Tulane authors to meet at conference

"A Confederacy of Authors" is the title of the Tulane University Alumni Association's 28th annual education conference Jan. 24 in Tulane's University Center.

This year's conference will present aspects of Southern culture featuring Tulane authors of recently published books on Southern history, music, literature, architecture, religious history and children's literature.

Registration begins at 11 a.m., followed at noon by a luncheon in the Kendall Cram Room. Emilie Dietrich Griffin, a 1957 Newcomb graduate and author of "Turning," will be the luncheon speaker.
