With Joe Micciche

If you think you could stand chewing off a whole page of it, would you be interested to know that: Jerry Dalrymple, Don Zimmerman, and Vernon Haynes will write accounts of today's game for New Orleans newspapers.

Bill Keefe, sports editor of the New Orleans Times-Picayune, has been as fair toward Southern California in his writings as any newspaperman in the south. He is here to cover the game today.

The Trojans have scored 51 touchdowns, converted for the extra point 30 times and kicked two goals from the field for a total of 342 points this season.

Orv Mohler and Gus Shaver lead the Trojan scorers with 15 and 16 touchdowns respectively. Gus' total adds up to 100 points as a result of kicking four goals after touchdowns.

Johnny Baker, hero of the Notre Dame game, has converted 13 times for the extra point out of 16 attempts, probably the best average compiled by a Trojan player since Jones' advent to S. C.

Ray Sparling has scored four touchdowns on that reverse play of his this season.

No matter who loses today, somebody is sure to say that the defeated team was not in condition.

Gene Ridings, substitute Trojan fullback, will celebrate his 22nd birthday today.

It appears that no matter how severely football is criticized at the close of each season, it comes back the next year more popular than ever.

Only Alabama has scored more points than Southern California this season among the major teams. Last year Colgate led the Trojans by one point. And in 1929 the Trojans led the country by a big margin.

Hal Moe, Oregon State halfback who played a superlative defensive game against the Trojans, picked eight S. C. boys on his all-opponents team.

Harold Wm. Roberts, Trojan band leader, is gradually becoming recognized as the John Philips Sousa of the west.

Bailey Edgerton, Trojan Yell King has pioneered the idea of having motion in rooting section stunts.

Norman Paul, all-round athlete from Santa Ana who is expected to be one of Dean Cromwell's best track performers next spring, has given out word that he's going out for football in the fall. Norman intends to tryout for a halfback position and it would not be at all surprising to see him make either a first or second string berth before the end of the '32 season.

Dick Barber, sub fullback, plays the piano and Ernie "Slip-horn" Smith, right tackle, slides a mean trombone.

The Rockne Memorial fund should be enriched by over $200,000 from 20% of the proceeds of the Southern California-Notre Dame film.

Two boys are in the running for captaincy of the '32 Trojan eleven.

The Howard Jones system is the most powerful offense in football today.

Mark Kelly is as sincere in his writings as any column conductor in Los Angeles, although at times you don't know whether he's going to praise you to the skies or give you a kick in the pants.

Arnold Eddy, Trojan grauate manager, is the only non-skating ice hockey coach in the world.

Erny Pinckert will be as successful a sports cartoonist as he is a football player.

Johnny Baker expects to be able to throw the 16-lb. shot around 49 feet before the coming track season closes.

The Trojan football team and the All-Year Club have secured the most favorable advertising for Southern California during the past year.

Orv Mohler is a regularly licensed airplane pilot.

People on the inside are convinced that the California game "made" the Trojan team rather than the St. Mary's contest.

Many major universities get just as good football material as Howard Jones, but results have proved that he knows how to develop it better.

THE FOUNDING OF

THE starting point of Tulane University of Louisiana, originally the University of Louisiana, was the organization of the Medical College of Louisiana in September, 1834.

The institution was chartered April 2, 1835, and in March, 1836, it issued the first degrees in medicine or science ever conferred in Louisiana or the Southwest.

The state constitution of 1845 ordained as follows:

"Art. 137. An University shall be established in the City of New Orleans. It shall be composed of four faculties, to wit: one of law, one of medicine, one of the natural sciences, and one of letters.

"Art. 138. It shall be called the University of Louisiana, and the Medical College of Louisiana, as at present organized, shall constitute the faculty of medicine.

"Art. 137. An University shall be established in for its further organization and government, but shall be under no obligation to contribute to the establishment or support of said University by appropriations."

Then came the trying days of the Civil War and the generous endowment of Paul Tulane in 1882.

Tulane, now a privately endowed institution, serving 5,000 students, embraces the College of Arts and Sciences, the H. Sophie Newcomb College for Women, the College of Engineering, the Graduate School, the College of Law, the School of Medicine, the Graduate School of Medicine, the School of Pharmacy, the Dental Clinic, the College of Commerce and Business Administration, the Courses for Teachers, the Department of Middle American Research, the School of Social Work and the summer schools.

The Tulane School of Pharmacy is the fourth oldest in the United States. Its curriculum requires more hours of study than any other college of pharmacy perhaps in America.

Dr. A. B. Dinwiddie is President of the University.

The department of middle American Research, at a cost of $100,000 is reproducing the quadrangle, formed by the four temples of ancient Uxmal, for the 1933 World's Fair at Chicago.

Five expeditions into Yucatan under Mr. Frans Blom have studied the ancient Mayan civilization and resulted in a wealth of information regarding that era of several thousands of years ago.

The University only last year transferred the graduate medical school to a new nine-story building, declared among the most modern of college buildings in the United States.

The Tulane Medical Department is, of Medical Colleges existing in the United States in 1901, the oldest in the Southwest.

The University is rich in tradition and nestled away in the beautiful Audubon Park section of New Orleans.

As the reader may see in the two pictures on these pages, the university has an ideal campus, and, as it has already been brought out that the school is located in one of the most beautiful parts of the city; so it is no wonder that the enrollment is always at a very high mark, and students come from all over the United States and even from outside its borders. By turning to the Tulane roster in the back of this magazine, one may see that thirteen of the members of the squad are from other states than Louisiana, and a fourteenth member is from Central Am-

Because this is an athletic contest that we are witnessing today, it is very proper to say a little about the athletic field and stadium. From the picture the reader can see that the stadium is not a complete oval, but it has proven plenty large to handle the crowds that witness the contests. The cities of the South can not boast of such large crowds at football games as the East and West can. The baseball field and track are located in front of the stadium, and these too have bleachers for the different contests held there. The rest of the athletic field is made up of tennis courts and fields for inter-university activities.

Not to change from the University to the football team, although that is the reason we are here today, but it might be fitting to say a few words. Although Tulane has been undefeated and S. C. has not, all will admit that the home team has the best record. Of course, Tulane will try to mar that "record" and will fight like all Southern teams, so the outcome is in doubt. If we could add a line to this story on Jan. 2, then we could give you the score.

Trojan Rose Bowl Games Of The Past

By AL WESSON

SHADOWS from the Annandale hills closing over the Rose Bowl today as the 1931 Trojan team plays its final game will bring memories to many a football fan of two other occasions when S. C. elevens fought their last battle in the shade of these same hillsides.

It was on Jan. 1, 1923 that these slopes first looked down upon a Southern California team in action as the representatives of the West. On that occasion these old hills saw a Trojan eleven put in the hole by a Penn State field goal and then come back to win by a 14 to 3 score.

Seven years later a Southern California team again visited the foot of these hills which gazed down and saw the Trojans, after being almost swept off their feet by a 68-yard run on the second play of the game, come back to take another victory, this time by a 47 to 14 score.

The first Southern California team that represented the West was coached by Elmer Henderson and led on the field by Capt. Leo Calland. A bit awed by the reputation of Penn State, eastern champions, the Cardinal and Gold players were off to a slow start. A drive of the Penn eleven down the field was stopped on the 20-yard line and Mike Palm, outstanding star of the visitors, dropped back and booted a drop kick over the crossbar for three points.

That field goal boomeranged on Penn State for it riled up Brother Calland and his boys and they forgot their awe and started packing that apple in a direction more comforting to the Trojan cause. Apparantly halted on the Penn State five-yard line, Quarterback Harold Galloway called a pass play that will long be remembered by those who saw it. It was a wobby toss, thrown hurriedly by Roy Baker who was being rushed by Penn linemen. It went short and in front of Galloway who was running out to the right. The "Gallop" saw that no ordinary attempt at catching that ball would work. He took a long dive at it, caught it an inch off the ground, crashed headlong into a Penn State man's knees but froze on to it.

When they pried the ball out of Galloway's arms and carried him cold off the field they found the pigskin on the one-yard line. Gordon Campbell, 150-pound fullback, bucked it over, and as far as Penn State was concerned the old ball game was all gone.

Just to make sure of it, the Trojans drove down the field from their 44-yard line in the third quarter to another score, this time Baker bucking over from the one-yard line. Southern California's superiority in this game can be seen in the statistics—15 first downs to six for Penn State and 305 yards from scrimmage to 138.

This was Coach Anderson's greatest team at S. C. Remember some of these men who played on it? Norm Anderson, Johnny Boyle (out of this game with injuries), Howard (Hobo) Kincaid, Johnny Milton, Gordon Campbell, Harold and Amor Galloway, Eddie Leahy, Lowell Lindley, Dick Emmons, Phil Tiernan, Winchell Boice, Hayden (Kentuck) Phythian, Otto Anderson, Wallace (Chief) Newman, Chet Dolley, Jim Pursell, Roy Baker, Ralph Cummings.

That game on Jan. 1, 1930 is still too fresh in mind to need much recalling. The wildest affair in Rose Bowl history, it started with Uansa's great run for Pittsburgh and ended with the air full of Trojan passes, most of which seemed to connect for touchdowns.

The Trojan Band

By AUBREY FRASER

PERHAPS the Trojan Band and its singing unit needs no introduction for these marching collegians have played and sung before hundreds of thousands of football fans. Since that first great day when a motley collection of nondescript musicians struggled onto the field to offer some diversion between halves to the present flashingly attired, excellently drilled group of real musicians, who are playing for you this afternoon, has been a tremendous stride in musical development at the University of Southern California. Through the instrument of the Department of Musical Organizations and particularly the Director, Harold Wm.

Roberts, this growing period has been both a happy and successful one. So successful in fact has been the progress that the Trojan Band and Singing Unit are rightly classed as the best collegiate band in the United States.

The appearance here in the Rose Bowl is not the first appearance of this New Year. As the thousands of you who witnessed the Rose Parade well know it was the Trojan Band that this year led the parade, a very real honor. In this, as in all other recognition that has been accorded the band, a very considerable share should be extended to those instructors and student managers who have been active in insuring the success of the various organizations.

Harold Wm. Roberts, Director of the Department and Director of the Band, has been in charge of the musical activities of the University for the past eight years. Previous to this time as a student of music in high school and in college, he had won recognition because of his musical ability, and in his work in the department he has won additional laurels. J. Arthur Lewis, Director of the Trojan Male Chorus, which acts as the singing unit of the band during the football season, has been particularly successful in his work with the singing organizations of the University. Director of vocal music for years, his experience and personality have been an important factor in the success of the Trojan Male Chorus.

John T. Boudreau, the third member of the triumvirate, instructs the band in practice and assists Mr. Roberts in concert and radio programs.

Equally important is the work of the Student Managers. Headed by Hal Mathews, the band managers include Hal Boyd, Fred Robinson, Fred Griffin, Phil Tilden and Dave Rosenthal. The manager of the Male Chorus, Armond Janssen, is assisted by Aubrey Fraser and Joseph Harker. These students with the faculty instructors are responsible for the effective presentation of the Trojan Band.

Few spectators realize the hours of grilling rehearsals and drill that is put into each one of the appearances of the Band on the football field between halves. First there are the music rehearsals which are held five days of the week, lasting one hour each session, at which there is no other subject introduced than music, and a repeated rehearsal of the parts, both in unison and with groups of instruments separately; then on the morning of the game the entire group is called together and they are put through strenuous practice for the fancy drill on the field that afternoon. The stunts put on during the half are also worked out at this drill practice, so that when the boys leave the field of practice, each knows his exact steps and position, which he will fill, either in the stunt or the drill.

During the second semester of the school year the band is given more rigid rehearsals in heavy music such as concert overtures, etc., and at the end of the semester, in May or June, give one or two major concerts. Last year these concerts were given in the Greek Theatre, Griffith Park and the Shrine Auditorium. The annual concert tour of the Trojan Band of the northern part of the state takes place during the Easter vacation, and is usually booked early in February. The Trojan Band bids you football patrons "Good-bye" and hope to see you all back for the season of 1932.

The Trojan Knights

By JOHN MORLEY

THE TROJAN KNIGHTS, All-University Service Organization, is composed of thirty upper-classmen who have been outstanding in activities and in service to the school. Their chief duty is to promote respect and observance of the University traditions. Other tasks which the Trojan Knights carry out are: taking charge of the rooting section at athletic meets, and entertaining and being generally responsible for visiting athletic teams on the Trojan campus. Under a recent legislative act, the president of the Knights is appointed by the president of the student body and is chairman of the rally committee.

The Trojan Knights are symbolic in that their insignia is the regulation cardinal sweater upon which is worn a special Trojan helmet.

This organization since its inception several years ago has undergone quite a change, both in respect to the duties assigned to it, and to the dignity and honor accorded its members. At first this group was given all the dirty jobs on the campus and the members of the Knights were regarded more or less as flunkies. But with the passing of time, more important functions and duties have been assigned to this body, membership has been limited with the result that at the present time the Knights are looked upon as one of the outstanding groups of the campus.

As you read this Pigskin Review, you might look at the Southern California rooting section if you care to see the Trojan Knights in action, helping the rooters arrange themselves in the space assigned them, preparatory to the staging of the stunts at the half.

The "Why" And The "How"

WELL! when you have begun to read this article, it will be the beginning of the end of the 1931 Pigskin Review. I feel safe in saying this because it is a known fact that this is the last issue for this season, and, like all authors I feel that I should say that you will probably read my article last. The one consolation, though, is that this is the first day of the year 1932; so I have edged a little on the next editor; thereby giving him the same start that I finish with, whether it be good or bad.

You know in this game of journalism there are a lot of breaks which go to make success or failure. It was just such a break that caused this article to be in this magazine. At the last minute, twelve o'clock at night on the Monday preceeding the game it was discovered that the plate of the managers and medical stab was missing and could not be foundd anywhere; so this article had to be inserted. If you like it, it will be a break for me, and, if you don't, it will also be a break for me, but in the other direction.

What to write about? Could explain something about football, the universities competing today, or the Tournament of Roses itself, but you have been reading about all that in the papers for the past three weeks. And, the other authors who have written for this magazine have covered just about all of the points to be covered. You may check up on this by refering to those Pigskins that you have "saved." In answer to the question at the beginning of this paragraph, why write about anything? You have gotten along this far. At least you readers will have to read this for to determine what it is all about, and I know you won't go back on me now. Stick it out to the last; I had to.

I am sure that anyone who has read the Pigskin regularly has more than gotten his or her money's worth out of the articles by Joe Micciche, and I am willing to wager that not more than ten per cent of his readers are able to pronounce that last name. Phyllis Doran also deserves a great deal of credit for the articles that she has written. There should not be a Trojan supporter who did not get a kick and a whale of a one at that out of Al Wesson's article on the Notre Dame game. He also has a very interesting story in today's issue. The character covers have been done by Billy Cam, and he has added much "zipper" and "pep" to the whole series of magazines by his drawings.

Editors are elected for this publication like all other student enterprises on the campus; so we might say that the "editors may come and the editors may go, but the Pigskin Review stays on for ever." At least we hope so. In other words it is the aim of Arnold Eddy, the general manager, and Kenneth Stonier, manager of student publications, to create and improve each issue of this publication so that the customers will feel that they are more than getting their money's worth when purchasing one of the magazines. There is a reason for all this, though, because if the customers look at a common ordinary book every week that just gets by, they probably won't be a customer the next season; just the same as though you sat in a very poor seat all season, you probably wouldn't send in for a season ticket the next year when you received your application.

You have missed seeing the managers and medical staff today, the same group that you can see by referring to your Georgia issue, but you have heard a few ravings of the editor about the aim of the Pigskin Review and its success in the future.

Their Last Game For Troy

By PHYLLIS DORAN

TODAY when the whistle blows ending the fourth quarter, the following thirteen men on the Trojan squad will have worn their cardinal and gold jerseys for the last time in an intercollegiate, non-professional football contest.

GARRETT WALTER ARBELBIDE (R-Bell-B-D), one of the best ends on the coast this year and at times one of the most inconsistent players, is a native of California, having been born at Redlands some twenty-three years ago of a French-Irish-Scotch family. He graduated in 1928 from Huntington Park high school and entered the Trojan institution the same year. Aside from being captain of the basketball squad in his senior year he was all-league halfback, and holds the 1928 record of all-state shot put champion.

Numbering among his awards in college is the baseball captaincy of 1932. He is a letterman in football, baseball and track. Last year he was one of the leading hitters of the California Intercollegiate association. He is a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity, and intends to become a coach.

JOHN WATSON BAKER, better known as Johnnie or "Bake" to his friends, associates, and Phi kappa Tau fraternity brothers, has garnered more publicity in less than a month than some of the screen celebrities get in six months. Nevertheless he deserved all he got and he won't be forgotten soon because he intends to go into coaching.

Johnnie was born in Denison, Iowa, in 1907, and is of German descent. He graduated from Kingsburg high school in 1928, a winner of 10 athletic letter awards for participation in football, basketball and track.

He has won and still holds the Interfraternity shot put record and is the central California 12-pound shot put champion. Since his freshman year he has won his yearly numerals in football.

BLANCHARD BEATTY, not one of the regulars, but a first string sub, has seen almost enough action this year to be a letter man. A transfer from Santa Ana Junior college, Beatty has proved to be a first class athlete. He was born in Corona, in 1907, and is a member of Sigma Chi fraternity. He has participated in football, baseball, basketball, track, and swimming. He intends to become a coach upon graduation from the Trojan institution.

EUGENE C. CLARK, better known as "Gene," another Sigma Chi, has proved himself worthy of a first string position most of the season. Gene was born in Thorold, Ontario, Canada, some twenty-four years ago. He graduated from Glendale high school in 1927 where he participated in football and track. He was a member, for two years, of an honor society, for scholastic endeavor. Gene is the first on the list of the seniors who isn't going to coach. His future will be devoted to the oil business.

ROBERT HAYS HALL, the bandaged-up football man who insists upon playing football, when by so doing he is lessening his chances for Olympic recognition in the field of discus and shot putting, because he is afraid that if he gives up football people will say he couldn't stand the gag. That's southern pride for you. This young man will bear watching in the 1932 Olympics if he pulls through today without any serious injuries.

Bob was born in Del Rio, Texas, twenty-three years ago of an English-Scotch-Irish family. He graduated from Terrill Prep in Dallas and headed for S. C. His athletic abilities were distributed among track, football, basketball, and tennis where in he won 13 letters. He has been captain of each of these sports. At S. C. he is registered in the College of Commerce, with a major in Banking and Finance.

HAROLD ESTES HAMMACK, the Kappa Sigma sub who tears up and down in front of the bench like a well-trained race horse, was relegated to the bench this year because of injuries. He was born in Glenwood, Iowa, in 1909 of a Scotch-English family. He graduated from Narbonne high school in Lomita, California, in 1928. He is registered in the College of Letters, Arts, and Sciences and intends to swell the coaching profession by his participa-

HOWARD JOSLIN, one of the four married men on the squad, has been relegated to the bench this season because he wasn't quite big enough to fit into the Jones system. "Jos" has made a good showing when called upon. He was born in Phoenix, Arizona and graduated from there in 1928. He is a member of Phi Sigma Kappa at S. C. In his prep school days he was captain of the track squad and a first class javelin thrower. He has a coaching job lined up in Arizona waiting for him to graduate in June.

THOMAS ORVILLE MALLORY, the most unsung player on the squad, but one of the best in the Jones system this year. Tom doesn't have a ball-carrying job and so isn't let in for a great deal of publicity, but if it weren't for his being in there in every play there would be no glory for the quarterback. Tom takes his football seriously and goes ahead and does what he has to do.

He was born in Prescott, Arizona, in 1908, and is of Irish descent. He graduated from Pasadena high school where he was president of the senior class, in 1928. Today he is playing on home territory. His athletic awards were won in baseball, and football where he was captain and all-coast fullback. He was also a member of a scholastic honorary. At S. C. he entered the College of Engineering and intends to become a civil engineer.

JAMES A. MUSICK was recently thrown for a loss by Dan Cupid. When the penalty will be inflicted is yet unknown. Jim took a personal "beating" in a recent game and now has to wear a nose-guard and places himself in the position of being a marked man. Other teams have since learned to leave him alone if they don't want the rest of the team to "gang up" on them.

is of Welsh descent, and is a Sigma Chi. He graduated from Santa Ana high school in 1928. There he was all-league fullback and belonged to an honor society. He intends to go into business as his future profession.

ERNY PINCKERT, the play-boy of the squad, would rather be a $40 cartoonist than a $4000 fighter, and we're with him there. He is one of the best liked, most agreeable fellows on the squad and an All-American of 1930. He has played more than any other fellow on the squad except Stan Williamson. He was born in Medford, Wis., in 1908. He graduated from San Bernardino high school in 1927 and in the meantime selected a very charming wife from among the populace. In prep school he participated in the four major sports.

He is registered in the School of Architecture at S. C. and intends to go into the commercial side of drawing. He has made good with it so far and is well known on the campus for his caricatures. His work is pery clever. He does signs and pictures equally well and some day will be listed among the famous designers.

GAIUS R. SHAVER must have heard his mother give the wonderful toast which she did, at the football banquet when the boys were well on their way to Notre Dame. He surely came through to fulfill her predictions and make her proud of him, and to bring himself All-American fame of 1931. "Gus" is a Sigma Chi and hails from Azusa. He graduated from Covina high school in 1928 where he was captain of the football squad and entered the pole vault event on the track team. At S. C. he is a physical education major and will be a coach. Little else is known about him because he is a quiet sort and doesn't have much to say that isn't necessary.

BARRY STEPHENS has been pushed into the corner this year because but he deserves credit for the time he has devoted to participation. Barry is from L. A. Polytechnic high school of the class of 1928. He was known as a hurdler and a first class halfback on the squad. At S. C. he is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, and is registered in the College of Commerce and Business Administration. He has a flair for business enterprise and the June class graduation will set him on his way.

CAPTAIN STANLEY LEWIS WILLIAMSON, last in alphabetical order but by no means least on the squad. What a surprise everyone had when he was elected to the position of football captaincy for 1931, but what a godsend he turned out to be. There's no one on the squad who is any more conscientious or helpful than Stan. There isn't anything he wouldn't do to help a teammate. He seems to have that spark of leadership that keeps a team going through thick and thin, and a personality which is the envy of everyone who knows him.

Stan is from Pittsburg, California, and arrived there about 1909. He is of Scotch-Irish descent. He graduated from Pittsburg high school in 1928. In prep school he was the winner of 17 athletic letter awards. At S. C. he is studying to become a coach, and is a Sigma Chi.

Here's luck today and always to Captain Stan and his boys.

The Guest of the Day . . . TULANE

TODAY'S GAME will determine the relative strength of two of the most powerful elevens in the country...and settle (at least for this season) many arguments about sectional ascendancy in the gridiron sport.

The flashy passing game of a Southern team that is expected to rank among the strongest ever produced below the Mason and Dixon line will be pitted against the devastating attack of a Trojan team that is perhaps the greatest football aggregation which has yet appeared on the Pacific Coast...a team that has all but demolished many elevens of high standing this season.

Regardless of the outcome, you will see football at its finest in today's classic. May the best team win.

On your way home after the game, take on a tankful of Richfield Gasoline. It, too... has championship qualities; split-second starting; power to smooth out steepest hills; astonishing flexibility in traffic; flashing speed on the straight-a-way. No wonder... for it is the choice of the world's greatest drivers!
