

BROUSSARD'S RESTAURANT

NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA

Beginning with the group of buildings and additions that made up the old Broussard's Restaurant, Koch and Wilson Architects completely redesigned the complex in 1975. Existing dining rooms were remodeled, a new kitchen was built, a bar and another dining room were added facing the large courtyard, and some limited improvements were made to the facade. Service and storage rooms, as well as the employee facilities, were moved to areas of the second floor.

The renovation of this 10,600 square foot restaurant maximized the use of available space and improved the character of the entire establishment..
