Tulane vs. Ole Miss

On regular-season and Sugar Bowl business, the Rebels of Ole Miss are in the habit of making frequent visits to New Orleans. They began coming to the city December 2, 1893, when they had the distinction of handing Tulane its first inter-collegiate football defeat, 12-4. All but two of the 35 previous games in the Rebel-Green Wave rivalry have been played here, the exceptions being the 1951 and 1954 renewals at Ole Miss.

The Greenies lead in the series, 22-13, yet for the past four seasons have lost to the precisioned platoons in red and blue. Ole Miss, defending Southeastern Conference champion anxious to make Orleanians forget Navy's 21-0 triumph of last New Year's Day, is favored again this afternoon.

Still, a team that can move on the attack is a dangerous team. Coach Andy Pilney's Greenies have shown definite ability in that direction, even though their record to date shows two road defeats against two home victories. Prime mover has been fullback Ronny Quillian (40), who in the first month of the campaign has battered ahead for 296 yards and five touchdowns.

He is all-S.E.C. material, as are co-captains and guards Bryan Burnthorne (60) and Tony Sardisco (64). For strong, dependable tackle play, watch New Orleans huskies Dalton Truax (72) and Emmett Zelenka (74). And you can't miss sophomore flashes Gene Newton (12) at quarterback and Al Cottrell (35) at left half, or senior right half Otis Gilmore (25).

Coach Johnny Vaught's Rebels started the season neatly with a 26-13 victory over Georgia, but then tripped and fell before capable Kentucky, 21-14. In the past two weeks they have initiated a comeback by socking North Texas State, 33-0, and Vanderbilt, 13-0.

Eagle Day (19), John Wallace Blalack (14) and Houston Patton (16) are all sharp Rebel quarterbacks. In the running department, try to keep your eyes on Eddie Crawford (21), Billy Kinard (31), Paige Cothorn (40), Earl Blair (22) and their chums. Up front big men include guard Buddy Alliston (67) and center Gene Dubuissou (51).

J. V. Burkes, III, is a sophomore right half-back for Tulane's Greenies. To him a horseshoe means more than luck. Along with some 2,500 other Tulane students, J. V. participates in the University's intramural athletics program. The smile and trophy are symbolic of his winning the 1954-55 horseshoes championship.

On almost any autumn afternoon, scenes like this are familiar on the Tulane campus. Touch football is one of the most popular of intramural activities, which also include golf, checkers, billiards, volleyball, basketball, tennis, handball, chess, softball, swimming, bridge and horseshoes.

Championships in all sports are closely contested. Here are the 1954 touch football champions—the Air Force ROTC.

The planning and jurisdiction of intramural athletics is the function of the Intramural Council, which is composed of representatives of each of the colleges of the University, the ROTC units, the four dormitories and the various clubs and organizations on campus.

Last year the Law School won intramural championships in volleyball, softball and tennis singles and doubles. These are the volleyball champs.

Intercollegiate Athletics Observes NCAA'S

50th Anniversary

INTERCOLLEGIATE ATHLETICS, during the current college year, 1955-56, commemorates the golden jubilee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association. The universities and colleges of the nation take pleasure in observing their national organization's 50th anniversary because the development and progress of the NCAA is the story of intercollegiate athletics' own expansion and improvement.

Fifty years is a long time. In 1905, the key offense in college football was the flying wedge . . . organized track and field competition was just getting under way . . . the original peach basket goal was about to be replaced by the open metal hoop in basketball but the sport still was new and strange to most sections of the nation . . .

The NCAA evolved from a meeting of 13 colleges and universities called in 1905 to reorganize the game of intercollegiate football. (The rugged nature of the game was causing too many injuries and deaths.) A permanent organization was established, March 31, 1906.

Today, the NCAA is composed of more than 465 colleges and universities, athletic conferences and associations, devoted to the sound administration of intercollegiate athletics. Also today, the member institutions of the NCAA provide intercollegiate athletic competition for more than 130,000 students annually in more than 26 different sports. The men responsible for the coaching and administration of intercollegiate sports firmly believe that these competitive athletic programs are a vital part of the educational system which prepares our youth for future productive careers in society.

The universities and colleges of the nation have joined together in one Association—the NCAA—for purposes of athletic discussion, legislation and administration at the national level. The NCAA is solely and completely responsive to the will of its members as expressed by their governing boards and chief executive officers. The NCAA concerns itself with any phase of college athletics which spreads across regional lines and becomes national in character, and a majority of the member institutions concur that national action is needed.

These member institutions carry on many diversified activities through the NCAA. For example, they:

- establish and maintain athletic standards.
- formulate and publish the official playing rules for college sports.
- conduct National Collegiate Championship events in 13 sports.
- maintain the official national statistics and records of college sports.
- provide financial and other assistance to groups interested in the promotion and encouragement of intercollegiate and intramural athletics.
- conduct studies as a means of developing solutions to athletic problems; i.e., the recent surveys on television, post-season events, length and time of playing and practice seasons, admission taxes, college baseball, etc.
- participate in the U. S. Olympic and Pan American movements in matters of fund-raising, sports organization and the selection of coaches and athletes for United States teams.
- administer a group insurance program providing catastrophe medical coverage.
- maintain a large film library covering play in National Collegiate Championship events.

The development and expanded activities of the NCAA reflect the progress of intercollegiate athletics over the past half century. The NCAA and its member institutions, in the years ahead, will continue to make every effort to provide maximum opportunities for our youth to enjoy the experience of competitive athletics as an integrated part of their over-all college education.
