Gourmets through the years have relished aged meats. Aged meats in the olden days could only be afforded by Kings and the wealthy few. The process of aging meats never changed until the early 60's, when the modern day process of cry-o-vac was introduced. This is the process of placing the select prime cuts into thick plastic bags, removing all the air from the bag, and placing it in a 40° cooler until the breaking of fiber tissues occurs in about three weeks. The Golden Star Steak House cuts and prepares their own beef. A GOURMET'S DELECTABLE DELIGHT!
