COACHING LONGEVITY

We have always known, of course, that the "mortality" rate of football coaches, meaning the average life as head coach, was short but hadn't dreamed that it was shorter than that of a President of the United States.

Now comes a story from Washington, D. C., which reveals that the average "life" of football coaches at major colleges during the past decade has been less than four years.

The story reveals that for one reason or another coaches seldom serve for more than a few seasons at any one school. The quest for victory is given as the chief cause for replacement.

A national survey of the principal intercollegiate front shows there are only 13 men now holding the jobs they handled ten years ago.

There are a few others, of course, at small colleges but not among the nine major conferences of the United States.

The lucky 13 numbers Bob Zuppe of Illinois, Harry Hughes of Colorado State, Ike Armstrong of Utah, E. L. Romney of Utah State, Bill Alexander of Georgia Tech, Morley Jennings of Baylor, Bill Raftery of V. M. I., Howard Jones of Southern Cal, Orin Hollingsbery of Washington State, Bill Spaulding of U. C. L. A., Tuss McLaughry of Brown, Gil Dobie of Cornell and Jock Sutherland of Pitt.

It seems far from likely that any of the above 13 will threaten the 40-year mark set by Alonzo Stagg of the Chicago midway. The oldest in point of service now is Hughes of Colorado State, who is starting his 25th campaign at the same institution.

Ray Morrison served ten years at S. M. U., but this season replaced Dan McGugin at Vanderbilt. Mr. McGugin had served for 31 years at Vandy and resigned to take over the duties of the directing of athletics.

It is not amiss to point out here that Tulane coaches have not set any record in years but it is equally wholesome to recall that the Green Wave has had only three coaches in the past twenty years save for the one year that Myron Fuller replaced Clark Shaughnessy, who had resigned to enter the business field.

Mr. Shaughnessy served from 1915 through 1926, when he was succeeded by his chief assistant, Bernie Bierman. Mr. Bierman served continuously through 1931 and was succeeded by his chief assistant, Ted Cox. More encouraging is the fact that Mr. Shaughnessy and Mr. Bierman left carrying the regrets of Tulane and the best wishes of the Green Wave followers.

It should be that way as a rule and not as an exception everywhere. Coaches who have proved themselves capable should not be expected to win all the time. The element of sport would be gone if that were the case, since there can be no contest when the conclusion is foregone.

The late Frank L. Stanton summed up what we want to say in his stanza:

"This old world we're living in
Is mighty hard to beat;
There's a thorn with every rose
But ain't the roses sweet?"

We can't fully appreciate victory without suffering defeat.

SIWASH'S CASE

There has been a world of laughs concerning the "sons of old Siwash," which means the football team of Knox College of Illinois. Yet, there have been many heart-aches for the kids who played through those four years of football without even a single victory.

Yet, every one of those fellows are better for having stuck to their guns. Each Monday afternoon they were on the field training just as hard as the national championship contenders—maybe a bit harder—for next Saturday's game.

It would have been the easier road for Siwash to have given up the "ghost" and abandoned intercollegiate football as some might have done. Knox College wasn't made of that kind of stuff though. Football was still just a game at Knox and a game that builds character.

The gods finally smiled upon Old Siwash just as they always do upon the brave. Few have had the opportunity for the test of strength that Knox College had—and after all it's the biggest test of all.

We know that the victory of last Saturday by Siwash over Principia must have even pleased the warriors of Valhalla, not to mention those of Knox. Siwash's gallantry in carrying on had won the admiration of true sportsmen everywhere.

Heading the list of Auburn greats is a name that smacks of the old order of cave man football, when men were men. You cannot picture in your mind a player called Boozer Pitts saving himself for the Junior Prom. No drug store cowboy here! And Pitts at center was just as swashbuckling as his name implied.

Auburn's rise to football fame dates from the Pitts era. Just cast your eye down the honor list and you will find seven stars who figured on the undefeated and untied team of 1913. Boozer Pitts was a mathematical genius on the gridiron or in the class room. Twice was he called back as head coach in an effort to solve the Plainsmen's football problem. You guessed it—he is a mathematics professor there now!

To Moon Ducote, present coach at Loyola, New Orleans, goes the title of best all-around back in the Orange and Blue's history. He tore opposing lines apart, though not favored by brilliant support.

Under Chet Wynne in 1932 Auburn reached the top of the Southern heap. That was the year trigger-minded Jimmy Hitchcock, All-American half-back, while carrying the ball on an end run would point out to his mates what foes he wished "taken out." You can find him these days on the baseball diamond of the Newark Bears.

"Boots" Chambless had no peer in whipping out of his guard position to block for the backs. "Big" Thigpen, "Tubby" Lockwood and "Fats" Lawrence were man-mountains. Appropriately enough the latter now works for the Hercules Powder Company.

Bonner's aggressiveness and Grisham's gigantic size which made him a hard man to "block out" give them the edge for tackles, but Fred McCollum with his play-diagnosing smartness is close up.

How Gump Ariail could cover punts! He pulled in passes with the easy grace of a Tris Speaker. Now a captain in the U. S. Army, Robbie Robinson was a wizard at boxing the tackles. Fenton, a fierce tackler, and Grant, brainy as they come, complete the ends.

Weighing but 145, that "jack-in-the-box" quarterback Kirk Newell was as elusive as an eel and as shifty as a toe dancer. Shirey and Shirling were ball-carriers hard to upset. Lew Hardage, well known as a coach, was the fiery type possessed of a wealth of football lore.

Paul Bidez was as tough as the steel he now experiments with in the State Chemistry Laboratory at Auburn. Let's conclude with Willis Phipps, the climax runner. Long scoring dashes were his forte.

Throw out the life line! Here comes the all-time Green Tidal Wave sweeping everything before it. Old Tulane was founded in 1834 at pleasant New Orleans, home of crab gumbo, oysters a la Rockefeller, tasty pralines and heady Sazerac cocktails. From this languorous wisteria-scented environment have sprung some of the greatest football teams and players the deep South has known.

Even since 1893 football has been on a solid basis at Tulane but it wasn't until the last decade that the Green Wave joined Alabama's Crimson Tide as the two dominating forces on Southern gridirons. In 1925, '29, '30, '31 and '34 Tulane was either the champion or co-holder of the Dixie title.

Charles Peggie Flournoy, unrivalled as a punter, was the wheel horse of the unbeaten 1925 team which crushed Northwestern 18 to 7. He could do everything expected of a great back and got able cooperation from Lester Lautenschlaeger, who ran the eleven with flawless judgment and rifled passes to his colleague. They formed a great tandem.

Don Zimmerman and Willis Banker were Tulane's two most spectacular ball-carriers. They called Banker the blond blizzard. In three years of football he never wore a head guard, never called for time and played 60 minutes of every game. He did all the kicking, most of the passing and blocked like a demon for little Ike Armstrong, a pony-gaited back. Banker's uninterrupted 80-yard march to a touchdown in the closing minutes of the 1929 Georgia game ranks with the South's greatest individual exploits. He gained from 3 to 5 yards on every rush in that sequence.

Don Zimmerman weighed 10 pounds more than Banker, was a shade faster and even more elusive.

His dramatic passes to Vernon Haynes repeatedly brought victory to the Olive and Blue. No other receiver but Haynes could have made some of those miraculous completions. He had fish hooks for fingers. Zimmerman was the Lone Eagle of the 1932 team, single-handed scoring the touchdowns that beat Georgia, Georgia Tech, and Kentucky. In the 1930 Georgia game he ran through the whole Cracker team for a touchdown after he had looked vainly for a receiver to pass to and fainted dead away as he crossed the goal.

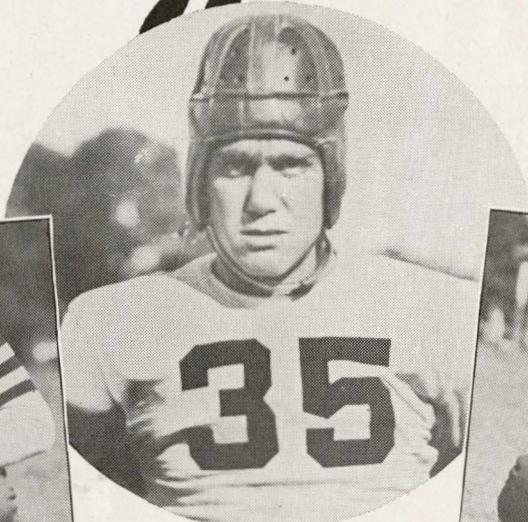

Bernie Bierman rated Brother Brown of the 1924 eleven as the most useful team-worker he ever coached. Nollie Felts, a tremendous line-breaker, and Lyle Richeson, a crafty quarterback who later transferred to Yale and piloted the 1923 unbeaten Elis, made memorable records at Tulane.

Gerald Dalrymple, though not Haynes' equal as a pass-snatcher, was the Green's smartest end. An unorthodox radical, Dalrymple broke all the copy book rules but got away with his audacious moves. He often crossed over to anticipate a play around the opposite end and usually guessed right. His decisions were clairvoyant. In the 1931 Georgia game Dalrymple detected Catfish Smith hiding out wide on a sleeper play and deliberately leaped off side to spoil the center's snap and thus nullify a possible Georgia touchdown.

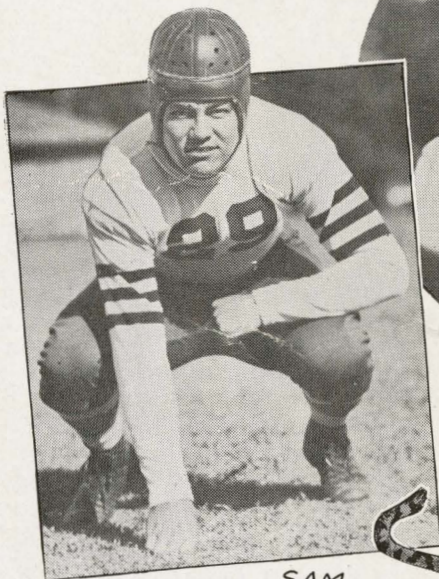

Jack Holland ranks next to Haynes as a pass receiver and played a rip-smashing type of end. Preacher Roberts was Tulane's finest center and Milton Levy was its most effective blocking guard. Morris Bodenger has made good with the Detroit Lions. Charlie Rucker and Elmer McCance, a mighty pair of tackles, were vital factors on Tulane's invincible 1929 team.

TIME OUT

Mrs. Mack: "I'm bothered with a little wart that I'd like to have removed."

Dr. Williams: "The divorce lawyer is at the second door to your left."

Doctor: "Pat, you did a very bad job on my walk—it's all covered with dirt and gravel."

Pat: "Yes, doctor, and a lot of your jobs are covered with dirt and gravel, too."

Farmer: "What do you do, my good man?"

Announcer: "I call trains."

Farmer: "Well, call me one; I'm in a hurry."

Hubby: "The bank has returned that check."

Wife: "Isn't that splendid! What can we buy with it this time?"

Book Agent: "You ought to buy an encyclopedia, now your boy is going to school."

Farmer: "Not on your life! Let him walk, the same as I did."

"Men may come and men may go, but mistakes go on forever."

Such were the thoughts of one of the city librarians yesterday when a timid-looking girl of perhaps nineteen years accosted her, asking if she had a book entitled "Oranges and Peaches."

A most diligent search proved that no such book was in the possession of the library.

"Are you sure that 'Oranges and Peaches' is the title of the book?" asked the librarian.

"Yes, I believe that's what the professor said to get," was the answer.

"Who is the author?"

"Darwin."

Imagine the surprise of the librarian when it "dawned on her" that the book desired was Darwin's "Origin of the Species."

Wife: "That woman next door is something awful, Harry. She does nothing but talk the whole day long. She simply can't do any work, I know."

Hubby: "To whom does she talk?"

Wife: "Why, to me, dear, over the fence."

SAGA OF SATURDAY

That gorgeous girl I had today
You want to know her name;
You'd like a date next Saturday
To have her at your game.
First listen to my tale of woe
Don't say I didn't let you know.

The game began and so did she
As both teams toed the line,
She stood up so I couldn't see
Those baby eyes ashine,
"Look, Bill, this dress I have is new
I bought it, honey, just for you."

We were behind. I saw her frown.
I thought her spirit grand
Until I learned what had her down
Was not the score at hand.
Two other girls in nearby rows
Were wearing her same football clothes.

And when at last the team came through
And won that blasted game,
Through cheers and din and snake dance too
Her girlish treble came:
"Another game next week—I swear
I haven't got a thing to wear."

An amiable old man, a visitor in the home, was trying to win the friendship of the small daughter of the house.

"I'll give you a nickel for a kiss," he said.

"No, thank you," she replied sweetly. "I can make more money taking castor oil."

Teacher: "Quote a Scripture verse."

The Kid: "Judas went out into the garden and hanged himself."

Teacher: "That's fine! Quote another!"

The Kid: "Go ye and do likewise!"

"So you are building a new house, eh? How are you getting along with it?"

"Fine. I've got the roof and the mortgage on hand and I expect to have the furnace and the sheriff in before fall."

Senior: "How do you like my room as a whole?"

Freshman: "As a hole it's fine, as a room—not so good."

"I sold kisses at the last bazaar, but then one must do these things for charity!"

"I suppose that's what the customers thought, dear!"

The teacher was testing the knowledge of the kindergarten class.

Slapping a half dollar on the desk, she said sharply, "What is that?"

Small voice from the back row, "Tails!"

He: "Who spilled the mustard on the waffle, dear?"

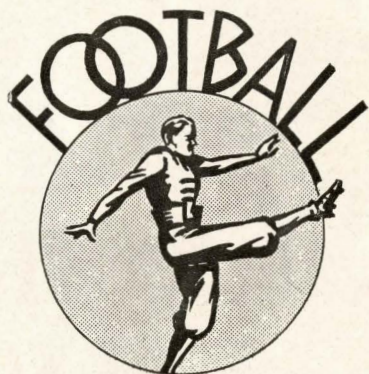

She: "Oh, John, how could you? This is lemon pie."

Last Week's Predictions:

Picked	Winners	Losers	Ties	Pct.
12	11	1	0	.955

This week's games promise to be great levelers of prognosticating batting averages but without flinching your correspondent is willing to prove that he can take it.

Here's the toughest "twelve" in the country:

ALABAMA - GEORGE WASHINGTON—The Crimson Tide undoubtedly will be out for revenge following their experience of last Saturday. Nevertheless, their draw with Howard may have given the Hatchetmen of George Washington just the confidence needed. Our heart is with the Tide but our hunch is George Washington. We're superstitious enough to back a hunch.

KENTUCKY-OHIO STATE—Schmidt's Buckeyes are expected to be one of the nation's greatest teams of 1935. Yet, they are in for a surprise if they are under-rating old Kaintuck. Chet Wynne has perhaps the greatest team in Bluegrass history this year and will give Ohio State a royal battle. But, we don't think he can muster quite enough to win.

L. S. U.-TEXAS—Here's another that is calculated to drive the handicappers dizzy. Conceivably, the Longhorns may take the Tigers since they will be riding high with a perfect mental attitude after winning last week and coming up to meet a team that offers opportunity for much glory if they can be taken. The Tigers, however, will go into the game with determination to atone for last week. We believe they will.

TENNESSEE - NORTH CAROLINA—Here's a guaranteed even-Stephen affair and may the chips fall where they will.

The Vols looked anything but impressive last Saturday but the Tarheels seemed to be holding something in reserve too. One guess is as good as another and the dope, so far as material goes, veterans returned, etcetera, looks even. So our guess is Tennessee.

NEBRASKA-IOWA STATE—The Cornhuskers won, 7 to 6, last year, and will do it more convincingly this time.

MICHIGAN - MICHIGAN STATE—Charlie Bachman's Spartans to make it two in a row over the Wolverines.

U. C. L. A.-OREGON STATE—The Los Angeles Bruins. Bill Spaulding should have a great team this fall.

PRINCETON-PENN—Old Nassau to start another victory march.

ST. MARY'S-CALIFORNIA—Here's the big game of the day on West Slopes. The Gaels won, 7 to 0, last fall, but we'll take the Bears by a tooth. This game is a guaranteed toss-up.

TEMPLE-TEXAS A. & M.—It'll be closer than a year ago but the Owls and Smukler get the call.

NOTRE DAME - CARNEGIE TECH—The Irish can't be denied.

RICE - DUQUESNE—Jimmy Kitts' Owls may have a slight let-down following the big game last Saturday against L. S. U., but unless they are miserably off, they should take the second in a row.

That's that for this week. Take 'em away, Oscar.

TULANE ALMA MATER
(Sing as the Band Plays)

I

We praise thee for thy past, O Alma Mater!
Thy hand hath done its work full faithfully!
The incense of thy spirit hath ascended
And filled America from sea to sea!

II

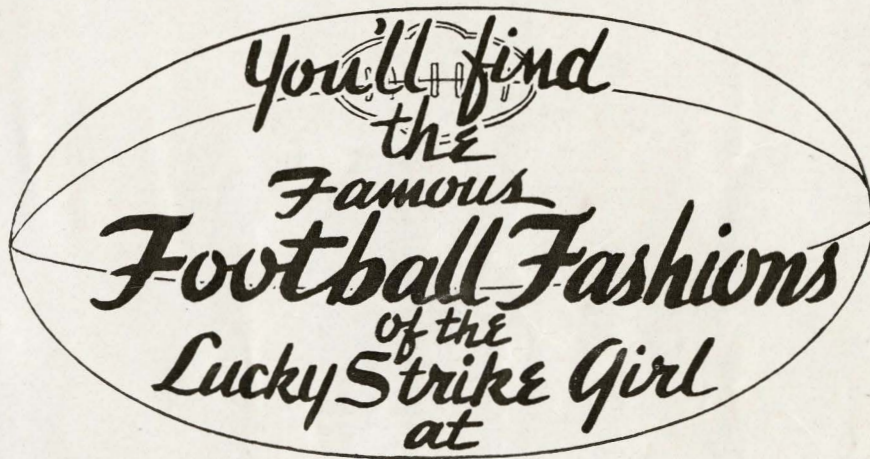

We praise thee for thy present, Alma Mater!
Today thy Children look to thee for bread!
Thou leadest them to dreams and actions splendid!
The hunger of their soul is richly fed!

III

We praise thee for thy future, Alma Mater!
The vista of its glory gleameth far!
We ever shall be part of thee, great Mother!
There thou wilt be where e'er thy children are!

CHORUS

Olive, Green and Blue, we love thee!
Pledge we now our fealty true
Where the trees are ever greenest,
Where the skies are purest blue!
Hear us now, O Tulane, hear us!
As we proudly sing to thee!
Take from us our hearts' devotion!
Thine we are, and thine shall be!

Newcomb on Parade

This chic outfit is called the "Three R's", because it's slated for so much classroom work. Brown and tan diagonal plaid angora skirt. Solid brown angora box coat. Turtle neck sweater with short sleeves in tan. Miss Amy Smith for a practical simplicity of wardrobe that she knows will be smart and correct.

SHORTSHOTS:

Dave Smukler, the great Temple fullback, didn't score a touchdown in the Centre game but he did lateral to Renzo for the first one.

Southern California's record in the Rose Bowl is the best of any of the West Coast teams. The Trojans have played four times on New Year's Day at Pasadena and won each time.

Alabama's record at Pasadena is by far the best of the teams from East of the Rockies. The Crimson Tide has won three games there and tied one out of four.

Cornell lost the opening football game for the first time in history when it took a 12 to 6 shellacking from St. Lawrence.

The Minnesota-Nebraska game of next Saturday will be the headline attraction of the day in American football. Dana Bible's Cornhuskers appear to have the greatest team in history and Bernie Bierman has another fine team at Minneapolis.

Howard Jones rates Ted Coy, all-time all-American fullback of Yale, as the greatest player he ever coached.

George (Quo) Vadas, Colgate quarterback, will be out of the line-up for three weeks due to a fractured shoulder suffered recently.

Fifteen sports writers from all sections of the South and East have already applied for press box accommodations at the Tulane-Colgate football game.

More than 10,000 season tickets have been sold to Nebraska football games this year.

Here's bad news for radio announcers of the Big Ten. Leon Pajakowski and Leonard Nowinski, budding footballers, have entered Wisconsin.

Jimmy Phelan has a halfback candidate at Washington by the name of Howard Jones.

Guy Cheng, Chinese Davis Cup singles and doubles star, is a freshman at Tulane University. So is Joe Abrams, New York City prep champ of two years ago. And Billy Westerfield, of New Orleans, who holds the city men's singles crown and the Wisconsin men's singles title, is another.

Paul Pare, brother of the Wave tennis coach, and an all-American Catholic tournament forward in basketball, is another promising frosh athlete at Tulane.

Billy Irby, of Eufaula, Ala., heavyweight runner-up in the national amateur boxing tournament last year, is a freshman in the Green Wave ranks. It looks as if the Greenie mitt team will have another great heavyweight soon to take his place alongside Jack Pizzano and Doyless Hill, former champions. Hill was a member of the last American Olympic team.

Jimmy Jones, popular assistant to Colonel Ralph McGill, sports editor of the Atlanta Constitution (and former collegiate wrestling star), has been named as sports editor of the Richmond, Va., Times-Dispatch.
