BULLDOGS

The rivalry between Tulane's Green Wave and the Georgia Bulldogs has been one of the most colorful in all Dixie gridiron history.

Georgia and Tulane have always played great games, regardless of which team may have emerged the winner.

They started the series in 1919 with a 7 to 7 tie. They resumed it in 1927 and haven't missed a year since, always furnishing the spectacular in the games.

Georgia's championship aspiring team of 1927 really scored the most decisive victory of the series, winning 31 to 0. McCreary, Hooks, Dudley, Shiver, Nash and Johnson were the Bulldog stars that day.

The Wave-Bulldog games have always furnished their heroes. Jerry Dalrymple, Catfish Smith, Don Zimmerman, Buster Mott, Bill Banker, McCreary, Big Preacher

Roberts, Jack the Ripper Roberts, Monk Simons, John McKnight, Charlie Rucker, Maurice Green, Lefty Haynes, Jack Holland, Red Dawson and many others having won fame in the thrilling dramas unfolded between the two old rivals.

The setting has always been dramatic.

In five of the games, championships were involved. This was true in 1927 when Georgia seemed headed for the national crown. It was the case again in 1929, when both the Wave and Bulldogs were battling for the title and the same was true in 1930 and 1931. Last year, neither Georgia nor Tulane had been defeated in the Conference when they played.

Georgia and Tulane teams ask no quarter. They play the game at top speed and a thrilling game always results.

The score of past games:

1919—Tulane	7, Georgia	7.
1927—Tulane	0, Georgia	31.
1928—Tulane	14, Georgia	20.
1929—Tulane	21, Georgia	15.
1930—Tulane	25, Georgia	0.
1931—Tulane	20, Georgia	7.
1932—Tulane	34, Georgia	25.
1933—Tulane	13, Georgia	26.
1934—Tulane	7, Georgia	6.

The games of 1932 and 1933 did not involve any championship ambitions and yet those two battles were probably as thrilling as any in the series.

Tulane won, 34 to 25, in 1932, with Don Zimmerman and his mates dazzling the visitors in the first half only to see the Bulldogs come to life and all but blast them out of the stadium in the second half. The next year at Athens, the game was a duel of great offensive fireworks.

Cradled in the deep South the University of Georgia exudes the swords and roses flavor reminiscent of the Confederacy. Its magnolia scented Campus at Little Athens, lined by time-worn Colonial buildings, is as mellow as a Georgia mint-julep. There is something about the Dixie air which brings out the dervish in football players. Georgia sons still drink a silent toast to the memory of Vonavalde Gammon who was badly injured in the Virginia game of 1896. As he was led off the field tottering his captain who did not realize how badly the boy was hurt called out, "You are not going to quit are you, Von?" "Hell no" was Von's reply. "I have got too much Georgia grit for that." Those were the last words he ever spoke. The state legislature threatened to abolish football but a gentle-faced lady in mourning weeds made a moving plea that saved the game. It was Gammon's mother.

The University of Georgia and Georgia School of Technology are traditional rivals, yet both boast something in common—"Bum" Day, one of the South's greatest centers. After earning all-America recognition at Tech, Day transferred to Georgia and more than lived up to his Atlanta reputation. Day was a raw-boned, good-natured farm boy who loved a rough and tumble scrap.

Milton Leathers, known to shirt-sleeved Athens fans as the wild "Red Head," played with a fervor worthy of Braggs Brigade. As the Yale players remarked, "That bird doesn't know the Civil War is over." Gene Smith, Georgia's little watch charm guard, was a cyclone in capsule form. Coach Woodruff called him "the best running guard I ever saw regardless of size." Rangy Joe Bennett, son of a Baptist Minister, was a model student and a model tackle, always in position to side-swipe his man. Arthur Pew, Georgia's flashiest tackle, graduated a year before his football time was up and intended to stow away his jersey for good. He changed his mind when a referee banished him unjustly in the Auburn game. "Just for that I'll be back next year," he told his Auburn aggressor, "and we will fight it out on the same field." Pew kept his rendezvous.

Few colleges boast of a greater end than Tom Nash, whose post-graduate exploits are still the talk of professional football. A crack baseball player he could freeze onto passes that seemed just beyond his reach. Though Ivey Shiver may have had the edge on "Catfish" Smith in a technical sense, no All-time Georgia team would be complete without that great "money player." Smith invariably delivered in the pinches. Ask Yale! When the Elis dedicated Sanford Stadium Catfish scored all Georgia's 15 points. He had a genius for showing up in the right place at the right moment.

Dave Paddock was with Georgia one whole year before any one discovered he could play football. Once started this peppery 150-pounder made up for lost time and is rated a shade above the brilliant Austin Downes as a field-general and lucid runner. Both these pint-sized quarterbacks "had it above the shoulders."

Cy Grant, the "Cornelia apple knocker," was one of those here-he-comes-there-he-goes climax runners. His crooked stride and a cross step enabled him to fade away from tacklers.

They still call Bob McWhorter "Georgia's greatest football player." This genius, a physical and mental prodigy, made the Varsity as a freshman and played four years at halfback, winning all Southern honors each season. Tech had been top dog until McWhorter blew into Athens but Bob quickly turned the tables on the Yellow Jackets.

Herdis McCrary lived up to his nickname "Bull" when he plowed head first into the line. Temperamental to a degree McCrary had off days but when the mood was on him he couldn't be stopped. McCrary later continued his line-ripping tactics for the Green Bay Packers.

THE GRIDIRON ROUNDUP

The Score to Date:

Picked	Winners	Losers	Ties

David Dabster Dingelhoff, the Demon Dopester of Dryades, stalked into the gymnasium Monday morning, head erect and his round shoulders pulled back until it seemed that his galluses would break for sure.

We were not prepared for such an entrance on the part of Colonel Dingelhoff. We felt that he would wear a silly and chagrined look but we reckoned without taking into consideration the stuff that the Demon is made of—pure, unadulterated cement and ivory.

"Colonel," we chided gently, "you had a woeful day in picking the winners Saturday. Too bad, old fellow."

"Too bad! Why my selections proved me an expert," he retorted, his dander up and the dandruff shaking off his coat lapels.

We arched an eyebrow faintly.

"Yes, an expert I am," he continued. "Didn't I pick Ohio State to win? So did all the nationally known experts. Didn't I pick U. C. L. A. to win? So did most of the West Coast experts. Didn't the weather man predict rain last Saturday? Isn't he a weather expert?"

"Did Ohio State win? Did U. C. L. A. win? Did it rain?"

With such an amazing broadside of facts, we limply caught Colonel Dingelhoff's hand and proceeded to congratulate him.

"Our most humble apologies," we mumbled. "You are really an expert. May we have the first opportunity to interview you on the games of this Saturday?"

The Colonel was overcome. (Frankly, after thinking the matter over, we are of the opinion that the Demon of Dryades feared for the worst when he came into the gymnasium.)

His courage skyrocketed when we accepted him as an expert, a fact that he really proved to us, however, beyond doubt.

"Colonel," we first asked, "what do you think of the L. S. U.-Mississippi State game?"

"That should be a great ball game," he returned. "I overlooked mentioning a minute ago that all of us experts picked Army to win last week. Did Army win?"

My gosh, the Colonel really classified as an expert.

"Well," he continued, "since Army did not win, that makes Mississippi State the sensation of the week. They were red hot last week but L. S. U. will cool them off this week. The Tigers may burn their fingers in handling them though. That's that."

"That's what?" we interjected. "You can't sidestep the issue, Colonel. Come, come."

The Demon showed strongly in the experts' eyes as he saw that we had him cornered. He was a real expert to the last ditch.

"I pick L. S. U. to win," he replied, hastily. "Now for the next one. I will take Auburn to beat Georgia Tech. Jack Meagher has too many guns for Bill Alexander."

We assured the Demon that the game would not be decided with guns. He shook his head in disgust, an eggspert in every sense.

"And I takes Kentucky to plaster Florida. This game may furnish a surprise, however, with the Gators showing themselves right pert against Georgia."

Here's nine others the Demon handed us:

Ole Miss over Tennessee.

Syracuse over Columbia.

Princeton over Harvard.

Notre Dame over Northwestern.

Rice over Arkansas.

Stanford over Southern Cal.

Nebraska over Kansas.

Minnesota over Iowa.

Michigan over Illinois.

TIME OUT

Mother: "I hope that young man you went out riding with last night didn't do anything wrong."

Her Daughter: "Gosh, no mother; he knows as much about necking as I do!"

Two men entered Westminster Abbey, and one of them listened enraptured to the strains of the organ.

"That's Handel," he murmured.

"He plays very well," returned the other.

He: "Do you understand what 'knee-action' is, in a car?"

She: "I do! And don't you try it!"

Fond Mother: "Will the photograph be anything like him?"

Fed-up Photographer: "Yes, madam, but we can easily alter that."

"When I put the ball where I can reach it," said the stout golfer, when asked how he liked the game, "I can't see it, and when I put it where I can see it, I can't reach it."

The golfer had lost his ball, and, not unnaturally, was inclined to be annoyed with his caddy.

"Why the deuce didn't you watch where it went?" he asked angrily.

"Well, sir," said the boy, "it don't usually go anywhere, and so it took me unprepared like."

They were discussing the bore of the seaside boarding house. "He would talk a dog's hind leg off," observed Smith.

"And even then," answered Brown, "he would go on with the tale."

Discontented Wife: "Several of the men whom I refused when I married you are richer than you are now."

Husband: "That's why."

Charity Official: "Did you investigate the Browns?"

Assistant: "I did."

Charity Official: "Find them respectable?"

Assistant: "Eminently so! They asked for gasoline instead of coal!"

Bored Visitor: "Really? He must be awfully tired."

Ferdy: "So your sister has a baby. Did she state whether it is a boy or a girl?"

Percy: "No, that's why I don't know whether I'm an uncle or an aunt."

A business man coming home from work was telling his family about the new stenographer he had hired that day.

"She is the most beautiful girl I have ever seen, just like a baby doll."

His youngest daughter interrupted his conversation and asked: "Daddy, does she close her eyes when you lay her down?"

Little Richard: "Mother, may I have a nickel for the old man who is crying outside?"

Mother: "Yes, dear, but what is the old man crying about?"

Richard: "He's crying, 'Peanuts, 5 cents a bag.'"

A steward stood at the gangway of a big liner, and as he stood there he kept shouting for the benefit of the arriving passengers:

"First class to the right! Second class to the left!"

A young woman stepped daintily aboard with a baby in her arms. As she hesitated before the steward, he bent over her and said, in his chivalrous way:

"First or second?"

"Oh!" said the girl, her face as red as a rose. "Oh, dear, neither—I'm only the nurse."

Magistrate: "What started the trouble between you and the plaintiff?"

Defendant: "Well, yer honor, it was like this. 'E threw 'is beer over me—I 'its 'im across the face wiv my bag of tools—then 'e cuts my 'ead open wiv a bottle—an' the next thing we knows we find ourselves quarrilin'!"

Visitor: "Is that bull dangerous?"

Farmer: "Oh, no ma'am; he's one of the sort they use for making beef tea."

Eleven major football teams still boast unblemished records but the list will be diminished rapidly as November rolls by.

In the East, Princeton, Dartmouth, New York University and Syracuse are still unbeaten and untied.

Harvard, Dartmouth and Yale yet get a crack at Princeton. Dartmouth's one big test remaining is Princeton. N. Y. U. has only Fordham ahead as a serious threat. Colgate is the only big hurdle for Syracuse.

The Middle West presents Minnesota, Notre Dame and Marquette as "tops."

The Gophers have Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin to beat. Notre Dame has Northwestern, Army and Southern Cal to go. Michigan State will test Marquette to the limit.

North Carolina is the only standout in the old South. The Tarheels have no serious challenge other than the possibility that Duke will bother them.

Southern Methodist and T. C. U. are the national standouts from the Southwest. The Mustangs yet have U. C. L. A., Arkansas, Baylor, T. C. U., and Texas A. & M. to face—which is asking an awful lot of any team.

The Horned Frogs have an equally tough lot to face in Texas, Rice, S. M. U. and Santa Clara.

California, the Far West's big shot, has Washington, College of Pacific and Stanford to beat, which is a difficult assignment.

Thus, it is unlikely that more than three or four at the most will get through unscratched.

The Southeastern Conference proved our surmise that football in this sector is stronger than ever by its showing last week.

Mississippi State and Tulane convinced the East of the strength of Southeastern teams by beating Army and Colgate.

L. S. U. and Auburn showed power in playing a great game at Baton Rouge.

Georgia Tech gave a fine Vanderbilt team a great battle at Atlanta before losing, 14 to 13.

Alabama continued to flash power in taking Kentucky over the hurdles, 13 to 0.

Florida and Georgia played a most interesting game at Jacksonville.

Ole Miss felled St. Louis University in easy fashion.

Here's one for the book.

George Washington University made 24 first downs to 12 for Rice last Saturday but lost the game, 41 to 0.

The Hatchetmen netted more than 400 yards compared with 372 for the Owls.

Ike Pickle of Mississippi State appears to be one of the standout backs of the Conference, based on his showing in games to date.

The University of Mexico football team, coached by Dixie Howell, former Alabama star, has two games with American colleges on its November schedule. They are with Westmoorland of San Antonio and Louisiana College.

Pitt hasn't lost to Penn State since 1919. And they have played regularly.

LUCKY STRIKE FASHIONS

Can now be part of your wardrobe

Lucky Strike Fashions are at last a reality. They've stepped off the cover of this Football Program to form a gay, dynamic group of styles, in colors that sparkle.

Lisbeth was commissioned to design them, and it has been OUR lucky strike to have them confined exclusively to us, in New Orleans.

This program cover shows you only one of the models from a complete collection that we are most anxious for you to see.

Come in any day next week.

ALVIN EKBERG, FROM SOUTH DAKOTA, RAN 60 OR MORE YARDS FOR TOUCHDOWNS IN THREE SUCCESSIVE GAMES. IN EACH CASE THE "CLOSING" GUN WAS FIRED WHILE HE WAS RUNNING.

THE RECORD FOR TOUCHDOWNS IS HELD BY JOHN LEECH OF V.M.I. 26 OF THEM IN 1920.

Alvin Ekberg, a South Dakota high school student, ran 60 or more yards for a touchdown in three successive games, and each case the gun ending the game was fired while he was running.

The longest punt of the 1934 season was aided by a 35-mile wind, but it still rates as a prodigious effort. It was a 102-yard flier, kicked by Dick Crayne, of Iowa, in a game with Indiana. Crayne was seven yards behind his own goal line, kicking to Indiana's five-yard marker. The game was a scoreless tie.

Kansas had a pretty fair team in 1906, but St. Louis University gave them by far the worst of two defeats they suffered during the season, the reason being a demoralizing long pass—football's longest forward pass—of 87 yards from Bradbury Robinson to John Schneider. For some reason the pass never appeared in the record books until a year or so ago, but it out-ranks the supposed longest pass, "Brick" Muller to Brodie Stephens, in the California-Ohio State Rose Bowl game, by 17 yards. St. Louis won the game 32 to 2, the worst defeat Kansas suffered from 1902 to 1914. Curiously enough, this was the first year in which the forward pass was legal (and, according to the rules, was theoretically limited to 20 yards), and nearly 25 years elapsed before the claim was made for the record.

There were 17 undefeated teams in the United States last year—of some 600 colleges that started the season with high hopes. Of the 17, only nine got through the season without a tie, and only two of that number may be classed as "big time" teams—Alabama and Minnesota.

The record for touchdowns scored is held by John Leech, of Virginia Military Institute who, in 1920, personally scored 26 touchdowns, or 156 points. Jim Thorpe, the famous Indian of Carlisle, holds the record for points, however, 198, scored in 1912.

Four little girls, perched... all perfectly happy in the knowledge that their clothes are correct for campus occasions. Miss Jane Jarman is wearing a sports costume in brown and green. Miss May Hendrick chooses a four-piece swagger suit in chartreuse. Miss Edna Angle likes her reddish brown skirt and jacket with the white angora tie. Miss Amy Smith is charmed with the softness of her all angora costume. If you want to know what the "well-dressed collegiate will wear this fall", just ask any of the four young ladies above.

TULANE ALMA MATER
(Sing as the Band Plays)

I

We praise thee for thy past, O Alma Mater!
Thy hand hath done its work full faithfully!
The incense of thy spirit hath ascended
And filled America from sea to sea!

II

We praise thee for thy present, Alma Mater!
Today thy Children look to thee for bread!
Thou ledest them to dreams and actions splendid!
The hunger of their soul is richly fed!

III

We praise thee for thy future, Alma Mater!
The vista of its glory gleameth far!
We ever shall be part of thee, great Mother!
There thou wilt be where e'er thy children are!

CHORUS

Olive, Green and Blue, we love thee!
Pledge we now our fealty true
Where the trees are ever greenest,
Where the skies are purest blue!
Hear us now, O Tulane, hear us!
As we proudly sing to thee!
Take from us our hearts' devotion!
Thine we are, and thine shall be!
