GEORGIA TECH vs TULANE

October 27, 1956

The Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets and the Tulane University Green Wave are today's opponents on Grant Field, and the winner of today's game is sure to be one of the prime favorites for the Southeastern Conference championship.

Georgia Tech enters today's contest with a record of four wins and no defeats, 3-0 in conference play. The Tulane Greenies, surprise team of the league this year, have won four, lost one over-all, and have a 1-0 conference mark.

Tulane brought this game with Georgia Tech into national focus last Saturday when the Green Wave upset previously undefeated and untied Mississippi at Oxford, Mississippi, 10-3. Prior to that game the Mississippi Rebels were co-favorites with Georgia Tech and Tennessee for the SEC title. Tulane now replaces Mississippi in that category.

In addition to the Mississippi victory, Tulane has defeated Virginia Tech 21-14, Northwestern 20-13 and Navy 21-6 this season. The Greenies lost a heart-breaker to University of Texas, 6-7, in September.

Georgia Tech's wins this season have been over Kentucky 14-6, Southern Methodist 9-7, Louisiana State 39-7 and Auburn 28-7. Tech still has conference games to play with Tennessee, Alabama Florida and Georgia after today's contest. Tulane must face conference foes Mississippi State, Alabama, Vanderbilt and Louisiana State after today.

Georgia Tech and Tulane first met on a football field in 1916, Tech winning the series opener 45-0. Since that time the Jackets and Green Wave have faced each other 20 more times with Tech holding a 14-7 edge in the series.

Georgia Tech and Tulane did not play each other last season, and when they played in 1954 at Atlanta the Jackets won 28-0.

Tulane Coach Andy Pilney has a veteran ball club this season with 8 regulars and 8 front line reserves back from his 1955 squad which brought him national "Coach of the Week" honors when Tulane upset Auburn for the latter's only regular season defeat. Pilney seems to have a remarkable faculty of getting his team ready for the "big ones," and you can be sure they will be ready today.

The official watch for timing this game is Longine—the world's most honored watch.

A Man To Remember
by The Rambler

Today is a day awaited for six long years by thousands of alumni and friends of Georgia Tech. It is the day of the culmination of a dream that a man once had many years ago.

The man's name was William Anderson Alexander. But few ever knew him by anything so formal as that. In the world of athletics, that was his profession, he was known as Coach Alex of Georgia Tech. To the outside world, he was as much a part of the school as the song that helped to lift it to national prominence. And around the campus that was the focal point of his life for forty years as a student, teacher, coach and athletic director, he was affectionately known as "the old man."

His dream was to provide Georgia Tech with a physical training center that could be used by all of the school's students. He planned and worked and hoped for this structure throughout the final years of his life.

"The old man" died in April of 1950 without seeing the culmination of the dream that had become an obsession to him. But those who loved him and the principles for which he stood saw to it that the dream would not die with the man. They organized a fund in his name to erect this building as a memorial to the man and his philosophies of life. And, despite an almost unbelievable series of unavoidable delays that would have discouraged those less dedicated, they kept faith with "the old man."

Today, the Alexander Memorial Physical Training Center is being dedicated in his honor. It will serve the same principles that he served in the world of athletics — the principles of the honor and dignity of man. And like him, it will be devoted to the training of Georgia Tech men to take their place in life. We may never see his like again.
The Burroughs Research Center in suburban Philadelphia is a happy example of such teamwork in the laboratories. For here skilled engineers and physicists from all parts of the world are combining their separate talents and efforts to produce the electronic and allied equipment which has made Burroughs the foremost name in computation.

More than 1,600 people and in excess of 200,000 square feet of working space in our FOUR centers, located in the Paoli area, testify to the success of our teamwork since 1954.

The Burroughs success story has no foreseeable ending. Future expansion is inevitable . . . as certain as is YOUR OPPORTUNITY to find full utilization and appropriate recognition at Burroughs for your own individual talents as they are related to our present and anticipated needs.

Tech Men on a Winning Team

UNITED AMERICAN LIFE
INSURANCE COMPANY

Tech men know — as do all Georgians — that United American Life Insurance Company is smashing all records in the insurance industry. That's why so many fine Tech alumni have joined this young company. They know that it was founded by Herman E. Talmadge and a group of prominent Georgians to serve the South with security. And they're helping it to do just that. United American Life Insurance Company is proud to have these Tech men on its team — a winning team. Why don't you call United American and let one of these men talk over the personalized insurance service which this southern company can give you?

A TRUE FOOTBALL FAN KNOWS

Intercollegiate athletics are, essentially, based on the idea of friendly competition. The players participating in today’s game here are college athletes. Players on the visiting team are friendly rivals. They are not enemies. So it should be with the spectators, no matter what the personal feelings of loyalty to one side or the other may be. The visiting team today is the GUEST of Georgia Tech. The players and coaches of the visiting team deserve to be regarded and respected as the guests they are.

The officials of this, and all college games, are responsible men charged, by agreement between the competing teams, with the administration of the rules. They are completely a part of this friendly competition and should be respected accordingly.

These thoughts are printed as a reminder to all that COLLEGE ATHLETICS are for THOSE WHO LOVE SPORTS—on the playing field, on the playing floor and in the stands.

"A Most Unusual Place"

Pigalley was designed for your enjoyment with shops and streets that welcome you to Paris in Atlanta. Leb's singing waiters and strolling musicians speak, and sing, in French, Greek, Italian, Spanish, Hungarian—20 languages in all. Musical entertainment is continuous and accords the perfect atmosphere for the gourmet.

Enjoy such taste treats as cheese cake, pastrami, steaks and corned beef. Try our "Steak Thumbits" for a real taste thrill. These bite-size morsels of tender, delicious beef are served with garlic gravy, French fried onions and all the trimmings. Eat them with your fingers. Everybody does! Or, if you prefer, order barbecued spare ribs, prepared in Leb's special way.

Leb’s Pigalley (Downstairs) opens at 5 p.m.

Senior
Fullback

He broke up the L.S.U. game with an interception and a long touchdown gallop.

Gookin is rated as the finest defensive fullback on the Tech varsity.

In 1955 Dick carried 25 times for 70 yards... he received one pass for four yards... he can also be used at half.
