Vol. 25 September 17, 1955 No. 1

Tulane-VMI

All dressed up and with places to go, the new Green Wave of Tulane gets going today against Virginia Military Institute's Cadets.

The Greenies are favored in their opener, yet expect much more than token resistance from the visitors from Lexington, Va. Sometimes known as the Flying Squadron, the V.M.I. squad flew into New Orleans with determination akin to that of the 1864 Cadet Corps, which marched as a unit into the Battle of New Market.

Coach Andy Pilney's second edition as Tulane coach is a streamlined squad bent upon making up for some of the frustrations of recent seasons. In practice they looked like a team that can move with dispatch. Today will tell a clearer story.

Everybody, including the All-Southeastern Conference selectors, will be watching the Greenies' brilliant senior guards—Bryan Burnthorne (60) and Tony Sardisco (64). John Caruso (11) and Fred Wilcox (17), co-regulars at quarterback last fall, and such chums as 143-pound Willie Hof (32) hope to make the split T click.

Nineteen Greenies will be making their first appearance in Tulane Stadium. Off practice showings, ends Jack Montgomery (82) and Will Billon (80) and halfbacks Al Cottrell (35) and Virgil Jester (23) are among those with brightest futures.

V.M.I., coached by John McKenna, is a young outfit that should represent the Southern Conference well. The "West Point of the South" will be heard from in the person of such people as center Dick Lyons (57), tackle Bill Miller (78), halfback Dale Vaughn (28), fullback Sam Woolwine (31) and quarterback Duke Johnston (15).

After today four more home games await the Wave on alternate weeks.

The next one comes October 1 against Northwestern, the first Big Ten football team to visit New Orleans.

Then come Ole Miss' Sugar Bowlers, Auburn's Gator Bowl champions and Vanderbilt's resurgent Commodors.

But first Tulane's Team of the Future hopes to do well in the present.

Learning the ropes in practice, Tulane's Greenies hustle through agility drills designed to help them sidestep obstacles in the challenging 1955 season opening today. Since September 1 the Wave has been working hard for the Big Saturdays to come. This edition of Cam-Pix is a look behind the scenes and a preview of this fall's visitors to Tulane Stadium.

Throughout the summer the Greenies kept in top condition in various ways. Some, like Halfback Tommy Warner, shared their talents with Greenies of the future. Tommy is instructing Tulane Day Camper David Robinson in the art of passing while Michael Read, Einar Pedersen and David Peters observe closely.

Daily calisthenics prepare the player for maximum efficiency. Among the most important of these exercises is the push-up. Eyes on the leader, Green Wave center Jim Carmody goes down and up on count.

Development of precision of execution as individuals and as a team is a constant goal. And the seniors drill on fundamentals as much as the greenest freshman. Here All-Southeastern Conference guard candidates Tony Sardisco (left) and Bryan Burnthorne square off in a blocking exercise.

The seven-man line sled especially designed by Coaches Andy Pilney, Jack Green and Mike Karmazin has been copied by some of the leading college and professional teams. Green Wave linemen will push the 1,350-pound sled many a yard in the course of a season. It provides fine training in all phases of the game.

John Mazur, ex-Notre Dame quarterback who joined the Green Wave coaching staff this year, models the new white Tulane jersey which will be worn in action for the first time today. Head Coach Andy Pilney (center) and Ken Tarzetti, assistant to the athletic director, look on approvingly.

Among the busiest of all the Greenies is Trainer Earl (Bubba) Porche, whose job it is to keep the men in the best possible shape. Ailments, minor and major, receive his immediate attention. Here "Bubba" takes a look at the sore foot of halfback Willie Harrison.

"Pride of the South"

The Cadets from Virginia Military Institute help open the Greenies' schedule today. Tackle Bill Miller is the line bulwark and Jimmy Foster the quarterback of the visitors from the Southeastern Conference.

October 1 will bring the first Big Ten football team in history to New Orleans—the Wildcats of Northwestern. Halfback Jim Troglia and Center Ted Ringer are outstanding players for the Big Purple from Evanston. Tulane and Northwestern broke even in two previous games in 1925 and 1930.

Ole Miss' Rebels, last season Sugar Bowlers and again one of the Southeastern Conference's ranking powers, come to Tulane Stadium Oct. 15. The Rebs boast a hard-hitting backfield in Billy Kinard, right half; John Blalack, quarterback; Paige Cothren, fullback; and Eddie Crawford, left half.

Joe Childress (35), a spectacular fullback, and Frank D'Agostino (77), an all-purpose tackle, are All-American candidates of a fine Auburn team which will provide the opposition for Tulane's Homecoming Game of Oct. 29.

Vanderbilt's Commodores, beaten by the Greenies last fall at Nashville, will seek vengeance Nov. 12 in the Wave's final home game. Charley Horton is a high-flying half-back and Larry Frank a solid guard for the Tennesseans.

The University

Tulane University is the only private, non-denominational institution of higher learning offering a full university program in a nine-state area extending from California to the Atlantic Seaboard and embracing New Mexico, Arizona, Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Florida.

The University's geographical location has led to a natural emphasis upon a region which includes the Gulf States, much of the Mississippi Valley and a large portion of Latin America. This means that in addition to the basic work of the University, Tulane undertakes specialized instruction and research which no other institution is in a position to perform so well.

The University comprises the College of Arts and Sciences, Newcomb College for women, University College (adult education) and the Schools of Law, Engineering, Medicine, Social Work, Business Administration, Architecture, and Graduate studies. In addition, the Middle American Research Institute, the Urban Life Research Institute, and the Summer Schools round out its program.

President of the University is Dr. Rufus Carrollton Harris.

The student body, approximately 4,000 full-time students and some 2,000 others who are taking courses in the field of graduate medicine,

University College and other divisions, is drawn from most of the states of the union and from more than a score of foreign countries.

Tulane had its beginning in 1834, when seven young physicians banded together to combat yellow fever and cholera, the city's twin curses of that period. In 1847 the State Legislature established in New Orleans the University of Louisiana with departments of Law, Medicine and Natural Sciences, and Letters.

The University received its name from Paul Tulane of Princeton, N. J., who made his fortune in and around New Orleans and who donated $1,000,000 to the institution in 1882. His gift, made at a time when the South was financially bankrupt as a result of Civil War, provided a revenue which revived a virtually moribund institution. Through his gift a reorganization of the university was completed. It was separated from the state and its affairs were entrusted to a self-perpetuating board of administrators.

In 1886 Mrs. Josephine Louise Newcomb donated to the Tulane Educational Fund the sum of $100,000 to be used in establishing the H. Sophie Newcomb Memorial College in the Tulane University of Louisiana in honor of her daughter. She subsequently gave more than $3,000,000 through gifts and her will. These gifts enabled the Tulane administrators to round out the ideal of the University by creation of an institution which would give to women all the educational advantages which before had been offered only to men.

The campus of 130 acres is located on St. Charles Avenue, facing Audubon Park, one of the most beautiful in the South.

Tulane Stadium

Tulane Stadium, a massive double-decked structure of steel and concrete, is famous as the home of the Green Wave football teams and of the annual Sugar Bowl Classic. It has an official seating capacity of 80,985.

The stadium is located on the site of the old Etienne de Boré plantation, where sugar was first granulated in this country. It is bounded by Willow and Calhoun streets, Audubon Boulevard and South Claiborne Avenue.

Tulane Stadium was dedicated October 23, 1926, with east and west side stands of reinforced concrete seating some 35,000. In the dedication game Auburn defeated Tulane by the margin of a safety, 2-0. Since then the stadium has been the scene of many memorable touchdowns and the making of important athletic history.

The original stadium was constructed with the financial assistance of the people of New Orleans and vicinity, in recognition of the Green Wave achievements of the early 1920's. More than 6,000 citizens donated $300,000 in a drive completed in just five days.

Enlargements and improvements of the huge arena have been due largely to efforts of the New Orleans Mid-Winter Sports Association, sponsor of the annual Sugar Bowl Classic. The Sugar Bowlers' investment at Tulane amounts to more than $1,250,000.

The first Sugar Bowl game was played January 1, 1935, when Tulane defeated Temple in a 20-14 thriller. An 85-yard touchdown run by Tulane's Claude (Little Monk) Simon was the day's highlight.

The Sugar Bowlers' first step in the enlargement program was taken in 1937 when 14,000 North stand seats were erected through a financial arrangement with the Tulane University Board of Administrators at a cost of $150,000 to double-deck the structure and boost its capacity to 69,000. Then in 1947 another bond issue of $500,000 was offered to enlarge the massive bowl to its present capacity.

Stadium improvements have included permanent box seats, portal seats, two electric scoreboards, an electric time flasher, an elevator to the press box and a photographers' roof.

The press box, which has been voted among the nation's best by the Football Writers Association, is 240 feet in length and seats 254 in swivel chairs. There are five booths for radio broadcasting.

Herbert A. Benson served as stadium enlargement architect and A. N. Goldberg as contractor.
