The game this afternoon between Tulane and Florida commences the first college football doubleheader played on the Florida Suncoast. Dubbed "Super Saturday", this event concludes appropriately tonight with the Tampa-Tulsa contest. Without question the offensive fireworks to be supplied by John Reaves of Florida and Jim Del Gaizo of Tampa, together with the presence of the Golden Hurricanes of Tulsa who have established many of the NCAA passing records over the years, will keep the air filled over Tampa Stadium today. Advance ticket sales indicate that Super Saturday, will achieve the same success ac-

Stadium. Such a permit is a prerequisite for the playing of a game between NCAA member teams, unlike all-star games. Because of the present moratorium on such permits, the FWCBA, without abandoning vigorous pursuit of the post-season event, added to its aims the sponsoring of one or more major college regular season games in Tampa Stadium each season.

Last year the group sponsored the Florida-Air Force game, the first sellout at Tampa Stadium. In addition to this year's Tulane-Florida game the group has signed Kentucky and Florida for November 14, 1970, the first SEC game on the West Coast in 21 years. Negotiations are underway with a number of schools for later years. It has already been publicly announced that these negotiations have resulted in the signing of a contract for the Florida-Army game in 1978, and that discussions are in progress with reference to an Air Force-Army game between 1972 and 1975. James W. Kynes, president of the association, a former Gator football captain, and now vice-president of Tampa-based Jim Walter Corporation, now confidently predicts that Tampa Stadium will feature one or more major college games each year over the next decade under sponsorship of the FWCBA. Other directors and officers of FWCBA are: J. H. Williams, Jr., Vice-President; Thomas C. MacDonald, Jr., Secretary; George T. Vass, Treasurer; George A. Levy, Director; Arthur Pepin, Director; and Nelson A. Italiano, Director. To comply with NCAA requirements two directors from NCAA member institutions are required and FWCBA is fortunate to include on its Board as NCAA Institution Directors Dr. Robert Earnest, Faculty Athletic Chairman at Florida State University, and Coach Ray Graves, Head Football Coach and Director of Athletics at the University of Florida. Eddie Card of Tampa serves the association as ticket sales director.

Adding to the significance of Super Saturday is the fact that it coincides with Legislative Appreciation Day in Tampa. The FWCBA joins the sponsoring Greater Tampa Chamber of Commerce in welcoming the contingent of some 500 legislators, their families and guests.

Having enjoyed the bean soup and arroz con pollo of Futbol Fiesta Dos, the second pre-game spectacular of the local University of Florida Alumni Association, stand-by now for the Green Wave of Jim Pittman and the Gators of Ray Graves, but save some adrenalin, and procure sustenance at the Super Supper sponsored by the University of Tampa Alumni Association between games. The smash encore of the Spartans of Fran Curci and the Golden Hurricanes of Tulsa is bound to require it.

In all events, enjoy both games and return often to attend the events scheduled in Tampa Stadium during the remainder of 1969, which collectively present the best in prep, college and professional football.

football—west coast's new image

By TOM KELLY
Sports Editor, St. Petersburg Times

If you listen closely, you may be able to hear an image cracking.

No longer is the West Coast of Florida "a nice place to live, but you wouldn't want to visit there." No longer is Tampa-St. Petersburg-Clearwater "the place where the action isn't." Football and Tampa Stadium are changing all of the tired, old cliches about the Florida Suncoast—and changing them for the better.

License plates from all over Florida jam the stadium parking lots today. Motels from Dale Mabry to the Gulf Beaches are filled with football fans. Restaurants have laid in extra provisions for the weekend.

Suncoast businessmen are learning that big-time college and professional football games make cash registers ring and turnstiles click. Miami learned this fact of economic life years ago. So did Jacksonville.

Now it's our turn, and the evidence of the past two years shows that we're not going to miss our chance.

Since the Suncoast and football got together at the stadium's inaugural Tampa-Tennessee game in November, 1967, with a so-so crowd of 21,000 fans in attendance, the emphasis has been on big ideas and even bigger successes. But it hasn't just happened by accident.

The University of Florida and Air

Force Academy never would have pulled a record crowd of 52,626 fans into Tampa Stadium a year ago if it hadn't been for the persistence of the Florida West Coast Bowl Association, a group of aware young executives with a penchant for making things happen. The FWCBA is responsible for today's Florida-Tulane game, which was originally scheduled to be played in New Orleans. Next season, Florida and Kentucky will play at Tampa under FWCBA auspices and a Gator-Army game has been booked for 1978.

Mostly, the men who arranged these games were motivated by a simple desire to see big-time football in their own backyard and by a fierce pride in their community. The only profits will be made by the participating teams and by the sports fans of the Suncoast, who have never been overwhelmed by the quantity of quality attractions available to them.

Football may turn out to be the best device for unifying the Tampa-St. Petersburg megalopolis since the Gandy Bridge was built in 1925. Mayors Dick Greco of Tampa and Don Spicer of St. Petersburg have endorsed the notion that intercity cooperation in support of sports events at Tampa Stadium may lead to unified action in other, more urgent civic responsibilities.

Most important of all, however, is the new spirit of excitement—the special exhilaration that a college football weekend brings to a community—that we're experiencing on more fall Saturdays each year.

Forget that old saw about Tampa being the home of the blue collar worker and the bowl of bean soup. Throw out the libel that St. Petersburg and Clearwater are nothing but old folks' homes.

Thanks to football and Tampa Stadium, the Suncoast is fast becoming a place where things happen.

Tulane University is an educational institution deeply rooted in the past and reaching toward the future.

Founded in 1834 as the Medical College of Louisiana, Tulane today offers undergraduate programs in 25 areas of study, masters' degrees in 42 fields and the doctor of philosophy degree in 27 disciplines.

Courses are offered in the College of Arts and Sciences, Newcomb College (the coordinate college for women), and University College (the evening division); in the Schools of Architecture, Engineering, Law, Medicine, Public Health, and Tropical Medicine, and Social Work; in the Graduate School, the Graduate School of Business Administration, the Summer School, the Center for Teacher Education at several research institutes.

The interest in tropical medicine—the Medical College of Louisiana was founded to combat epidemics of yellow fever and other tropical diseases—is the one cord that runs throughout the University history, even as its interests expanded with its development as part of the University of Louisiana in 1847, and with its emergence, finally, as the Tulane University of Louisiana in 1884, after a generous gift from Paul Tulane had established the Tulane Educational Fund. The Fund's administrators used the gift to reorganize the University as a private, non-sectarian institution bearing Tulane's name.

Today Tulane's President, Dr. Herbert E. Longenecker, directs the operation of a cosmopolitan community whose faculty (800 full-time, 150 part-time) and students (6500 full-time, 2000 part-time) represent every state and 60 foreign countries.

By far the major portion of the University's activities are centered at the main campus, a 100-acre site in uptown New Orleans. Scholars also pursue their interests at the downtown Medical School campus; at the Delta Regional Primate Research Center in Covington, La., 35 miles from the main campus; at the International Center for Medical Research and training at Cali, Colombia, and at the University's newest campus—the F. Edward Hebert Center, across the Mississippi River from downtown New Orleans, a development devoted to scientific research.

TODAY'S GAME

by Tom McEwen

The Game Today could well be a closey despite the hard fact that Florida is 3-0 and Tulane 0-3.

Tulane believes that, and Florida believes that and if you could ask the coaches of Georgia, West Virginia and Boston College they'd probably make the same estimate.

Reasons are these:

(1) In the 35-0 Georgia win over Jim Pittman's extremely young team this year, each club had 16 first downs, Georgia outgained Tulane only 75 yards BUT intercepted six passes—

(2) In the 35-17 West Virginia win over Tulane, it was 17-14 Tulane leading at the half, then in the second, two fumbles and two interceptions gave the Mountaineers opportunity to do-in the Tulaners—

(3) And, in the 28-24 Boston College win over the Pittman-men, it again was Tulane 17-14 (after being down 0-14) in the third period when a fumble and interception gave the Bostonians the chances to win it.

Interesting, Georgia, West Virginia, Boston College (and now Florida) are undefeated.

"It's youth, that's what it's been," said Pittman of the defeats. "Youthful mistakes."

There are two seniors in the first 22 Tulaners' yet, Pittman guesses this team has more talent and more depth than any in his years at the New Orleans school.

"Put it together, and we sure hope to do it at Tampa, and we think we can play with anybody," he said.

It was about this way last year at Tulane-Florida time. Tulane had won none in three and Florida was undefeated but the Gators had the daylight scared out of them before winning 24-3.

Now, it could be a closey because Tulane isn't 0-3 bad and as Coach Paul Bryant of Alabama once said, "the easy part of coaching is to coach for a traditional rival. It's for the next game, the one you're supposed to win, when you have to coach."

Florida's superb play a week ago in over-everythinging in the annual football civil war with Florida State may take some of the edge off this one today from the viewpoint of the Gator warriors. Tulane isn't Florida State, you know, and truth is, Florida has almost as much youth on its exciting '69 club as does Tulane, enough sophs in fact Tampa Stadium may be sporting more second year players than any other major college football site today (or night).

The game, well, it should be largely one of offense.

Tulane has two quarterbacks who run around a lot and that's the kind that worries the dickens out of the Gator defense. They are David Abercrombie and Rusty Lachaussee (La-shy-say).

You know what Florida has, about as complete an offensive attack as people who care can remember, with Tampan John Reaves quarterbacking, Touchdown Tommy Durrance and bruteful runner Mike Rich at fullback, and streaky Chico Alvarez at flanker, to name four of the principals. Reaves, of course, will be involved in a homecoming, since Tampa Robinson was his high school place.

It'll be one of three things (check one): (1) a matchup of offenses with a 35-24 type finish, (2) a Florida rout (47-0), (3) or a tense upset by Tulane (28-26).

There's no way it can be a dull, bad game with all those youngsters and a team that wants its fourth in a row and one anxious to win its first at the expense of a national ranked club.

It's a Tulane home game but the crowd'll be 100-1 for the "visiting" Florida Gators.

university of florida

The University of Florida is one of the largest land-grant institutions in the South with nearly 1,500 faculty members and a student body of more than 19,500. Extensive building and modernization in the last 15 years has resulted in a physical plant valued at approximately $140 million.

In 1853 the foundation work of the present University of Florida was laid in Ocala when a small private school, East Florida Seminary, was opened. Florida Agricultural College was established at Lake City in 1883 and by 1905 six colleges were at least partially state-supported. With the passage of the Buckman Act in 1905, the University of Florida was established at Gainesville, a north-central Florida community about equidistant from the Atlantic Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico. There have been six presidents: Dr. Andrew Sledd (1905-09), Dr. Albert A. Murphree (1909-28), Dr. John J. Tigert (1928-47), Dr. J. Hillis Miller (1947-53), Dr. J. Wayne Reitz (1955-67) and Stephen C. O'Connell.

In addition to numerous special research projects in the various colleges, schools and divisions, the University has established a number of independent laboratories. These agencies carry on continuous basic research in the fields of engineering, science, agriculture, forestry, business, economics, public administration, communications and statistics, making significant contributions to private industry and government research.

A broad program in medical education, research, and patient care is being carried out in the University's J. Hillis Miller Health Center. Encompassing the Colleges of Dentistry, Health Related Professions, Medicine, Nursing and Pharmacy, the Health Center is housed in a $26 million facility.

The University has 16 colleges and two schools. The colleges are: Agriculture, Architecture and Fine Arts, Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Dentistry, Education, Engineering, Health Related Professions, Journalism and Communications, Law, Medicine, Nursing, Pharmacy, Physical Education and Health, and University College. The two schools are Forestry and Graduate.
