

T-P
Sept. 7, 1984

Thelma Toole
wills museum
to honor son
See A-17

Sports

Terry Bradshaw
a rookie again
behind the mike
See C-1

Lagniappe

New life for the old Blue Room

WHAT'S UP
AT THE FAIR / A-1

The Times-Picayune The States-Item

New Orleans

Toole's will: Home to be museum

By SUSAN FEENEY
Staff writer

Thelma Ducoing Toole, mother of the late Pulitzer Prize-winning author John Kennedy Toole, requested in her will that her home on Elysian Fields Avenue become a museum to honor her son and that his manuscript "The Neon Bible" never be published.

Mrs. Toole's will, signed April 1 and filed in Civil District Court Thursday, stipulates that half of her estate, which has not been valued, go to Tulane University "to be used exclusively for scholarships for brilliant and needy authors and playwrights."

The other half is to be divided equally among Jesuit High School instructor Douglas Crawford; Peter Jaeger, dean of doctoral studies at Southeastern University, a private college in Algiers that once gave Mrs. Toole an honorary doctorate; W. Kenneth Holditch, a University of New Orleans English professor; John Geiser of the Louisiana Landmarks Society and Robert Kirm. The will names Geiser as executor.

Mrs. Toole died Aug. 17 at St. Charles General Hospital. She was 82. Her son won a Pulitzer Prize for his novel "A Confederacy of Dunces" in 1981, 12 years after he killed himself. At the time he was reported to be despondent that the book had been rejected by publishers.

John Hantel, Mrs. Toole's attorney, said the size of the estate will be determined within a few months. "She didn't die penniless," he said.

Mrs. Toole left no part of her estate to Arthur Ducoing, the brother with whom she lived and her only living relative. Hantel said Mrs. Toole and Ducoing, who signed as a witness to the will, had "a mutual understanding... He is older than Thelma and he fully anticipated that he would die before she did."

Last month, Maple Street Bookstore owner Rhoda Faust sued Mrs. Toole to force her to honor what Faust said was a 1979 promise to let Faust publish "The Neon Bible." The rights to the manuscript, written by Toole when he was 16, are shared by Mrs. Toole and five relatives on her late husband's side of the family.

Faust's attorney, Brian Begue, said the suit will be amended to name Mrs. Toole's heirs. "I don't think she has the right to say" the book cannot be published, Begue said.

Hantel said he doesn't know who holds the deed to the house at 1016 Elysian Fields. He said Ducoing, who may be named on the deed, has agreed with Mrs. Toole's plan to create a museum.

The will says Crawford, Geiser, and Joel Fletcher III of Lafayette are to maintain and supervise the museum. But it does not specify how it will be paid for.

The will does not say who will get the Pulitzer Prize certificate. "It's not something you can easily divide," Hantel said. He said it will likely be placed in the museum or given to Tulane.

PHOTOS BY ED KENNEDY

T-P Sept 7, 1984 p A-17

mends a 5.2 employees (ment paid b

Employee board's offer supplement about one- The state want 5 perc

The board point plan The plan in to raise en money beco guarantee harassmen return to sch

The plan to return to 120-day "co education issues facin addressed.

But after t and other laughed at tl strike would demands for and a 5 perc

"Don't fall

S

e of Arabic aids Pepper's sales

AGER
ureau

oll, plant manager bottling company, what those squiggly top of about 96,000 epper mean, but he ey've created quite.

he ran out of Dr the Reserve MSB g Co. plant about a he used some old been sitting around

e a can-collector's have Arabic mark- ly on Dr Pepper stopped and that the cans be sent back to Reserve.

"I guess you would call it an Arab embargo," said Charles T. Grier, senior vice president for research and quality control.

"We have spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in the development of our packaging. We just don't like something out there that represents a deviation in the packaging we approve," Grier said.

Carroll said he doesn't have any more of the cans and he doubts anyone will return those sent out.

"Dr Pepper doesn't particularly like it," he said. "But I'd like to do it again. I'm getting all

Death has last in six-year squ

By CHARLIE CHAPPLE
Staff writer

AMITE, La. — Curtis "Dagwood" Slocum and Andrew Cummings were two Amite men who didn't like each other. For more than six years, they feuded and relations got no better when they became neighbors in a duplex.

Wednesday, they argued over a makeshift fence that cut across a driveway. Their latest squabble, fueled by whiskey, was their last. It ended with a murder-suicide.

"It was a running feud that finally erupted," said a neighbor, Joe Rosenthal. "I guess both of them got fed up with it, and finally had erecte duplexes.

Rosenthal bad blood bet for six or sev been neighbor frame dupl months.

"I've know long time," R never bothe sometimes, h him. I didn't mings as we waved and sai

Rosenthal recently feude which cut ac