For Thursday, July 24

Present—For You and Yours . . . Progress may be at a standstill for the moment, but it's only the calm before the storm. Creative ideas are at a premium now, so don't hesitate to present yours where they'll get the most attention. Don't be bashful! This could be a stimulating evening.

Past . . . The rotary type printing press was patented by R. M. Hoe of New York City on July 24, 1847. It was this press that made modern periodical publishing practicable.

Future . . . Although exports have dropped off sharply, the fact that other nations are adding to reserves of gold and dollars may denote an end of the drop in overseas sales.
