TODAY'S FOOTBALL ROUND-UP

ALABAMA-GEORGIA TECH

Alabama to get a thorough battle royal. It won't be a big upset, looking from here, if the Techs beat 'em. The Crimson lacks a lot of being a super team and probably will catch the Engineers finally ready again, the first time since the Duke game. Yet, on form, the Crimson gets the call in a close one.

AUBURN-L. S. U.

The Tigers to romp against the Plainsmen. Auburn hasn't displayed any signs of shaking off a slump that started three weeks ago.

CALIFORNIA-OREGON

The Bears will be suffering from post-mortems this week and are in a beautiful spot to be wounded again. But on a reverse, California by a point or a touchdown.

U. C. L. A.-WISCONSIN

Wisconsin if they're not enjoying the West Coast trip too much.

CARNEGIE TECH-DUQUESNE
The Plaids.

DARTMOUTH-CORNELL

The Big Green invades the home of the Big Red. "Pick your colors." Green also being a Tulane color, and Dartmouth being unbeaten and untied, we'll take the Hanover Hillmen.

DUKE-SYRACUSE

The Blue Devils with or without Sidat-Singh in the Syracuse lineup.

FORDHAM-NORTH CAROLINA

The Rams in a close one.

MINNESOTA-NOTRE DAME

Bernie Bierman is overdue in this one. On a hunch, the Gophers in an upset.

MICHIGAN-NORTHWESTERN

A flip of the coin. Michigan.

SOUTHERN CAL-WASHINGTON

The Trojans.

TEXAS A. & M.-RICE

One big hoot for the Owls.

YALE-PRINCETON

Today thy Children look to thee for bread!
Thou leadest them to dreams and actions

III.

We praise thee for thy future, Alma Mater!
The vista of its glory gleameth far!
We ever shall be part of thee, great Mother!
There thou wilt be where e'er thy children

History of Wave-Bulldog Rivalry

Georgia's Bulldogs and the Green Wave of Tulane have met on the gridiron twelve times prior to this afternoon. The Bulldogs lead in the series with six victories compared with five Wave triumphs while one game ended in a tie.

Georgia has won the past three games while the longest winning streak was that of Tulane, extending from 1929 through 1932.

The most important triumphs were the Tulane victories of 1929, 1930, 1931 and 1934 since conference championships were in the balance in each instance.

Brief glimpses of those epochal games:

1929—Tulane and Georgia met in mid-season, both unbeaten and untied. Georgia had just defeated Yale and N. Y. U. in big Eastern upsets. Bill Banker, all-American Tulane left halfback, put on an 80-yard march for the winning touchdown that stands until this day as one of the greatest pieces of football power ever seen in Dixie. "Catfish" Smith of Georgia and Jerry Dalrymple of Tulane, later to become all-American ends, were sophomore players in that game. The scene was Columbus, Ga., and Tulane the winner, 21 to 15. Tulane went on to the conference title.

1930—Sophomore Don Zimmerman broke into the picture with a brilliant run for the first touchdown. "Wop" Glover's quick kicks all but demoralized a previously unbeaten Georgia team. The game was played in mid-November. Tulane won, 25 to 0, and went on to a co-championship with Alabama.

1931—Again the championship stage was set. Mid-November. Both unbeaten, untied. The greatest Southern crowd in history up to that date saw two brilliant teams meet at Athens. Tulane won 20 to 7, and went on to a championship and the Rose Bowl.

1934—The teams met in early October. Tulane won, 7 to 6, thanks to Little Monk Simons' great touchdown run. The Wave went on to a co-championship with Alabama and the inaugural Sugar Bowl.

The complete record of the series:

1919—Tulane 7, Georgia 7
1927—Tulane 0, Georgia 31
1928—Tulane 14, Georgia 20
1929—Tulane 21, Georgia 15
1930—Tulane 25, Georgia 0
1931—Tulane 20, Georgia 7
1932—Tulane 34, Georgia 25
1933—Tulane 13, Georgia 26
1934—Tulane 7, Georgia 6
1935—Tulane 13, Georgia 26
1936—Tulane 6, Georgia 12
1937—Tulane 6, Georgia 7

Jock Sutherland is so angry over reports he will leave Pitt after this year that he has threatened legal action to stop the rumors . . . Brian Bell, nationally known AP football authority (who used to be head of the New Orleans office and now is stationed on the West Coast), says Johnny Ryland of U. C. L. A. turned in the greatest single game of center play against Stanford he ever saw.

Ed Danforth of the Atlanta Georgian prints a story of the only case in history where a 5-2-2-1 defense was successfully used. It was told by Bob Neyland, the Vol coach:

Georgia was a big favorite to beat us that year (1925), but we had them 12 to 7 as the fourth quarter started, a precarious lead at best. It was getting dark, due to a delay in starting, and Georgia began marching down the field, bound, it seemed, for a touchdown.

"We sent three subs into the game, one of whom was to replace the guard who played opposite a boy named Burdette. Several minutes after the substitutions were made I walked along the bench to ask a question of one of the boys who had come out. To my surprise I saw Burdette sitting there with the other linemen enjoying the game. I asked him what he was doing out of the game. He said someone had come in to replace him. I became alarmed, because the guard who had been playing opposite Burdette also was on the bench, as he should have been. I chased back to the other end of the bench and asked the line coach whom he had sent in to replace Burdette. He had sent in no one.

"Then I asked Banks, and he had made no substitution for Burdette. We then ran in a body to the line group to find a sub for Burdette and noted that Burdette himself was missing!

"Looking into the field, we saw him back at his position.

"Burdette had taken himself out when the sub came for the other guard, had stayed on the bench several minutes and had slipped back into the game without an official or members of our own team or of the Georgia team realizing he had left.

"The game ended in genuine darkness, with our boys tackling every Georgia player on every play, and we managed to hold our lead, 12 to 7."

And that is the case of a successful use of a 5-2-2-1 defense. . . .

Purdue hadn't scored on Ohio State in 17 years until last Saturday when the Boilermakers pinned the Bucks' ears back, 12 to 0. . . . The S.M.U. band made such a hit at the game with Pittsburgh that its swing band was hired for the Panther spring dances. . . . Morgan Blake saw Vandy beat Tech and saw Tech give Notre Dame fits and believes the Commodores could take the Irish. . . . Incidentally, Notre Dame received $150,000 for its share of the Army game receipts. . . .

They dubbed Coach Allison of California 'der fearer' before the Southern Cal game but it seems all those tales of horror Mr. Allison was spreading weren't Orson Welles' dramatics.

NEW RULES

Two New Rule Changes for 1938

Ball Brought In 15 Yards From Sidelines

Because scoreboards all over the country were plastered with goose eggs last year, football's rule-makers decided to inject some scoring serum into the national pastime.

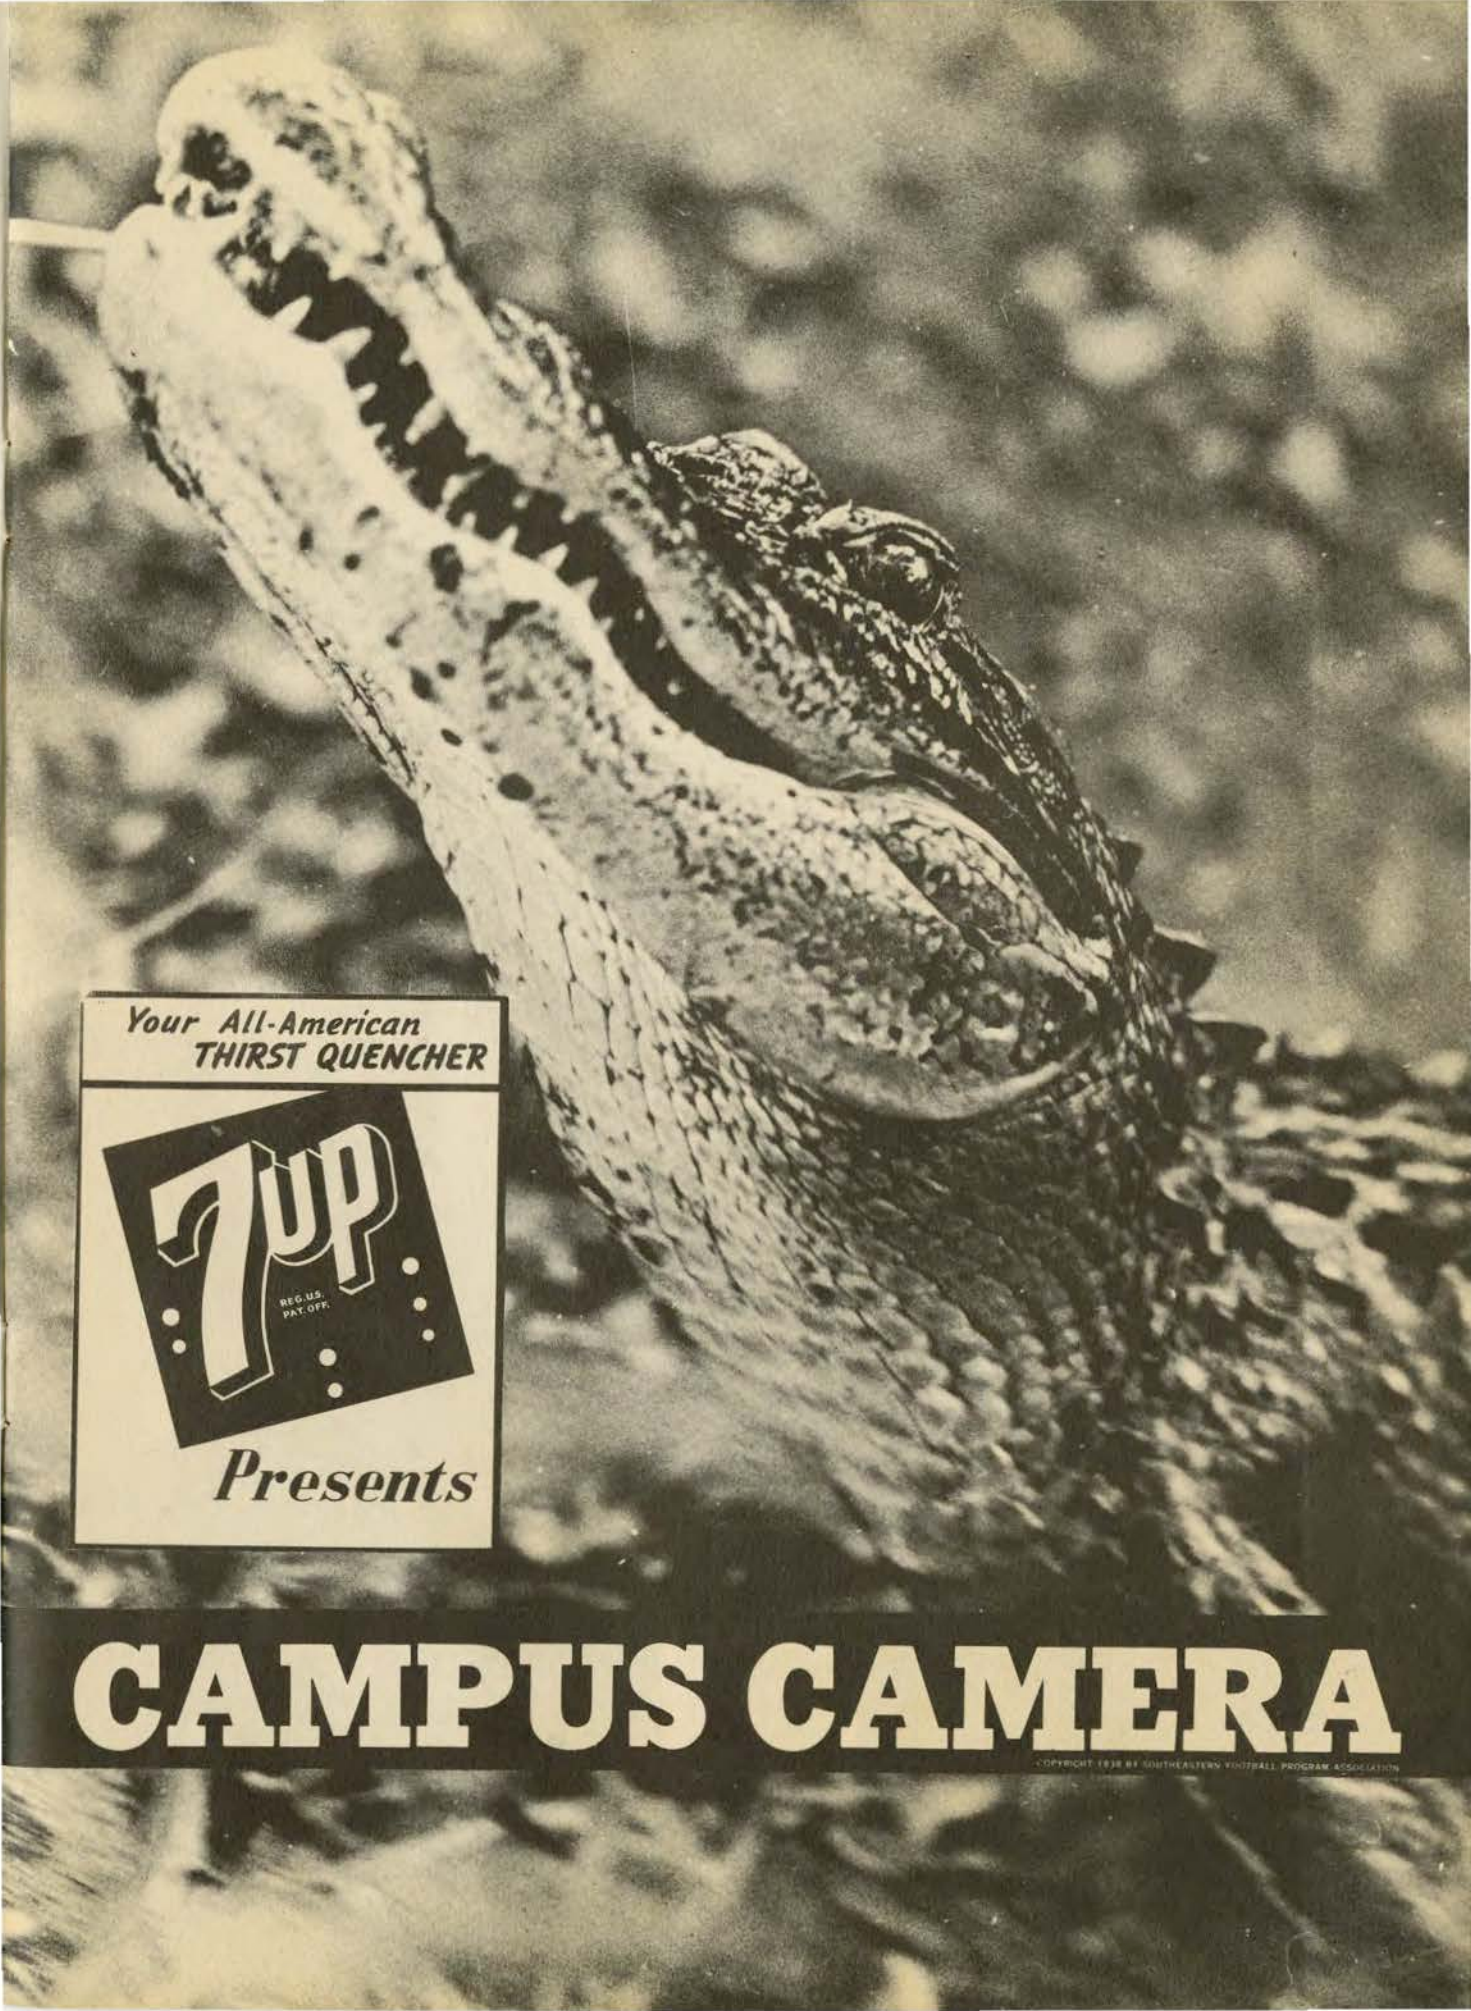

Two new changes in the regulations that govern the sport will help do this, they believe.

First of the 1938 rules brings into play a ball going out of bounds, fifteen yards from the sidelines, instead of ten as formerly. This means more deception may be employed by the team with the ball, since this rule change gives a bigger field and consequently a wider sweep to all plays.

The second revision permits passing on every down but the fourth, without a touchback. A team down near the goal line, for example, may now make three consecutive incomplete passes into the end zone, barring of course on fourth down, without losing the ball. This will allow the quarterback to use his full repertoire of plays at all times.

Before the rules committee met last January for their 33rd annual meeting, several other rule changes were suggested by the nation's leading coaches. Some of these changes, which probably will be acted upon by the rule-making body next year, follow:

1. Move the goal posts up to the goal line giving field goal kickers a better break.
2. Legislate on a standard formation for defense, such as six or seven men on the line of scrimmage.
3. Allow passing anywhere behind the line of scrimmage.
4. Remove the rule which cancels an entire gain because of an illegal lateral after a passing or running gain.

THE UNIVERSITY OF GEORGIA

Five months after the United States became an Independent country, the Georgia legislature, on February 25, 1874, passed an act setting aside 40,000 acres of land to endow a college or seminary of learning. Next year a charter was drawn creating the first state university in America.

Thus began the University of Georgia and since 1785 when most of the area now in Georgia was still in possession of the Indians, the University has continually grown in size and prestige to its present position as the cultural center of the state. While its roots are thus deep in tradition, the university has kept pace with the years by its liberal acceptance of newer trends in education.

The idea of state-supported institution of higher learning appears to have originated in Georgia. This concept, revolutionary at that time, is explained by the presence in the state of two New Englanders, Lyman Hall and Abraham Baldwin. The former was born in Connecticut in 1724 and was graduated from Yale University. He emigrated to Georgia and became governor in 1783. Just when Baldwin came to the state is not known but his presence is recorded in 1784. Also a Connecticut-born Yale graduate he came to Georgia in his thirtieth year, apparently to be president of the college, the establishment of which was being contemplated.

Governor Hall and Abraham Baldwin were appointed to the first board of trustees and Baldwin himself wrote the University's charter.

At the first meeting of the board of trustees Baldwin was elected to the presidency of the university but 15 years elapsed before the trustees finally chose a site for the new college. Tradition says they disapproved community life for the prospective students so they decided to build the institution in a lone section of the state on the bank of the Oconee river, 100 miles north of Augusta, the nearest town of importance. Here the city of Athens has grown up with the university to a place of prominence in the state.

Baldwin became a United States senator and was the state's delegate at the signing of the Declaration of Independence and has been called the "savior of the Constitution because he cast the deciding vote in favor of continuing the meeting when adjournment was proposed in the Constitutional Convention.

Josiah Meigs, another Connecticut-born Yale man, was named president of the university. The Southern institution began its physical growth with the letting of a contract in 1801 for a president's residence and for the first college building.

Franklin College, as the first building was called, was completed in 1806 and was named for Benjamin Franklin who had once acted as agent in London for the colony of Georgia. Some years later Franklin College was changed to Old College and was made a dormitory for men and it is still used for that purpose. Adjacent to Old College was built New College, another men's dormitory in 1823, both structures modeled after dormitories on the Yale campus.

First step in extending Franklin College toward a university was made in 1867 when the Lumpkin Law school became the Law Department of the University of Georgia. This school had been organized by George Henry Lumpkin, the first Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Georgia, in 1859.

Next significant event in the development of the university came in the following decade. It arose from legislation adopted by Congress during the War Between the States to promote instruction in mechanical arts and agriculture in the several states. In this way the State College of Agriculture and Mechanical Arts was created in 1872 and made a part of the university. In 1906 this department was renamed the State College of Agriculture and was located on an adjoining campus to Franklin College.

In 1893 the first football game in the South was played between Georgia and Alabama Polytechnic Institute, the game being played in Atlanta. The late Dr. Charles Hertty, one of the world's greatest chemists, was coach of Georgia and Dr. Frank Dorsey, later to become one of Georgia's greatest physicians, coached Auburn. These two men attended Johns Hopkins University together, learned about football and came back to their Alma Maters to begin in the South what is today America's greatest sporting attractions.

"Why wrong?" inquired Mrs. Smith.

When it comes to turning out iron men, Harvard is doing a pretty good job. Up to last Saturday, Captain Bob Green had played 300 minutes out of a possible 300. Ken Booth had played 293 minutes, two others had played 291 minutes and still another had gone 275 minutes. . . .

Paul E. Lockwood, a former sports writer, now Assistant District Attorney in New York, may get Tom Dewey's job if the latter becomes governor . . . Although there is only one Notre Dame grad in the outfit, Richard J. Leonard reports the Knute Rockne Club of Elizabeth, N. J., boasts 40 members and all plan to attend the Irish games when played in the East. . . .

The pressure in a football for play should be not less than 12 1-2 pounds and not more than 13 1-2. . . . Gil Dobie is a graduate of the University of Minnesota. . . . University of Washington holds the all-time record for consecutive seasons without defeat, being unbeaten from 1907 to 1917. The Huskies won 63 ties and tied four in that span. . . .

The first negro ever to make Walter Camp's all-American team was William H. Lewis of Harvard, center in 1892 and 1893. He afterwards became Assistant Attorney General of the United States . . . Three men have kicked five field goals in one intercollegiate game. B. W. Trafford of Harvard did it against Cornell in 1890, Charley Brickley of Harvard did it against Yale in 1913 and Walter Eckersall of Chicago did it against Illinois in 1905 and against Nebraska in 1906. . . .

Charles D. Daly made Walter Camp's all-American while playing at Harvard in 1898 and 1899. He also made it while playing at West Point in 1901. He was quarterback. . . .

Bobby Cifers, sensational Kingsport, Tenn., high school football halfback, has broken Bill DeCorrevont's prep scoring record with two games yet to go. Cifers has scored 213 points already compared with 211 total for the Chicago flash. . . .

Heralded as another Chateau Thierry by Henry McLemore, the Tulane-Alabama game failed to develop all of the bone cracking and roughness anticipated, only two penalties being called. . . .

Remember Jim Musick, the great Trojan of 1931, who played against Tulane in the Rose Bowl? Bill Musick, 203-pound brother of Jim, is the latest Trojan backfield star.

Here's the first oddity all-American team of the year, offered by Will Wedge of the New York Sun:

Left tackle—McKeever (Cornell).
Right tackle—McGoldrick (Notre Dame).
Center—McNeil (Southern Cal).
Right guard—McGrath (Navy).
Right tackle—McGarahan (Rice).
Right end—McCubbin (Kentucky).
Quarterback—McCarthy (Santa Clara).
Left halfback—McDonald (Harvard).
Right halfback—MacLeod (Dartmouth).
Fullback—McClain (Iowa).

At that, Mr. Wedge, may we suggest Mr. "Mack" Brunner of Tulane?

The Southeastern Conference

The above illustration indicates the membership and location of the thirteen schools that compose the comparatively new Southeastern Conference. These universities were formerly a very important part of the unwieldy Southern Conference, but withdrew in order to form a more compact group. Today the Big Thirteen, as the S. E. C. is often called, holds a top spot among the major football leagues in the nation.

Cut out the above drawing, and when a team suffers defeat, mark through its flag, and when the season is over only the white flag of the undefeated teams will remain — if any team goes through without a reverse this year.

POINTERS ON PUNTING

1. A good punter uses his instep, and not his toe, in kicking the ball.
2. The punter should not kick farther than his ends can cover.
3. The punter should be able to place his kicks.
4. The center can add to the perfection of a kick by making a perfect pass.
5. In normal cases, the punter should get height to his kicks. This allows his entire team to get downfield.
6. A punter should have perfect co-ordination, must be relaxed, and should have tremendous leg drive with follow through.

The team with a great punter has a tremendous asset, since all other things being equal, the team with the great kicker can often keep the other eleven deep in its own territory. Kicking the ball as far as it will go is not always the best strategy, for often a shorter, well-placed kick out of bounds is more desirable. The team in turn can help the punter by giving him adequate protection and by covering the kicks downfield.

W S M B

says:

"We hope you can make the trip to Baton Rouge and see the Tulane Greenies and the L.S.U. Tigers play the finest game of football you ever saw.

"If you can't make it, then tune in WSMB, 1320 KC., and Bill Brengel will give you his sterling play-by-play description. The kickoff is at 2 o'clock."
