TODAY'S GAME

Way back in the days of the horse and buggy, handle-bar mustaches, tight-legged pants, and gas lights, a football series was inaugurated in Louisiana between Tulane University and Louisiana State University. As the years passed, so did the games, until in 1949 the 47th game was played between these two schools in one of the South's oldest football rivalries. The record now shows Tulane winning 19 games, LSU 24, and the remaining four ending in ties.

The Big Ten may have its Little Brown Jug, and the Ivy League may end up with its annual Yale-Harvard game, but Louisiana football fans always have as great a contest to look forward to — Tulane vs. LSU. Proof of this was the 81,000 fans that turned out in Tulane Stadium last season to witness the Tigers' clash with the Green Wave. This was the largest crowd ever to gather for a regularly scheduled football game in the South.

Today's game promises to be as big and as colorful as any of those of the past, and with the game will also go to the victor — not a Little Brown Jug — but the Rag, a flag with the emblem of both schools upon it, and the seat of the captain's pants of the losing team.

In 1893, when the first game got under way, and which the Wave won 34-0, a Louisiana Classic was born. Tulane's Greenbacks, the Green Wave, and later-on-to-be-called Greenies, were under the direction of Colonel Hugh Bayne.

For Tulane's Wave it will be the final appearance of some of its most outstanding players of recent years. It will be the end of a brilliant career for Halfback George Kinek, Center George Maddox, Guard Dennis Doyle, Tackle Paul Lea, and Quarterbacks Joe Ernst and Bill Bonar. They join the ranks of men like Monk Simons, Peggy Flourney, Eddie Price, Bill Svoboda, Lester Lautenschlager, Bill Banker, and Dub Jones, to mention only a few.

Today's Wave will pitch against the Tigers one of the most versatile of all Tulane's football teams. The play will be generated by two able quarterbacks, Joe Ernst and Bill Bonar. Ernst set a conference record this season in completing 14 of 16 passes attempted against Virginia.

On the receiving end of those passes may be as many as 16 ends and backs. With Joe Shinn, a fleet-footed end, and George Kinek, a lithe-of-foot halfback, receiving the majority of those passes, the Wave has developed a potent aerial attack.

Against an always-ready Tiger team the Green will run Hal Waggoner, George Kinek, Ronnie Kent, Ellsworth Kingery, and Vernon Van Meter with able line support by Paul Lea, Dennis Doyle, Dick Fulger, Jerome Helluin, Don Joyce, and Mike McLean.

The Tiger is expected to counter-attack with Armand Kitto, Ken Konz, Ebert Van Buren, Harold Voss, Allen Hover, Billy Baggett, and Lee Hedges, in a battle of "T" formations styled by Henry Pniko and Gus Tinsley.

Basketball Season to Open

With echoes of cheers from the Tulane football stadium still ringing in their ears, New Orleanians will hear another group of Hullabaloo Monday night when Cliff Wells puts in motion his 1950-51 basketball team against Birmingham-Southern at Tulane gymnasium.

The twenty-game schedule that has been arranged for Coach Wells is, in his estimation, the best that he, or possibly any Greenie basketball coach, has ever had. It will include such inter-sectional tilts as Columbia, Rice, Arkansas, and Northwestern University. All are perennial leaders in their respective conferences.

The schedule will also include a home game with Adolph Rupp's Kentucky Wildcats on January 29. The Wildcats are being tabbed by many writers and coaches throughout the country as the team to beat in '50-'51.

Captain of the basketball destiny at Tulane this season will be veteran Mel Payton. Payton, a fast driving senior at the forward post, was the Wave's second best scorer last season—second only to Big Jim Riffey now with the Fort Wayne Zollners. In 1949, Payton scored 285 points and at the present time looks like the best possible candidate for all-American honors.

The rest of the squad will be centered around the ability of some of last season's star sophomores and a transfer student from Northwestern University.

The graduated sophs to juniors are Ralph Pederson, Ivan Wilhelm, Al Wick, and Bob Hul linger. Pederson was injected into the Greenie lineup last season after the start and his play was such as to keep him there for the remainder of the season. He is one of the trickiest ball handlers ever to play for a Tulane five.

Wilhelm and Wick, although not starters last season, seem destined for plenty of action this year. They should both add considerable strength to the team, Wilhelm, especially in the fast break department that requires lots of speed.

Don Holt, the transfer from the Big Ten, is the tallest man to play under Coach Wells at Tulane. He stands six feet, seven inches. Upon his shoulders may rest the success or failure of the Galloping Greenies in 1950-51. He'll be trying to fill a big pair of shoes in those vacated by Jim Riffey.

Advanced from last season's fresh squad to sophomore standing are Hooks Mallory, Jim Carlin, Bob Read and Henry Stoutz. All are over six feet tall, and Stoutz is tallest at 6'5".

Tickets on a season basis as well as individual game tickets are now available. The season tickets for Tulane's 11 home games will continue on sale through Monday. Individual game tickets will be on sale at the gate.

No, it's not the backroom of the village drug store, but one of the rooms of the Newcomb art school where Miss Sadie Irvine mixes colors for some of the pottery for which Newcomb is nationally famous.
A lump of clay, a few turns of the potter's wheel, and there's a beautiful vase, all ready for Miss Irvine's colors. It's a highly complicated art, one of the oldest in the world.
Praxiteles was born 2,300 years too soon. Otherwise, he might have used a pneumatic drill for sculpturing, as are these Newcomb students.

These young ladies believe wood is softer than stone and hence are using an old-fashioned chisel and wooden mallet to make works of art of ex-trees.
A weeping willow shading a stone bridge across a bayou—and Newcomb art students set up their camera to capture the scene. Realizing that photography is a major art form, Newcomb offers four full-year courses in camera.

The ROOSEVELT
"Pride of the South"
Science and art meet at Newcomb, this time by courtesy of Gutenberg. Instructor Roy Robinson shows a class in graphic arts how to obtain the best effect from printing processes.

Design is an integral part of the art school's program. For example, this young lady could design her own curtains, wallpaper, dress fabrics and chair covers if she wished.
Another step in the process shows the addition of wax to a previously prepared plaster base.

Under study by Assistant Professor Jules Struppeck at the Newcomb art school is "the lost wax process". This is a closeup of the first step taken in that form of art.
Final phase produces this bronze figure in a process that dates back to the Sumerians and was a favorite with Benvenuto Cellini.
And of course drawing has its place in Newcomb's program of art, along with the many other phases already mentioned in your trip through the art school.
