Dear Thelma,

I just read the People Magazine article and thought it not too bad, but too sympathetic to Gottlieb, no doubt because he is now considered a "power" in New York. I also called J.C. Broussard and gave him a tongue-lashing for his dumb remarks. "Professors of Literature" must have their little theories, no matter how scant a basis there is for them in reality. That is why, I suppose, they are "Professors of Literature."

I look forward to seeing you on the 29th.

Love,

P.S. What I liked most about the people magazine article was the wonderful picture of you in front of the poster of Ignatius. In it you remind me of photographs I have seen recently of Elizabeth the Queen Mother of England. You are every bit as regal, and have, in my opinion, even more natural chic.

Dear Thelma -

J.C. Bransford called

Last night to say that

People Magazine had called him several times yesterday checking details for the article which will appear in the Unvest and next Monday.

Hope you are well.

Love,
