Some Facts About North Carolina

BY ROBERT W. MADRY,U. N. C. Publicist.

Today's game matches teams representing the first state university in America to open its doors to students and the oldest privately endowed university in the Deep South.

The University of North Carolina is a member of that exclusive organization known as the Association of American Universities, made up of some colleges and universities that are usually regarded as the foremost in America.

You are doubtless well acquainted with the history of Tulane. So I'll try to tell you a few things about North Carolina. It was chartered 150 years ago, and a celebration in commemoration of the event is to be held at Fayetteville, N. C., next month. During the next several years appropriate celebrations also are to be held in observance of the 150 th anniversary of the cornerstone laying (1793) and the formal opening for the admission of students (1795).

In the early years of the University the rest of the South had few institutions of higher learning, and this condition brought to Chapel Hill a large number of students from other states. At the time the Civil War broke out more than half of the students enrolled at Carolina were from other states.

The story of the University in those early years, and for a long time thereafter, is a record of incessant struggle, not for a luxurious or even comfortable existence, but for the barest necessities.

Although many of its students left the campus to fight in the Army of the Confederacy, the University managed to continue to function during the Civil War. But the days of Reconstruction dealt it a severe blow from which it was not to recover until five years later, in 1875, when it was reopened.

The greatest development in the life of the University has come in the last 25 years, but the stimulus for this growth came in the nineties. At the turn of the century the institution was recognized as a leader among educational institutions of the South. It was overflowing with students taught by an able and enthusiastic faculty.

Beginning with the post-war period in 1920, the enrollment has grown rapidly until today there are more than 3800 resident students, an increase of some 300 over last fall. The Summer School enrollment this year was approximately 2500 . And there are several thousand students enrolled for correspondence courses and extension classes.

The University is now in the midst of a three million dollar building program which is adding several new dormitories for both men and women students, a new home for the Medical School and Division of Public Health; a new gymnasium named for the late Controller, Charles T. Woollen; a new dining hall, and an extension to the Carolina Inn. In addition a number of the older buildings are being renovated. This longneeded expansion was made possible largely through PWA grants and self-liquidating bonds.

Today the University at Chapel Hill, which is presided over by Dr. Robert Burton House, Administrative Dean, is made up of the College of Arts and Sciences, the Division of Humanities, Natural Sciences, and Social Sciences; and the School of Commerce, the Graduate School, the School of Law, the School of Medicine, the School of Pharmacy, the School of Library Science, the Extension Division, and the Summer School.

In 1931 the State Legislature consolidated the University at Chapel Hill, the State College of Agriculture and Engineering at Raleigh, and the Woman's College in Greensboro.

It has been President Frank P. Graham's task-one of the most difficult jobs that ever faced any college president-to translate into actuality the terms of this consolidation. That he has been able to make so much progress in this program at such a minimum of friction has been the marvel of educators everywhere.

Leadership always carries with it the obligation to be more, to do more and give more.

As applied to The Roosevelt, New Orleans, leadership means a completely equipped hotel where the traveler finds refinements and luxuries that add so much to the comfort and pleasure of his stay. It means better accommodations and service, and finer food for the dollars you spend. 800 rooms with bath. Moderate rates.

Life size pictures of eleven great Tulane athletes of the past have been placed in the vestibule of the gymnasium, forming an athletic hall of fame. Those honored are shown in the pictures above and below. Top, left to right, Charles P. Flournoy, football; Vincent D'Antoni, golf; Alfred W. Brown, football; Donald G. Zimmerman, football; Gerald Dalrymple, football; Willis Banker, football. Below, Claude Simons, Jr, football; Clifford Sutter, tennis; Doyless Hill, boxing; Ernest Sutter, tennis; and Fred Lamprecht, golf. D'Antoni, the Sutter brothers, Hill and Lamprecht are all former national intercollegiate champions, while the football men listed all were all-Americans on some selection. Pictures of other great athletes of the past are to be placed in the coridors of the gymnasium.

HOMECOMING

Plans are now nearing completion for a gathering of 1500 alumni and former students of the University at the second annual Homecoming supper scheduled for October 27, at 7 p . m., in the Tulane Gymnasium. In 1938 more than 1400 alumni gathered for the first supper, at which President Rufus C. Harris made his initial New Orleans alumni address.

MAKE RESERVATIONS NOW

Due to the very large attendance, some alumni were unable to obtain seats at the 1938 Homecoming supper in the Tulane Gymnasium. Alumni are urged to make reservations now for the 1939 supper by calling their respective class agents or the alumni office in Gibson Hall, WA. 4242. The supper, at which President Rufus C. Harris will be the principal speaker, will be held at 7 p. m., on Friday, October 27, in the Gymnasium.

The supper will be the high light of the Homecoming celebration, which will open on October 23 with the annual medical clinics and lectures sponsored by the Department of Graduate Studies of the School of Medicine under the direction of Dr. W. H. Kostmayer.

A Homecoming queen and court will be named to preside over the festivities, which will include the supper, open-house at all fraternities, student bonfires and parades, the student dance in the Gymnasium on the night of October 28, and the ceremonies at the half during the Ole Miss-Tulane Homecoming game.

The annual meeting of the Alumni Association will be held at the Roosevelt Hotel at $4: 30 \mathrm{p} . \mathrm{m}$. on October 27. New officers will be elected at this time. As usual, all fraternity houses will be decorated, the best to receive an Alumni Association prize.

The feature of the entire program will be the Homecoming supper. The gathering will be welcomed by Esmond Phelps, president of the Board of Administrators. The only address will be delivered by President Harris, who will report on the progress of the University during the past year.

As was done in 1938, the supper is under the direction of class agents, one from each class of each college of the University. Hale Boggs, general manager of the Alumni Association, is chairman of all class agents. College chairmen include

William West, Jr., Arts and Sciences; Clifford Favrot, Engineering; Joseph McCloskey, Jr., Law; Dr. Ambrose Storck, Medicine; Mrs. E. H. Fremaux, Newcomb Alumnae Association, and Marvin S. Mingledorff, Jr., Commerce Alumni Club.

The general Homecoming committee is headed by Dr. John Menville, chairman, and Harry S. Kaufman, Jr., E. C. Upton, Jr., and Richard O. Baumbach.
