patient be sent to a better climate.

Always operates on the eye successfully.

Two microbes sat on a pantry shelf,
And watched with expressions pained.
The Milk-maid's stunts
And both said at once:
"Our relations are going to be strained."

A CLINICAL REPORT

On a recent visit to the Charity Hospital I picked up a piece of paper from the floor of the chart room. The whole thing was such a puzzle that I showed it to the chart nurse. She tried to snatch the paper in a somewhat rude manner, and when I resisted, she asked me out of the room. On the paper was written in a feminine hand:

Symptomatology: Respiration rising to 65 and then suddenly suspended. Face is flushed. There is obviously a subnormal reaction to external stimuli; a fly on the ear is unnoticed. The auditory nerve is anesthetic. There is swaying of the body and apparent failure of co-ordination, probably the effect of some disturbance of the semi-circular canals. The hand trembles and she clutches wildly. The head is inclined forward as if there was an approach of some object on a level with the shoulders. The mouth stands open and the lips are puckered and damp. Of a sudden there is a sound of deep and labored breathing, suggesting the upward curve of Cheyne-Stokes respiration. Then comes a pause of forty seconds, followed by a quick relaxation of the whole body and a sharp gasp.

Diagnosis: One of the Internes had kissed a Nurse.

The reason why so many dermatologists are bald is because it takes so long to become a dermatologist. Ask Dr. Dyer.

Dr. Williamson: Which cuts his teeth first, a baby fed on breast milk or one fed artificially?

Crutsinger: It all depends upon the toughness of the food, Doctor.

DR. DUVAL (The one and only King): What is the cause of whooping cough?

Miss Drouin: Bacillus Pertussis.

THE KING: Who first isolated this bacillus?

Miss Drouin: Pertussis himself.

In the next ten years the greatest feat Will be the death of the Spirochete.

Dr. Cohn: What is catgut?

Miss Barfield: The name signifies.

"POP" WRIGHT'S LAMENT

I wish when my whiskers were sown

To my chin soil, the seed had been blown

To my belfry's bald top where I so need a crop

To supplant what I once used to own.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Everybody told the truth.

Operations were rare.

"Bernie" Guthrie couldn't palpate.

No one swatted the fly.

No one had ever heard of light percussion.

Halsey first gave Digitalis.

"Chief" didn't "incise freely."

"Cancer" Clarke was an Interne.

Seniors didn't read the "Life of Marion Sims."

"Daddy" Metz was "Giving 'em Hell."

Lucien Landry was throwing spit balls in the amphitheater.

"Jeff" Miller was answering three A. M. calls.

Some people paid the Doctor.

"Pedro" didn't ride in a Cadillac.

"King" Duval was running Wassermans.

Prohibition was talked of in a whisper.

C. Cassidy Bass knew nothing of Malaria.

"Buddie" Hardesty liked Freshmen.

The Senior Class was wearing dresses.

Speaking of the determination of sex—it was all settled by an old proverb—"Boys will be boys."

OUTDOOR PATIENT TO THADDEUS ALVINO: Doctor, you told me to take one pill three times a day. I took it once but couldn't get it up again.

Cox: May I call tomorrow night?

MISS NEWCOMBITE: Yes, but they switch off the lights at ten.

Cox: Fine, I'll be there prompty at ten.

Dr. Thuringer: Of what artery is the Femoral a branch?

Southon: I think it is a branch of Poupart's Ligament, Doctor.

Gore: How did Isaacson get that scratch on his face?

Johnson: He was looking in the cage behind the Medical Building and one of the monkeys recognized him as his long lost brother.

Seeing a strange Doctor sign a history, "Dr. Clarke and Staff," Miss Barfield asked: "Who is that Doctor?"

Miss Drouin: Why it must be Dr. Staff, because I am sure it is not Dr. Clarke.

J. M. FRERE IN SOCIETY

A dignified Senior; a formal affair; Good intentions but nothing to wear. Neither a dress suit; neither a tux; None of the buttons; never such luck.

Where were the pumps; where was the vest, The much puzzled Senior was thinking his best, How could be get a dress suit trim, With a high stiff collar to pester his chin?

He thought of a business suit; never would do. He thought of a purchase, but not enough glue. He thought of his friends: that was the thing. He had a bright idea; his head was a-spin.

From E. H. Jones the dress suit came. The hard-boiled shirt from his old friend Wayne. He borrowed the studs from Olin Moss, And Lloyd lent him sox, regretting the loss.

He bunned a tie from good Pop Wright. He would look his best on that fateful night. The gloves he could not burn or buy, But he took Stafford's pumps that lay close by.

All things collected, by a P. G. dressed, Surely this Senior was looking his best. With his bright shiny feet and his neatly combed hair, He would break the fair hearts of all ladies there.

He at last wandered out feeling very much dressed, His shirt very white and his suit neatly pressed, Could the ladies resist him; could he make a hit; Not a doubt in his mind—the clothes settled it.
