

New Orleans, La., August 23, 1934.

Having celebrated my thirty-fifth birthday, and cognizant of the uncertainty of this life, I deem it prudent to prepare this my last will and testament:

I do hereby bequeath to my half-sister, Margaret Garvey, all that I may die earthly possessed of.

I have two life insurance policies aggregating Four Thousand and <sup>00</sup>/<sub>100</sub> - Dollars, the proceeds of which will necessarily revert to my half-sister, Margaret <sup>Ann</sup> Garvey, as she is named beneficiary in both policies.

Thus done and written in my own handwriting at New Orleans, La., U.S.A. this twenty-third day of August, nineteen hundred and Thirty Four (1934).
